CALIFORNIA BUSH FIRE OUT OF CONTROL

Flames Still Threaten Mount Wilson Astronomical Observatory in Spite of 500 Fighters

PASADENA, Cal., Sept. 10.—Efforts to control the San Gabriel forest fire, which is threatening destruction to the Mount Wilson astronomical observatory, east of here, were still unsuccessful early today after a night-long battle by more than 500 men distributed along a four-mile front in the vicinity of Roberts Canyon.

Attacking the brush near the head of Fish Canyon, about eight miles east of the Mount Wilson Astronomical Observatory, the flames were advancing due westward toward heavily-wooded slopes, despite stubborn resistance by the firefighters.

Three men reported missing for several hours after a crew of seven were trapped in Roberts Canyon last night, were all accounted for today.

GEORGIA STRUGGLE STILL CONTINUES

MARTIAL LAW IS DECLARED THROUGHOUT CAUCASUS

Insurgents Hold Principal Railway, and Soviet Troops Reported Hurrying South

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 10.—The struggle between the insurgents and the Soviet forces in the Georgian Republic is continuing fiercely, according to the latest reports reaching here. The insurgents hold the principal transcaucasian railway which runs through Tiflis to Baku.

Martial law has been proclaimed throughout the Caucasus and Soviet troops are being hurried to Georgia.

Georgia was part of the old Russian Empire, but refused to recognize the Bolsheviks when the latter overthrew Kerensky. The Georgians formed a separate state, proclaiming their independence in May, 1918, and receiving de jure recognition from the Allies in January, 1921. Later in 1921 a revolution occurred and a Soviet government was set up.

The Georgian insurgents are demanding recognition of their independence from the Soviet regime. Their president, who is now in Paris, has asked the intervention of the League of Nations to stop the bloodshed and has offered to submit the independence issue to arbitration.

HOUSEMAID'S DEATH DECLARED MURDER

The body of the girl showed two bad burns. One of these was on the upper portion of her right arm and the other below her right shoulder blade. They were fresh burns, and the proximity of the electric iron, which was caught between her arm and side, suggested to police and Mr. Baker that the girl had fallen with the iron. Examination of her clothing showed that the fabric of the garments was not even scorched at the corresponding location.

Whether it is possible to burn through cloth and near the skin without in any way showing effect on the weave of the cloth is a matter that can not be determined easily, but the suggestion upon which the lawyers are now working is that there is a possibility arising from these remarkable circumstances that would hint at her clothing having been changed after death and of the iron having been placed on the body to give excuse for the burning.

Two letters, said to have a bearing on the tragedy, were placed in evidence, but were not read to the public. They will be given to the jury with the rest of the exhibit to assist the six men in arriving at a verdict. One of the letters was to R. L. Baker, the nursemaid's employer, and was from his mother, he said. The other was written by the dead girl's sister in Scotland, to Mrs. Sullivan, of this city.

It was not ascertained whether either letter sheds any light on the tragedy or indicates any motive. Mr. J. H. Benker, who is appearing on behalf of the Chinese houseboy, who was apparently alone in the house when the fatal shot was fired, said he had no objection to the letters being read, but it was for the coroner to decide. The coroner instructed that the letters be marked exhibits.

Hundreds of men and women endeavored to force their way into the assize court this morning to witness the final scene in the dramatic inquest which for a week has been proceeding in an effort to clear away the mystery surrounding the death of Janet Smith.

LIFE SENTENCES FOR CHICAGO KILLERS

Penalty Favored by Murderers

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, in a formal statement issued immediately after the session, said: "I still believe the death penalty is the only penalty feared by murderers."

"It was all we have asked for," said Clarence S. Darrow, chief of defence counsel. "There will be no appeal."

"I do not regard it as a victory except a victory for justice," said Benjamin Bachrach, of defence counsel, as he shook off those who offered congratulations on the youths' escape from the noose. "Do not congratulate me personally."

Nathan Leopold, sr., sat silently weeping. He offered no comment and merely nodded his head when friends grouped about him and whispered in his ear.

Foreman Leopold, Nathan's older brother, relaxed visibly as the judge reported the words in his statement which meant life for the youths. He had sat tense as the judge read from the transcript.

Allan Loeb, athletic brother of Richard, beamed smiles but said nothing. Jacob Loeb, uncle of Richard and former head of Chicago Public School Board, remained silent, although he relaxed visibly after Judge Caverley had passed sentence.

The Loeb and Leopold watched anxiously as Nathan Jr. and Richard were herded quickly back to the elevator to be returned to their jail cells.

Loeb and Leopold as They Appeared During the Trial

Then as the court emptied rapidly, Jacob Loeb interrupted an interview with half a score of newspapermen with "Oh, Clarence, they are waiting; let's go."

Nathan Leopold, sr., had recovered his composure, and opened his cigar case and passed cigars to the members of the group as they filed from the courtroom.

Edwin Graham, uncle of the child murder victim, the only member of the Franks family in the room, refused to comment on the sentence. He shook his head in a refusal when asked for the Franks family's acceptance of the sentence as justice for the murder of Bobby.

DESCRY SYMPTOMS OF GRAVE DISORDER

GLOBE REVIEWS CONDITIONS IN CONSERVATIVE PARTY

Choosing Leader by Convention, Suggested by Montreal Gazette, Is Not So Easy, Says Critic

TORONTO, Sept. 10.—In an editorial entitled "Conservative leadership," The Globe this morning takes up the editorial in The Montreal Gazette of yesterday relative to co-operation in the Conservative party in Quebec between the federal and provincial forces and the suggestion of a convention to decide on a Conservative leader. The Globe says: "As The Montreal Gazette is not easily excited, its article on the condition of the Conservative party looks like a symptom of some grave disorder."

After quoting The Gazette's comment on the outcome of the St. Antoine by-election in which the Conservative candidate was defeated, The Globe prints the Montreal paper's request for a Dominion-wide convention to select a Conservative leader. The Globe continues:

"It must be said that choosing a leader by descent, as The Gazette calls it, has been the almost universal practice in Canada. That is to say, the leader has been chosen by his colleagues in parliament. The

DANGERS BY LAND AND SEA

A LOG'S JOURNEY FROM THE WOODS TO THE MARKET IS ATTENDANT WITH MANY RISKS

Lengthy Period Between Felling the Tree and Marketing the Log

From being the simple affair that some people imagine, modern logging is a complicated scientific operation entailing enormous expenditure and involving big risks of severe losses by land and sea.

At one typical B. C. camp it cost $300,000 in cash for camps and equipment before a stick was cut for sale.

At this operation, after felling and bucking, the logs are yarded to a spar tree, the rigging of which is a spectacular and expensive business.

Then they are loaded on heavy cars owned by the company and carried to a lake, where they are dumped into the water, made into rafts and transported to a landing on the opposite shore. Here they are again loaded out of the lake and once more transported on different cars and transported several miles to salt water.

Logs Handled by Many Workers

During the first part of the journey to market, these logs are handled over again by different groups of workers, the exacting nature of whose occupation calls for skill and alertness.

At the booming grounds the logs are made up into flat rafts by the final tow to their destinations. As this journey is frequently over rough seas and through dangerous channels for days together, the importance of secure rafting is evident.

Frequently a period of six months or more elapses between the time logs are dumped into salt water and the date they are sold for manufacture and during this time they are liable to attack by teredo and loss of all commercial value.

nicated by the timber industries

EXPECTED TO DIG WAY ACROSS WEST

PATHFINDER MOTORISTS FOUND EQUIPMENT SUPERFLUOUS
No Need of Picks and Shovels on Canadian Highway From Winnipeg—Roads Excellent

"We left Winnipeg with a full equipment of blocks and tackle, of crowbars and picks and shovels; we thought we had to dig our way across the Canadian West; but so good were the roads along the entire route that our elaborate equipment proved nothing but superfluous baggage. We had absolutely no need of it."

Mr. Austin F. Bement thus epitomized the character of his pathfinding motor journey from Winnipeg to Victoria with Mr.
E. S. Evans.

"We knew absolutely nothing about Western Canada when we left Detroit," Mr. Bement declared. "There was no data available at the Detroit Automobile Club nor at the headquarters of the American Automobile Association. To us, the map was a just name to us. They might have contained 20 or 20,000 people."

"But we have found to our amazement that, with the exception of 40 miles from Lytton to Hope, there is an all-Canadian highway from Winnipeg to Victoria already in existence, composed of splendid roads, and that,
however, there was absolutely no lack of excellent accommodations all along the route. Towns of similar size along the Lincoln Highway, indeed, could not offer accommodation so good."

"We were favored with excellent luck. There wasn't a drop of rain during the entire trip, and we have reached Victoria without a single accident."

Asked whether he thought the scenery along the Canadian route as beautiful as that along the Lincoln Highway, Mr. Bement replied:

"I used to think Lake Tahoe, in the California Sierras, the most beautiful spot in the world. I have often called it the 'Fairland of North America,' both in speech and writing. I considered California, singularly blessed in their possession of such a beautiful lake. But in the Pacific Northwest, the shores of water just as beautiful, with the same gorgeous coloring, and the same wonderful setting of mountains and trees."

"One circumstance impressed me—and that was the absence of people.
There wasn't a single human being besides ourselves to enjoy the beauty.
If Pavilion Lake were in California, its shores would be sprinkled with hotels and its surface dotted with sail boats. Thousands of people would visit it each year. It would be magnificent for hundreds of thousands of tourists' dollars."

Mr. Bement and Captain Evans were loud in praise of the courtesy extended them by the Automobile Club of British Columbia. Mr. Bement also addressed the successful motorists in congratulatory terms. Mayor Hayward tendered them the city's welcome, and amongst those present at the ceremony were: Mr. J. L. Beckwith, president of the Canadian Highway Association; Mr. Joseph Patrick, president of the Canadian Club and of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau; Alderman G. D. Christie, Captain C. I. Harris, Mr. Stephen Jones and Commander Board, R.C.N.

Instead of coming to Victoria, on the afternoon boat from Vancouver, as was the original intention, the pathfinders crossed over to Nanaimo and continued their journey over the Island Highway. They were

INTERURBAN RAILWAY WILL BE ABANDONED

B.C. Electric Railway Company Announces Intention in View of Loss of Revenue

Competition of motor stages and buses, and other causes, have combined in making the Saanich Interurban Electric Railway Company a non-paying proposition and in consequence it has been announced by the company that service on the road will be discontinued at the end of the present month. The line operates from Victoria to Deep Bay, a distance of twenty-four miles.

For some years, it is stated, the line has steadily lost money in spite of all efforts to encourage travel by its cars, and the action to be taken by the company has been under consideration for several months. New plans have been made relative to the company's right-of-way, but it is understood that the steel will be taken up and the line abandoned.

Relative to Victoria city lines, the company does not plan to make a general curtailment of the present service. Some changes will be made when the winter traffic schedule is put into force, but the public is assured that service on local lines will not be impaired. Inspection of traffic on various city routes are now being made, and no alteration in running time will be made until careful investigation has been made.

Harrowsmith, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born and it did me a great deal of good. I was very poorly until I started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would take weak, fainting spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, day or night. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
and it helped me wonderfully.
I would recommend it to any woman.
I am doing what I can to get good medicine. I read that little book you sent me to any one I can help.
You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound. It will serve to help others."—Mrs. HARVEY MILLIGAN, R. R. No. 2, Harrowsmith, Ontario.

In a recent canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over 100,000 replies were received and 98 out of every 100 said they had been helped by its use. This medicine is for sale by all druggists.

THE first all-Canadian automobile toria ended here at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon with the arrival of Captain F. S. Evans, president of E.

S. Evans & Co., Detroit, and Austin
F. Bement, vice-president and secretary of the Lincoln Highway Associ-

The two pathfinding motorists thus won the gold medal offered by the Canadian Highway Association. This, by arrangement, they will pass on to the makers of the car which they used in the long journey to the Pacific Coast.

Hon. J. D. MacLean, Acting Premier, extended an official welcome on behalf of the Province when the pathfinders car drew up before the Parliament Buildings steps. Hon. W.
H. Sutherland, Minister of Public

LATE MRS. LUCAS WAS OF HISTORIC FAMILY

The late Mrs. Marianne Gillespie
Lucas, whose funeral took place
Tuesday from the family residence, 1335 Pembroke Street, belonged to one of the oldest and most historic families in Ireland. She was the only child of the late Alexander and Margaret Gillespie, of Tynan Abbey, County Armagh, her father being a direct descendant of Alexander Gillespie, who for his invincible courage in the Battle of Bannockburn, was made Baron of Dumfries, and was granted a coat-of-arms by Robert Bruce.

Alexander Gillespie, the son of the Baron of Dumfries, went into service with Edward Bruce, and went with him to Ireland. For his worthy assistance there he was granted the ownership of almost five counties. As the Gillespie family that time adhered to the Roman Church, most of this property was confiscated after the Battle of the Boyne in 1690. Since that time the family history records the brave deeds of many warriors, and statues to their memory are erected in various parts of Armagh.

Her relations in the North of Ireland are renowned for their scholastic, political and literary merit.
Her children are well known both in Victoria and Vancouver for exceptionally high scholastic talent. All through their school careers they have won scholarships, prizes and distinctions. The loss of Mrs. Lucas is not only felt by her immediate relations, but by a wide circle of friends who estimated the true worth of her life and character.

LAY PLANS FOR YEAR'S PROGRAMME OF MEETS

Dean Quinlan, President of Royal Society of St. George, Welcomed Home

A hearty welcome was accorded the president of the Royal Society of St. George, Dean Quinlan, at a meeting of the organization held Tuesday evening at the courts in the original season. The return of the president from his trip to the Old Country was made the subject of congratulation by the members. It was decided that the first lecture of the season would be one by Dean Quinlan on the subject of his impressions of England formed from his recent visit.

The programme for the season was gone into at the meeting, and it was announced to hold these as usual in the rooms of the Liberal-Conservative party in the Campbell Block.
The opening night will be Sept. 23, when a programme of a musical order will be given by the gentlemen of the society, and included in this will be refreshments provided also at the suggestion of the Ladies' Auxiliary by the gentlemen.

During the season there will be lectures delivered by General Victor Odium, Mr. John Cochrane and Mr.
Frank Burrill. These will be arranged from time to time during the winter months.

Man a Mechanism

MAN IS A MECHANISM OF NERVES

The brain is the battery and the nerves the transmission lines. The electricity that flows from the brain to the chemically composed organs of the body, where combustion of the blood takes place in the capillaries, just as gasoline is reported by the carburetor of a motor and ignited in the cylinders by the electric

We have not a complete system, but the PRINCIPLE OF ENERGY is the

NOTED BUSINESS WOMAN VISITS HERE

Mrs. Paula Davis, Head of Hong Kong Exporting and Engineering Firm, Passes Through City

An interesting visitor in the city during the last few days was Mrs.
Paula Davis, head of the exporting and engineering firm of Davis & Co., Hong Kong.

Mrs. Davis passed through Victoria on her way from the Far East to New York on one of the periodic business trips which takes her also to the other offices of the company in Japan, San Francisco and Singapore.
It is something of a unique experience for a woman, even in the days of women adventurers in commerce, to control so influential a concern, and the fact that she directs and manages its affairs with such signal success places her in the very front ranks of the business women of America. Mrs. Davis was connected with the firm before she married Mr.
Davis, and after his death she assumed full control of the great interests which it embraces. She is not only handsome but a most charming and delightful personality, distinctly feminine, and dresses with exquisite taste, thus helping all the old-fashioned traditions to the effect that the business woman is none of these things.

South Africa Will Accept
BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa,
Sept. 10.—J. H. Thomas, British Colonial Secretary, said that while the invitation sent by the Imperial Government to the South African Government to participate in an Empire conference at London had not been accepted, he was glad to state that during a personal interview he had with Premier Hertzog, the latter declared his Government would accept the invitation, and South Africa would be represented.

Plan Bridge and Mah Jong Tea—The Equimait Chapter, I.O.D.E., held its September meeting at Mount Adelaide, the residence of the regent, Mrs. Croft. Interesting reports of the activities of the Chapter since the June meeting, formed the business of the evening. The first card party of the season will be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Marigold Hall, the committee in charge being Mrs. Pratt and Mrs. Munro. Arrangements are being made for a moving picture show in the near future.

Stage Meeting Tonight—A meeting will be held regarding the proposed new stage service tonight at St. George's Women's Institute, at 8 o'clock. A stage will run from Royal Oak at 7:30 along the West Road, and will be used to convey people to the meeting and back again. Another will leave Saanich at 7 o'clock. Mount Newton stage will run by the West Road when it is open for traffic, which will probably be on Saturday.

Garden City Institute—At the monthly meeting of the Garden City Women's Institute, prizes awarded at the recent flower show were distributed and the weekly club luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce at noon, on the subject of "The Roads of British Columbia." A curtain raiser will be provided by the acquaintance committee. The names of Messrs. Frank Paget and Francis Doherty will be balloted upon, both of them having been proposed for membership in the organization.

Minister to Speak—Hon. Dr. Ruthenford, Minister of Public Works, will address members of the Rotary Club today at the weekly club luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce at noon, on the subject of "The Roads of British Columbia." A curtain raiser will be provided by the acquaintance committee. The names of Messrs. Frank Paget and Francis Doherty will be balloted upon, both of them having been proposed for membership in the organization.

Enjoy Mandolin Solo—Samuel Snow Atwood, nicknamed by K.P.C. Seattle, as the Long Distance Guitar, Edmonds, R.F.D., Washington, has informed radio station C.P.C.T. that the mandolin solo played by Mrs. Lillian Atfield, 831 Oliver Street, Oak Bay, was received on the phones, and has made the following comment: "An excellent mandolin solo and carried very well, and the same being received very clear and distinct. We sincerely hope to hear you again some time in the near future."

To Attend Convention—Messrs. C. F. L. Money and George J. Gardiner leave the city today to attend the annual convention of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association, which takes place in Winnipeg from Monday, September 15, to Friday, September 19. They will represent the local branch of the unit at the gathering. They received their instructions at the regular business meeting of the organization, which was held last night in the club quarters, Fort Street.

Strawberry Vale Guides—With the object of starting a corps of Girl Guides, the Women's Institute of Strawberry Vale is holding an organization meeting on Friday in the Institute rooms on Roy Avenue, at 8 o'clock. Parents and friends who are interested in this movement are cordially invited to attend this meeting, when the objects will be set forth and plans made for an early start. Girls from eight years old are eligible for enrolment. Mrs. Tyrrell

Godman will speak on the Guide movement.

Bodies Join in Wire—It is now understood that telegrams were sent by other ex-service men's bodies, the Chamber of Commerce, and other bodies in addition to the Great War Veterans' Association to the recent American Legion conference at Walla Walla, and it was doubtless due to the combined weight of all these bodies backing up the Port Angeles convention that had the desired effect of bringing the gathering to that place in 1924. This is an excellent example of what can be accomplished by a little co-operation, as Victoria will, it is expected, benefit very considerably by the convention being held at an adjacent city.

Dismissed Charge—In the Saanich Police Court yesterday afternoon a charge laid against Mr. McAdie of dangerous driving of an auto was dismissed by Magistrate Jay. The information had been laid at the instance of Mr. Boyd, who claimed that he had been crowded onto the side of the road by the car of the accused, who was attempting to pass him while he was riding a bicycle. The occupants of the car, which the accused was driving at the time, testified that the passing took place in proper style, and that the bicycle came up to pass the auto on the wrong side. The magistrate felt there was no evidence of improper or dangerous driving on the part of the accused and dismissed the charge.

Sells Three More Lots—Three more parcels of land were disposed of yesterday morning at the adjourned session of the 1924 Oak Bay tax sale, which was supervised by the collector of taxes, Mr. R. E. Blandy, municipal clerk of Oak Bay. Ninety-eight parcels were offered for sale at this year's auction, including three with small buildings thereon. Eight of the lots were sold at the sale, which was officially ended yesterday by Clerk Blandy. Persons wishing to purchase land which has reverted to the municipality still have the opportunity of writing to the municipal clerk, which, however, may use its discretion as to whether or not the land will be sold for the price that the prospective purchaser offers to pay.

To Leave for Canada

LADY DRUMMOND

A CABLE from London stated that Lady Drummond will sail for Canada on the 15th.

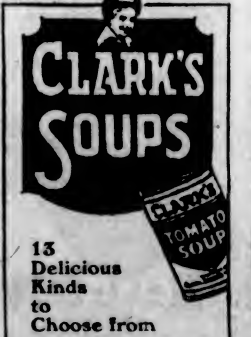

The governments of thirteen countries have decided that it is more important to have their foreign ministers at Geneva following the discussions on obligatory arbitration, security and disarmament than to have them stay at home and conduct the general routine of foreign affairs.

Hardest Kind of Committee Work

Three thirteen ministers are sitting modestly, side by side, engaged in the hardest kind of committee work in stilling committee rooms, trying to lend a helping hand in the effort to put peace in Europe on a solid foundation. There is no excessive personal dignity in Geneva these days, for almost everybody here for the League sessions is either great or near great. In addition to the foreign ministers there are nine ministers who hold other portfolios for the governments of various countries, and some thirty or forty statesmen who have been premiers or foreign ministers during their careers.

The Council of the League yesterday approved the report of its economic committee, which had made proposals to serve as the basis of a conference for revision of the industrial property convention, of which the object is the suppressing of unfair commercial competition. It also decided to continue the study of the South American proposals regarding guarantees for foreign buyers against worthless goods.

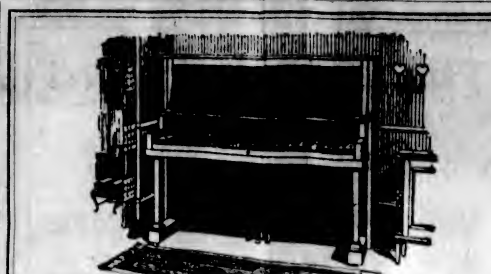

The Ministers of Labor of Great Britain, France, Belgium and Germany, after discussing the Washington 48-hour week convention, issued a communique, declaring: "There was a general impression that it will be possible to bring about common ratification of the Washington Convention."

Don't let constipation make you an invalid

—relieve it with Kellogg's Bran

Few people realize how dangerous constipation until this dread disease tears down their health. Did you know that more than forty serious diseases can be traced to constipation? Keep your health, or restore it, with Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumpled. It brings relief in mild and chronic cases of constipation. It is effective because it is ALL bran. That is why it is recommended so highly by doctors. They know that only ALL bran can bring 100 per cent results. Part bran is, at best, only a halfway measure. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran will bring permanent relief—even in the most chronic case. It is guaranteed to do so. If it fails, your grocer will return your money.

Because it is ALL bran it sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. Like nature, it acts naturally. It makes the intestine function regularly.

Eat it every day—two tablespoons—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Enjoy it in those wonderful recipes given on every package.

The flavor of Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumpled, is delicious. It is crisp, nut-like. Quite different from ordinary bran, which is so unpalatable. Kellogg's Bran is made in Toronto, Canada and served by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. Sold by all grocers.

DEWDNEY IS STILL CONSERVATIVECOURT SUSTAINS ELECTION OF MR. J. A. CATHERWOODMajority of Members Has Been Secured by a Few Votes—Judges' Opinions Differ

The election of Mr. J. A. Catherwood, Conservative candidate for the Dewdney riding in the late Provincial election, has been confirmed by the court of appeal. The members of the court differed on points as to what constituted ballots that should be counted, but all reached the same decision in the final analysis yesterday, that Mr. Catherwood and not Mr. Maxwell Smith, the Liberal candidate, was entitled to the seat. The majority was not figured out exactly owing to a difference in the count among members of the bar represented at the hearing, but the difference was only one or two votes in any event and not enough to alter the decision as to who was entitled to sit for the riding.

After taking all the other ballots into account over which there was any dispute, the court decided the two classes of ballots that came under the heads of those having the white counterfoil attached and those of absentee voters on which the stamp of the returning officer where the ballots were cast were not placed on the flap of the containing envelope.

Judges Disagree
Chief Justice Hunter at the conclusion of the sitting yesterday forenoon said that he was of the opinion that the ballots that had the counterfoil attached should not be counted. The opinion of the other two members of the court, Mr. Justice Martin and Mr. Justice McPhillips, was that these were good ballots. On the other hand, Mr. Justice Magin was of the opinion that the ballots of absentees where the stamp on the flap of the envelope was missing were ballots that should be rejected, while he and Mr. Justice McPhillips were of the opinion that these were good ballots.

Taking into account the figures as he then had them, the Chief Justice said that his conclusion would be that Mr. Catherwood was elected by a majority of 5. Mr. Justice Martin said he put the majority at 1; and Mr. Justice McPhillips would put the majority at 11.

The figures of Mr. W. J. Taylor, K.C., and Mr. J. W. Dell, F.R.S., to the figures differed a little from those of the Chief Justice, intimating that the matter of the stamp might not affect the situation. The figures of the registrar of the court gave the majority at 10.

Majority of Six
Under the class of ballots that had the counterfoil attached Mr. Catherwood had six of a majority against him, while with respect to the absentee votes that were under dispute he had a majority in his favor.

Just before the proceedings closed, Mr. R. H. Pooley submitted to the court three ballots that had been looked up to that time. These were very long ones, in which the names had been written on the top and the whole length of the ballot left. It was urged that there could be no question as to the identity of the voter being revealed in these three ballots. In view of the fact that the decision on the point could not affect the size of the majority, the court was allowed to drop.

The court announced that when judgments on the points raised would later be handed down.

DRAMATICALLY RETIRES FROM COURT HEARINGMr. J. A. Alkman Refuses to Go On With Case When Specific Question Is Not Given

Failing to have a declaration as to the specific issue about which the charge hung, Mr. J. A. Alkman dramatically withdrew from the case in which he was appearing as counsel yesterday, and left the court. The charge was one against Mrs. E. Hild of injuring a tree on the property of another.

When the case was called, Mr. Alkman wanted information as to what tree was referred to in the charge. He insisted that he must be given exact information as to the alleged crime setting out some specific tree. Mr. C. J. Prior, for the prosecution, said there were a number of trees, including a maple, a chestnut, and several others. When the evidence was produced the fullest information would be given.

Mr. Alkman's appeal for exact information as to the specific tree intended to be covered by the charge not being allowed, he said if he could not get this information and for the court could go on without him, and he accordingly withdrew from the court.

The situation was explained to Mrs. Hild, who was asked if she wished an adjournment in order to consult other counsel.

After consultation it was decided to adjourn the case until Friday, so that the accused might decide what action she should take.

DANGEROUS DRIVING DRAWS FINE OF $75

Altering a plea from one of not guilty to one of guilty in connection with the charge of dangerous driving, Gordon T. Hunt was fined $75 in the police court yesterday morning. Mr. C. J. Courtenay, who appeared for the accused, said at the opening of the court that he wished to alter the plea and accordingly was allowed to do so.

Sergeant Boulton, of the city police force, outlined the circumstances connected with the affair. He told of going to the neighborhood of the Dallas Hotel on Monday evening about 9:50. The accused was free of the car and not very much hurt, and two others had minor injuries.

While the parties were in court there was evidence of drinking. There was a sharp turn in the street then and the car had run off the pavement.

Magistrate Jay said that he felt that the accused had been driving recklessly and accordingly fined him $75.

Making wash day pleasant—

Just use Rinso where you used to use bar soap—for soaking, boiling, or in your washing machine.

THE hardest part of wash-day, rubbing, rubbing, rubbing, has given way to the new method of soaking the clothes clean with Rinso. This wonderful new soap gently loosens the dirt and a thorough rinsing leaves things white and glistening as you never could get them before.

Only spots where the dirt is ground-in, such as neck bands, cuff edges, and the like need a light rubbing, and a little dry Rinso rubbed on these spots quickly makes the dirt disappear.

Rinso is sold by all grocers and department stores

Tilden and Patterson Lead Off in Singles

Australian Davis Cup Team Starts Challenge Round Against United States Holders—Interest Added by Replacement of Johnston by Richards in Singles—"Little Bill" Will Play in Doubles

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—Tennis rivalry of twenty years' standing will find an outlet tomorrow on the courts of the Germantown Cricket Club, when the United States, holders of the Davis Cup, emblematic of the international championship, will defend the famous trophy against the Australian team in the challenge round. Since 1905, eleven Davis Cup contests, since this country won the trophy back from Australia in 1920, the latter has been visiting here each year in quest of it. This year, the Australians reached the finals, after winning from all teams in their section, and by a triumph last week over France, survivor in the European section of play.

Last Hour Switch
The last hour switch in the personnel of the American playing team added interest to the matches tomorrow. The replacement in the singles of William T. Johnston, California veteran, who, with William T. Tilden, brought back the cup in 1920, has injected a new element into the play. Vincent Richards, youthful New Yorker and winner of this year's Olympic singles championship, stepping into the place of Johnston, was drawn today at the meeting here to meet Pat O'Hara Wood, of Australia, in the second of the two singles matches in the opening day's play. Tilden, national champion for five years and hero of numerous Davis Cup competitions, will open the play against Gerald Patterson, outstanding player of the challengers, at 2:30 p.m. The Richards-O'Hara Wood contest will follow immediately the completion of this match. Johnston will pair with Tilden against Patterson and Wood in the doubles. Friday, members of both teams went through major workouts at Germantown today.

FIRPO AND WILLS READY FOR GONG

HEAVYWEIGHT BRUISERS WILL MIX IT TONIGHT

Thousands of Dollars Rolling Into Promoter's Cash Box on Eve of Big Scrap at Jersey

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The Wild Bull, primed for his mighty charge, and the Brown Panther, crouched for his spring, are ready for the call that will send them into action tomorrow night. These gladiators, fierce rivals and leading aspirants for the title honor—Luis Angel Firpo, pride of the Argentine, and Harry Wills, greatest of present-day negro heavyweights—will match their status and punching powers in the outstanding ring battle of the year. They are matched for twelve rounds in Boyle's Thirty Acres bowl in Jersey City, where Firpo halted last year the come-back of Jess Willard, and where many a spectacular ring drama has been enacted by the line the gladiators drew first was the scene of the historic Dempsey-Carpenter fray three years ago.

Firpo a Favorite
The eve of the fight, which has attracted scarcely less interest than a majority of the critics believe, would carry him to triumph over the superior defensive skill and greater experience of Wills. Based on these views, many large wagers were reported, with the South American slightly the favorite, yet the giant negro was not lacking in financial support and even money may prevail by the time the gladiators climb into the ring tomorrow night.

The night programme, which includes five other bouts, is scheduled to start at 8:15. Eastern daylight saves the fight from being called off at 10 o'clock, but promoter Tex Rickard announced tonight that, if rain threatens during the programme, he will put it off immediately and with regard for the rest of the card so as to avoid possible interference. In the event rain blocks the entire show, it will be staged Friday night.

The advance seat sale, which boomed today in spite of the eleventh hour efforts of those who have been seeking the deportation of Firpo, passed the $400,000 mark, according to Rickard. The promoter admitted that legal entanglements loomed in the way of the bout within the past few weeks had exerted adverse financial effect, but predicted that between $50,000 and 70,000 would pay close to $300,000 to see the bout. This figure would establish a new record for a non-championship match.

International Polo Schedule Rearranged On Account of Rain

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Complete rearrangement of polo schedule of polo games between teams representing Great Britain and the United States was announced by the United States Polo Association today, because of rain, which previously had caused three postponements of the opening game.

The series, which was to have started last Saturday, will begin this Saturday, a second game being played Tuesday and the third and last the following Saturday.

Navy Rugby Team Holds First Workout

When the Rugby season gets into full swing the Navy will be right on the job this year. Last night they held their first workout at the Canteen ground, and judging from the fine turnout and the good material on the ground the Navy fifteen will be making a real bid for the honors this season.

Twenty-eight players were on the field last night and went through a hard workout for about an hour and a half. Eight or ten of last year's men are back and there is a lot of good young blood for the making of a strong fifteen.

SANTORINI RUNS SECOND IN FIELD OF SEVENTEEN

H. S. Aga Khan Scores Second Victory of Season in Classic Races of the English Turf

LONDON, Sept. 10.—H. S. Aga Khan this afternoon scored his second victory this season in the classics for three-year-olds when his bay colt Salmon Trout, by The Tetrarch, won the St. Leger stakes, one mile, six furlongs and 123 yards, at Doncaster. Santorini, a brown colt owned by A. B. Walker, finished second, with the favorite, Sol Jole's Polyphontes, third. Seventeen ran, Salmon Trout went to the post at odds of 6 to 1 against. Santorini 4 to 1 against, and Polyphontes, the favorite, at 100 to 30 against.

A Good Start
The big field got off to a fine start. Arcade went out in front quickly, but gave way to Hurrey Belle, the pair being followed by Eagle Stone, San- war Gold, Irismond, Polyphontes and Zodiac, with Salmon Trout just behind Santorini, the whipper-in.

Salmon Trout, the bay colt, was in the lead at the first half mile, when Eagle Stone forced the pace and got clear of Hurrey Belle, Arcade, Polyphontes and Santorini, the whipper-in, being being Salmon Trout. At the half mile mark Polyphontes was in third place, and there were no further changes until on entering the straight Polyphontes shot out in front. The favorite was hotly pursued by Santorini, Walford, Transvaal, Irismond, Cape Horn and Salmon Trout. A quarter of a mile from home Santorini, with half a length separating Santorini and Polyphontes for second and third places. Obiter was an outsider.

BIG SENSATION IN LOCAL BALL

PRESS TAKES A HAND TO BOOST THE GAME

Hasbena and Noyette's Victoria's Journalistic Baseball Experts
Will Clash on Diamond

Interest in local baseball having apparently lapsed somewhat, the press of the city has decided to exercise its acknowledged power to put "pep" into the game. Right at the start perhaps it would be better to explain that our cricket expert has been appointed press agent for the publicity on the event, which has been arranged to put the fans on edge again. He is well posted in everything but the facts, and the first advance notice which he has turned in on the subject is as follows:

Some time or other, probably next week, arrangements have been made for a baseball game between the two editorial staffs of the local daily newspapers of this city. The Times sent a challenge to The Colonist, averring that they had nine or ten good men and true who could put it over the Colonist Gw when it came to playing on the diamond pitch. The Colonist immediately replied that they had ten or eleven better men who were ready, any ready, to chase the Times pill swallowers all round the sand lots until they reached home.

Managers Interviewed
The Times have not yet published their line-up but their manager, whoever he is, asserted last night that he was confident that his team would win this match, and they would then send a challenge to the Hammond Cedars. They have nine dark horses who are expected to create a sensation when they start eating the old apple.

The Colonist has such a fine aggregation of all-stars that Manager Vic Gravin said last night he was confident that his team would cop the pendant, and that they would then send a deft to the Hammond Cedars. He was busy signing on his players last night when interviewed by a Colonist representative.

"Yes," he said, "I think I have gathered together the best lot of news-gathering ball-tossers in the city. Why, to start with I'll be on the mountain myself and I'd like to see the Times reporter who could hit my mean ball. No sir, there will be positively no passes issued this game, not by me at any rate."

The Line Out

"Want my line-up? Well, how's this for a winning bunch: Vic Gravin, pitcher (and Manager); Benny Bendroff, catcher (he's a good tackler at rugby so surely he can catch); C. "Bisley" Shaw, first base (nothing ever passes him, he's the news editor); Jerry Eberst, second (he's a "gem" with one hand at any height); John Hickey, short (he's a better full-back, but he'll do alright at short); Percy Richards, third (Percy has not shown at his best so far this season, but he's in better company now, so watch him go); Harold McDonald, Bombardier Thomas and "Hansy" Hawkins will be in the field (Mac's the well-known ice hockey expert who plays baseball as well as he does hockey, the Bombardier has a wonderful leg; he always hits the target, and as for "Hansy" why he's the Circulation Manager so he ought to know how to cover the field).

"Then as a relief hurler we have

O. H. Nelson, who never sees a signal, but never makes a bull, and with P. C. Rawling, as coach (you know his command of language) and Lawrence Johnston for mascot (hurray for the pop and peanuts), why we sure have an unbeatable aggregation of base stealers."

Soccer Notes

A. B. Brown

Villa and Newcastle Draw

The outstanding event in English League soccer Saturday was the drawn game between Aston Villa and Newcastle United at Birmingham. No defence on either side held the upper hand, with the result that the score-sheet was blank at the finish.

One can readily imagine the strenuous nature of such a match between two of the best teams in British soccer. Newcastle's three league games up to Saturday have resulted in two draws and one defeat, while the Villa has also drawn two and won one.

Londoners Do Well
The three First Division teams in the London district are doing well, and evidently intend to improve on last year's showing. On the opening day all were winners. In midweek Tottenham beat Birmingham (away) and The Arsenal won at home against Manchester City.

Last Saturday's returns gave wins to The Arsenal at Highbury against Liverpool; to West Ham United at Blackburn, while Tottenham drew with the County at Nottingham.

At this rate of progress the Metropolitan teams will soon be thinking of championship.

The Arsenal, indeed, has gained six points in their three games, and kept their goal intact.

Ruddersfield Win Again
The league champions opened their home card with a 2-1 win over the United from Sheffield, which marked Ruddersfield's second victory this season and the second reverse for the Bramall Lane men.

Everton and Liverpool are so far running on different tracks. The Goodison Park team has opened with two victories—against Birmingham and West Bromwich—whereas the Anfield men have lost their first two matches—to Aston Villa and The Arsenal.

Lancashire Had Even Break
The eight Lancashire teams split even on the afternoon's football. Three eleven won their games, three lost, and two ended in draws.

Perhaps the most noteworthy on the list was the three-goal each draw at Bolton, where Bury shared the spoils. This was the second 3-3 game that the "Shakers" took part in last week, the other being on the Villa ground.

Burnley mastered their old rivals at Preston, where they won, 3-0. Curiously enough, the only other case where an away team won was also in Lancashire, as West Ham United beat the Rovers at Blackburn.

Heavy Scoring
Apart from the six goals at Bolton, there were other games where scoring was heavy. Sunderland, at home, beat Birmingham by 4-0. In midweek Sunderland won, 3-0, from Preston North End, which is certainly good going for the Rother Park men. North End, by the way, has opened their card with three defeats, 0-1, 0-2 and 0-3.

Manchester City and Notts Forest had a lively game Saturday, wherein six goals were scored. The City won, 4-2.

Cardiff City secured their first win after two drawn games. The Welsh club shared the points with Burnley and Sheffield United, and then gave Leeds United a 1-0 reverse, the second in a week, as they were beaten 1-0 by Notts County.

Chelsea Surprise Oldham
Chelsea had a curious experience in their two Second Division games last week. On Monday the "Pensioners" were at Leicester, where the City won by 4-0. Saturday's schedule sent Chelsea to Oldham, where prospects of a win were very doubtful, but the London men won by 6-0. This was the biggest score in the division for the afternoon, and also the most surprising result. If we except the success of Port Vale at Barnsley by 3-1. The Yorkshire folks must have received a shock from the Staffordshire crew.

Wolverhampton's team opened their home fixtures with a win over Bradford City. On Monday the Wanderers drew at Barnsley, where Port Vale won and yet the "Wolves" beat the Vale two days earlier. Form is peculiar.

Close Fight at Portsmouth
The important game in the South ended in a draw between Portsmouth and Derby County. Still, so far, the newly promoted club has done well for a start—three points out of a possible four.

Southampton has made an indifferent start—three games played, two lost, one drawn and no goals scored. There should be lively times along the South Coast when Southampton and Portsmouth meet for the first time in a Second Division match.

Middlesbrough survived their visit to Leicester, where the result was a no-scoring draw. With so many clubs on the hunt for promotion, it will be a big proposition for the "Boro" to get back to the premier section.

Southern Sidelights
Saturday's matches in the Third Division, Southern Section, produced results of more than passing interest. The big event at Brighton was drawn, Millwall sharing the points in a three-goal each contest. Both clubs should be well in the running for honors this season.

Plymouth Argyle enjoyed a goal feat at the expense of Brentford, who were beaten by 7-1. The Argyle has rarely been closer to the top, hence the surprise created in their Saturday's performance. Their two previous games yielded them only one goal.

Welsh Clubs Fall
The Welsh Clubs in the Southern Section had a bad time Saturday. Swansea Town was beaten 2-0 at Reading; Aberdare went under, 2-0 at Swindon; Merthyr lost 1-0 at home to Exeter City; and Newport County was defeated 1-0 by Charlton Athletic.

Exeter City was only a moderate side last season, but the team has made a good start this campaign with three wins each by 1-0 over Reading, Bristol City and Merthyr, the last two being "away" matches.

Goals Score in North
The scoring was on a moderate scale in the Northern Section Saturday. More than half the teams failed to obtain a goal. Nelson, however, had a pronounced victory, by 4-0 over Ashington.

Grimby Town was the only team to win away from home. The "Fishermen" beat Bradford by 1-0. On the opening day Grimby was beaten at home by Darlington, but Monday the tide won against Hartlepool.

Darlington is doing good work—three times winners over Grimby, New Brighton and Hartlepool.

Rochdale won easily, 3-0, against Wigan Borough, and will again make a bold bid for promotion. The club did splendid last season.

The Real Celtic
Interest in the Scottish League this season has early centred around the doings of the Celtic. In their first game they drew, no scoring, at Dundee. A few days later another draw was registered, this time against Partick Thistle. Still another divide followed in their tussle with the Airdrieonians.

The spell was broken, however, when the Celts went to Falkirk and won, 2-1. But last Saturday a bombshell was thrown into the Aberdeen camp when the Glasgow men went North and won 4-0. Perhaps the old champions will stage a big comeback this season.

There were other "away" winners on Saturday afternoon. Airdrieonians gained full points at Kilmarnock, with a 2-2 score; and Hibernians were in Perth and won, also by 2-2, against St. Johnstone.

Hearts' Come Back
The Hearts re-established themselves in the good graces of their Tyneside supporters. Following their 4-0 defeat at Dundee, the Edinburgh men beat Morton 5-1 on Saturday. The Greenock Club's defence evidently needs stiffening, as eleven goals have been lost in two games.

St. Mirren Improve
St. Mirren, after losing to Airdrieonians, Queen's Park, and Hamilton Academical, turned the corner on Saturday by winning against Dundee.

Ayr United did well in drawing at Motherwell.

Rath Rovers gained their first win for the season by a victory over Falkirk.

Partick Thistle easily defeated Hamilton Academical by 2-0, and thus made up for their failure last season when the Airdrie won at Firhill Park.

Glasgow Cup Ties
The first round in the Glasgow Cup Ties brought out the same score in both games. Rangers (holders) beat Clyde, 1-0, at Shawfield, while the Queen's went under to Third Lanark at Hampden.

The next round will be played September 20, between Third Lanark and Celtic, and Rangers and Partick Thistle.

LAWN BOWLING FIXTURES

CALGARIANS BEATEN AGAIN ON MAINLAND

Hammond Cedars Win Third Straight Game in Championship Series
 —Score Nine to Nil

VANCOUVER, Sept. 10.—Eddie Olson, star pitcher of the Hammond-Cedars baseball team, tonight for the third time, put it all over the Calgary Athletics, and won the game for his team, with a score of 9 to 0. Hammond had the edge all the way tonight in a game that was productive of some snappy baseball, despite the one-sided count. Eddie Olson had the enemy calling out of his right hand all evening, and only two singles were garnered off his delivery, one a measly scratch hit. Just by way of showing his class as a moundman, he retired seventeen of the enemy by the strike-out route.

Only two Alberta boys saw second base during the evening, and not one got acquainted with the third sack. Olson wound up a most brilliant season in a blaze of glory, and had the visitors mystified by his curves, change of pace and fast ball.

Despite the whitewash, the Calgary team looked better than in any of the three games. They were smart in the field, and Lucas at times exhibited a lot of stuff, but simply could not stop the Cedars with men on bases. The Hammond never made their hits count to better advantage than tonight, as nearly every bingle was timely.

CHEMAMINUS TENNIS CLUB

CHEMAMINUS, Sept. 11.—The Chemaminus Community Tennis Club played a match against the Ladysmith Tennis Club on the excellent new courts of the latter club on Sunday. The Chemaminus party made the trip in Messrs. Halliday & Son's launch, the Mildred B., and a good afternoon's sport was enjoyed. The match was keenly contested, Ladysmith finally winning by a small margin.

The scores were as follows: Men's doubles, Ladysmith 61, Chemaminus 79; men's singles, Ladysmith 3, Chemaminus 5; mixed doubles, Ladysmith 32, Chemaminus 13; ladies' doubles, Ladysmith 14, Chemaminus 6; totals, Ladysmith 110, Chemaminus 102.

Chemaminus was represented by Mrs. Pittchard, Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Jarrett, and Messrs. Ross, Wilson, Stubbs, Craig, Brown, Jarrett, Hiltip and A. Howe.

The Ladysmith team consisted of Mrs. Morrison, Mrs. Ross, Miss Hill and Messrs. Morrison, Clark, Rogers, Fagan, Barratt, Thomas and O'Shea.

The comfort of the new clubhouse was much appreciated, as was also the excellent tea provided by the Ladysmith ladies.

MARY GROWS UP AGAIN; HADDON HALL PLAY

Miss Pickford Appears in Popular Role at Dominion Theatre—More Beautiful Than Ever

In "Rosita," Mary Pickford appears as a grown-up young woman, with the famous curls held in place by a laurel comb, and her admirers immediately accepted her with the same enthusiasm as they did when she was a child on the screen. As the street singer of Seattle, Mary portrayed a characterization totally different from anything she has ever done in the past.

In "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," the United Artists release coming to the Dominion Theatre next Monday, Miss Pickford again appears as a grown woman, but instead of the rags of the street, she wears gorgeous clothes against a background of beautiful settings, and is a fashionable lady of Elizabethan England. It is a real test of the versatility of this star, and she rises to greater histrionic heights than at any time during the past. The part of Dorothy Vernon calls for the utmost in dramatic acting, with expressions varying from the comedy for which Miss Pickford is famous to extremely dramatic moments, one of which shows what happens when she realizes that in her haste she has caused an order to be given for the death of her lover.

As Dorothy Vernon, Mary Pickford appears more beautiful than ever and the vivacious and willful little lady of Haddon Hall will be the heroine of those who see the picture, just as in it she wins the picture of Sir John Manners.

PLAYHOUSE Bulzac was either THEATRE very far ahead of his time or else the world has improved in wickedness. There would be considerable doubt as to the polite social circles now, if during dinner, the debutantes arose from the table and indulged in three-legged races. Yet Bulzac describes every scene in "The Magic Skin," his favorite story, which is now showing at the Playhouse Theatre, under the film title of "Slave of Desire."

It tells of several pairs of young girls, who at a formal dinner, tie their ankles together and attempt to race the length of the room for a piece of jewelry, which is the prize.

DOMINION is Norma Shearer, THEATRE Canadian, travelling the same road as her illustrious countrywoman, Mary Pickford? It would appear so, judging from the quality of her work in recent pictures, the similarity of which she has forged to the front and the opinion of her fellow players. Hardly known in Hollywood a year and a half ago, she has since then been recently in several outstanding successes. Now she appears in support of Jack Holt in "Empty Hands," now showing at the Dominion Theatre.

The story is an adaptation of the Arthur Stringer novel by Carey Wilson and will be produced by Victor Fleming. It presents a contrast, the modern social whirl of the city and the stark reality of untamed life in the wilderness. The wilderness shots were filmed in Northern Canada and give Miss Shearer every opportunity to display her prowess as a champion all-round athlete and former member of the Montreal A. A. A. Montreal was her birthplace and she is remembered there as one of the best known exhibition swimmers and divers in Canada.

Tonight at the Dominion Theatre the Dominion Symphony Orchestra will render its unusual Thursday evening concert in conjunction with the picture presentation. Among the many favorites to be played tonight will be: "Orpheus Overture," by Offenbach; selection, "Sweethearts," by Victor Herbert; nocturne, "Kiss me," and fox trot, "Burning Rands," and "Somewhere in the World."

PANTAGES A trained rooster is a THEATRE problem in pictures. Witness the large and exceedingly well educated fowl who support Baby Peggy in "The Law Forbids," her second big Universal Jewel starring vehicle, now appearing at the Pantages Theatre. The rooster was just a comedy touch in a dramatic story of infatuation and divorce. But it took two trainers almost a month to educate the big bird to wear overalls and his clever tricks. The new picture is enacted by a big cast of standard artists, including Robert Ellis, Elinor Fair, William Walsh, Winifred Bryson, Hayden Stephenson, James Corrigan, Joseph Dowling, Anna Hernandez and others.

In addition to the usual dancing there will be a number of specialty turns which, rumor has it, will be themselves no small part of the evening's entertainment.

MIX AND TONY IN RACE OVER TRESTLE AHEAD OF ENGINE

Of his many deeds of daring, few equal in recklessness the latest performance of Tom Mix in his new Fox picture, "The Trouble Shooter," which comes to the Columbia Theatre for three days commencing today.

Riding into the mountains to make repairs on wires, ripped down by a terrific storm, Mix, playing the role of a repair man, rides his remarkable little horse, Tony, across a narrow, swaying trestle directly ahead of a speeding train. The scene is one of the most thrilling Mix ever made, and it was only after considerable persuasion that he urged Tony to the task.

Again in a ride through a blinding snowstorm, Mix teaches the indomitable little horse to wear snowshoes. Between these two of them, there are more unique stunts of novel daring than even Mix and Tony ever attempted before.

In the cast with Mix are such notable players as Kathleen Key, Dolores Houma, Mike Donahue, former big league ball player; Charles McHugh, Al Preemont, Frank Currier, Earl Fox, J. Gunnis Davis and Howard Truesdale. The original story was written by Frederick and Fanny Hatten, after an exhaustive investigation into the work of the "trouble maker" in the mountain country of the Far West.

ACTOR WITH REAL CONTAGIOUS SMILE DISCOVERED BY FOX

The advice of the popular song, "Learn to Smile," was originally meant for someone with the "Blues." Young women and men who yearn to be motion picture stars, however, can profit by heeding the advice of the song.

The rarest thing in motion pictures is a smile that "gets over." For this reason, it is the most valuable asset an actor or actress can possess.

William Fox discovered George O'Brien in the title role in the film version of Jules Eckert Goodman's stage success, "The Man Who Came Back." Here is a young man who will make the smiles of all his contemporaries fade into insignificance. He has a smile. And it "gets over" to the audience with an irresistible appeal. To see George O'Brien is to love him. "The Man Who Came Back" comes to the Capitol Theatre next week.

REVIEWS WORK OF UNION CONVENTION

MUNICIPAL CLERK BLANDY TELLS OF SESSIONS

A comprehensive report of the activities of the annual meeting of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, which was held recently at Penitence and attended by ninety-two delegates from forty-six municipalities, has been given to the Oak Bay Council by Municipal Clerk Robert E. Blandy, who was present at that convention as Oak Bay's delegate, and also represented the district at the yearly conference of the Municipal Officers' Association, at which he was appointed on the executive of the association.

Municipal Clerk Blandy states that one hundred and one resolutions were presented at the convention by various municipalities, including no less than eighteen dealing with educational organization and finance. Those were consolidated into one resolution, which reads as follows:

"We, the Union of B.C. Municipalities, assembled here in convention at Penitence, wish to express our appreciation to the Government of the Province of British Columbia for its appointment of the Special Educational Survey Commission. At the same time, we earnestly implore the Government to fully consider the very serious condition of the municipalities of the Province—caused by the heavy cost of education on real property, the ever increasing cost of education will mean that more and more property will revert year by year to the municipalities.

"We therefore pray that the Government of the Province will consider the proposal to entirely take over the cost of this service and relieve the municipalities of this burden. If this proposal is adopted the municipalities will forego the revenue now received from the Government liquor and pari-mutuel profits and grants.

Special Income Tax

"If the Government, after serious consideration, decides that it cannot accede to our request, we desire the Government to consider the levying of a special income tax on the basis of all persons in receipt of an income.

"We further recommend that the union appoint a special committee to appear before the Educational Survey Commission and the Provincial Government executive, and that each council in the Province be requested to pass resolutions asking the Provincial Legislature to assent in carrying into effect this resolution."

POLITICAL SAW-OFF ARRANGEMENT DENIED

Conservative Organizer for Dominion Says Such a Plan Would Be Rejected

Hon. William Sloan, Minister of Mines, interviewed in Vancouver yesterday, said he had heard nothing of the reported probability of Hon. E. D. Barrow, Minister of Agriculture, resigning on account of ill-health, Mr. Barrow did not return to Victoria yesterday.

Relative to a suggested "saw-off" arrangement whereby the Conservative party would allow Dr. K. C. Macdonald, recently appointed Provincial Secretary, an election by acclamation in North Okanagan, in return for a Liberal "hand-off-policy" in connection with the approaching Federal by-election at Yale, Hon. Mr. Sloan was of the opinion that strenuous objection would be forthcoming from Liberals from the Federal point of view. Hon. Dr. S. P. Tomin, Federal Conservative organizer, who was also asked for an opinion, said there was "nothing doing," and that if such a proposal were made it would receive immediate rejection from the Conservatives.

DEAN WILL SPEAK AT MEMORIAL HALL

The first public lecture to be given in the new Cathedral Memorial Hall will be delivered tonight by the Very Rev. Dean Quinlan, who is announced to speak on "Recent Impressions of England." The Dean, who returned to the city last week from a five months' stay in England, is well known as an able and interesting lecturer, and a number of people will doubtless be glad of the opportunity of attending the lecture and also of seeing the large auditorium in the new Memorial Hall building.

The auditorium has been furnished with four hundred opera seats, and it has good acoustic properties. Good progress has been made with the furnishing of other parts of the new building. The chapel, the gymnasium, and the classrooms are practically complete, while it is hoped that the recreation hall will be ready for use in the course of a week or so. No charge will be made for admission to tonight's lecture, which will begin at 8 o'clock. Those who attend should enter the building from the main doors at the corner of Vancouver and Courtney Streets. To help to defray the cost of completing the furnishing of the Memorial Hall, a collection will be taken at the conclusion of the lecture.

It was the men who asked for a board. On the last occasion, 1920, the late Judge Gunn, of Ottawa, who was chairman, awarded the men a flat increase of $5 a week, basing his findings on the increased cost of living, the following being an extract from his award:

"The request or demand of the employees for increased rates of pay is based mainly, if not entirely, on the well-known ground of increased cost of living expenses during the past year and still existing, which, will continue."

Offered to Arbitrate

The company, therefore, bases its contention on the reduced cost of living, and on the general economic situation in Canada, which has resulted in the reduction of wages in similar categories of labor during the past four years, and in the serious impairment of revenue of all Canadian daily newspapers, members of the Canadian Press, their co-operative news-gathering association. The company offered to arbitrate the entire dispute, that is to say, the men's proposals as well as its own, under the arbitration clause referred to above. This the men's committee definitely refused. The company then proposed to submit the whole dispute to a board of conciliation under the Department of Labor. Mr. Schurr, the international vice-president, declined absolutely to go before a board of conciliation. He offered arbitration if the issues were confined to the present wage scale and the men's demand for an increased scale, leaving out entirely the company's submission of a decrease. On the company refusing this proposition as being entirely one-sided, and still urging a board of conciliation, Mr. Schurr said he must take a vote to enforce the men's demands for an increase, and this has been done with the result given above. The company is still willing to arbitrate this dispute, for which purpose it has made application to the Department of Labor at Ottawa for a board of conciliation.

Victoria Yard to Get $25,000 Job On Steamer Amur

Captain Berquist Buys Former Ore Carrier, Which Was Wrecked Last Winter—Installing New Engines—Thirty-Six Plates Damaged—Calling Tenders for Repairs—Will Be Called Famous

BIGGEST JOB BROUGHT TO THIS CITY FOR THIS YEAR

THE biggest repair job that has come to local yards so far this year will be commenced shortly, it was announced here last night. Captain Berquist, who lost his tug Trebia off Saanichton some six months ago by fire, has bought the former ore carrier Amur, which was salvaged from Brodie Rock last winter by the Pacific Salvage Company, and will fit her up as a coasting freighter.

Tenders are being called now for the repairs to the vessel, which have been necessitated by her grounding on Brodie Rock, between Prince Rupert and the Skeena River, last winter.

Some thirty-six plates were damaged and the keel broken and bent amidships by the grounding. It is estimated that some twelve new plates will be needed while the remainder will have to be taken off and straightened out again. The entire job will cost about $25,000, not to mention the installation of a new engine.

The new engines Following the wreck and salvaging, by the former salvage boat Algonquin, the owners of the Amur bought the intercoastal freighter, J. H. Plummer. They took the engines out of the Plummer and replaced them with those that were in the Amur.

Later they sold the vessel, without her engines, to Captain Berquist, who was in need of a freighter, following the loss of his tug Trebia by fire.

The Amur is now tied alongside the Victoria Machinery Depot, near where her engines will be installed. Captain Berquist will install his own engines, which are of the triple expansion reciprocating type, built by Ropners, England. The engines will be dropped in first and repairs effected afterwards. One of the local yards will get the contract for the repairs.

When completed the vessel will be operated in the freighting business out of Vancouver and Victoria. She will have a speed of between twelve and thirteen knots an hour and a carrying capacity of 1,000 tons. The Amur is a considerable improvement over the Trebia, which was a combined tug and freighter and was of wooden hull. The Amur is a steel steamer.

Will Be Renamed This contract, with the probable repairs of the Tatjana here, will make a record year for local yards. Already the business this year shows a big increase during the first three months of the year. The Equilmait drydock also is experiencing a busy year as a result of the number of vessels coming here for repairs. The Amur, however, will not be drydocked but hauled out on one of the marine railways. When she is launched again she will no longer be known as the Amur, but as the famous. The work will take about three weeks and will mean the employment of a large number of men.

STATISTICS BUREAU ISSUES CROP REPORT

Latest Statement Sets the Canadian Crops Under Three Hundred Million Bushels

OTTAWA, Sept. 10.—Canada's wheat crop this year will total 291,400,000 bushels, according to the latest estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, issued this afternoon. Of this total, the Prairie Provinces are expected to harvest 247,177,000 bushels. Last year's total wheat crop in Canada was 474,195,000, according to final estimates. Of this the Prairie raised 452,360,000 bushels. Today's crop report is based on reports of average yields per acre as estimated by crop correspondents at the end of August, except in Quebec and British Columbia, where the estimates were made at the end of June.

TOKIWA MARU MAY SET NEW RECORD

IS MAKING FAST TIME FOR N.Y.K. FREIGHTER

Will Dock Twenty-Four Hours Earlier Than Expected, and Three Days Ahead of Schedule

Advices received by Mr. A. H. Hebb, local representative of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, stated that the liner Tokiwa Maru will arrive here three days ahead of her scheduled time, with an exceptionally large cargo, a big consignment of freight for discharge at Victoria.

The Tokiwa Maru, it was reported, sailed from Yokohama on August 30, two days ahead of schedule, and that she will arrive here Saturday, fully twenty-four hours ahead of her expected arrival, and three days ahead of schedule.

This is only the first report, however. Wireless advice from the ship is expected to announce that the liner will dock even earlier than the information given. Even in docking twenty-four hours ahead of schedule she will be setting a new record for the four combined passenger and freight liners that operate on the N.Y.K. trans-Pacific route.

The vessel has 105 tons of cargo for discharge here, a portion of which is for transshipment to Vancouver, including six cases of silk goods. The Seattle consignment is also reported to be a large one. No information is given regarding the passenger list.

BRITISH BOMB STARTS COUNCIL

Delegate From Great Britain States Proviso in Case of Acceptance of Compulsory Arbitration

MUST NOT SUBJECT HER NAVY TO PETTY CHECKING

Reservation Generally Interpreted That Right of Search Should Not Be Questioned During Operations

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—Great Britain dropped a bomb into the Geneva conference and a new Anglo-French Entente was appraised by many as approaching an out-and-out alliance when Sir Cecil Bristow, eminent jurist and British delegate, declared Great Britain ready to accept compulsory arbitration, provided she would not be brought into court because of some act of her navy, performed in attempting to maintain or restore peace.

This act Geneva agrees more than anything else since Premier Macdonald and Premier Herriot committed themselves in principle to the settlement of all disputes by compulsory arbitration by some world tribunal or tribunals.

The British reservation was interpreted as meaning that once the British Navy begins to operate, her right of search and seizure, which was the subject of controversy with the United States before the latter entered the world war, cannot be questioned judicially.

The British statement received special attention because of the announced intention of America to adhere to the World Court of Justice, whose compulsory arbitration clause is under consideration.

AGRICULTURE HEAD IS NOT RESIGNING

HON. MR. BARROW DENIES REPORT OF ILL-HEALTH

Courts Will Probably Decide Responsibility of Government for Sumas Lake Claims

"I don't look much like a cripple, do I?" asked Hon. E. D. Barrow, Minister of Agriculture, yesterday, when questioned regarding a story published by The Vancouver Sun a few days ago, that his resignation from the Oliver Cabinet was probable on account of ill-health.

"No, I'm not considering resigning," the minister went on. "Where The Vancouver Sun secured its story is at present unknown to me, but I was always pretty good at guessing things and seeing hidden motives and objectives. Its rather amazing information certainly did not come from me or my physician. You can say for me that my health is such that it need not worry anybody, and I'm not considering resigning."

Tells of Dyke Return
Hon. Mr. Barrow returned yesterday from the Mainland, where he has been in connection with claims involved in the settlement of the Sumas Lake drainage work, and other departmental matters. Relative to the Sumas claims, Mr. Barrow said that the total amount set forth by the contracting firm, the Marsh Construction Company, was between $180,000 and $200,000. Of this amount, however, about a third would be paid without dispute, as it comprised legitimate claims for work done and passed by Government engineers. The balance represented the amount in dispute, and in order that the Government would be fully informed, he had instructed Government engineers who had had charge of the work to prepare detailed reports.

The train will be given a short trial run to see that everything is in perfect order and then it will be parked in the yards until Saturday when it leaves for New London to meet the Prince on his holiday trip across Canada.

SWIMMER DROWNS IN NEARBY LAKE

BECOMES EXHAUSTED IN WATER AND SINKS NEAR SHORE

Young Man From Mission City Goes Down With Friends Are Powerless to Save Him

Mr. Thomas Mitchell, aged 24, a resident of Mission City, B.C., was drowned in Elk Lake early yesterday afternoon. Mr. Mitchell had been visiting relatives in Saanich, and with his younger brother and a girl friend had gone to Elk Lake for a swim. The body was recovered from the water a few minutes after it was found, but efforts to effect resuscitation were unsuccessful.

Mr. Mitchell, his younger brother, and a girl companion, had left the shore-raft moored to the north beach of the lake and had swum to a diving raft anchored about sixty yards out. Spending a few minutes there, the trio decided to return to shore and the girl started first. George Mitchell, the younger brother, went next and deceased started third. He had reached a point about half-way to the shore-raft, when he showed signs of distress and sank immediately afterwards. His younger brother, who had arrived at the shore, returned and once to the water and reaching the spot where his brother had disappeared, tried to dive and bring him up. Two men on shore, tourists who were visiting the lake, put out in a boat, and one of them plunged into the water for the man who had gone down. On his second dive he was successful in bringing him to the surface and he was taken to the diving raft.

FIGHTING SHIFTS TO SOUTH OF SHANGHAI

WOUNDED ARRIVING INDICATES SEVERE ENGAGEMENTS

Chekiang Headquarters Report Favorable Progress During Day—More Manchurian Troops

SHANGHAI, Sept. 11.—The centre of interest in the Chinese civil war, active fighting in which, thus far, has been confined to the armies of the Tsuchus of Chekiang and Kiangsu, was transferred today from the sector immediately west of this city to the Tai Lake district, southwest of here. The arrival of wounded at Kanhsin, Chekiang, from the Tai battle front, indicates the fighting has been of some severity. Chekiang Headquarters say fighting is progressing favorably.

TOKIO, Sept. 11.—The Mukden correspondent of The Tokyo Asahi has telegraphed that General Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian military leader, who has declared war against Wu Pei-fu, military leader of the Central Chinese Government, has lodged a request with the Japanese consul-general at Mukden for permission to use the South Manchurian Railway for the movement of his troops. The request has been referred to the Japanese Governor-General of the Kwantung leased territory.

In the best informed circles in Tokio it is believed the request will be refused.

The Asahi's correspondent reports troops arriving at Mukden from Kirin in the north, and Antud Jan-tung in the southwest. The Mukden regiments are ready to move on short notice. It is expected that passenger traffic on the Peking-Mukden Railway will be suspended as soon as the general movement of troops begins.

Commerce at Chankun, an important railway junction, west of Kirin, is practically suspended, according to the correspondent, owing to military activities. Chang, it is said, intends to accompany his troops to the front.

The Nichi Nichi's Mukden correspondent said two field artillery regiments were en route to Shanhsikwan on the Peking-Mukden Railway near Chihli, on the Manchurian border.

Japanese Women Take Interest in Politics

TOKIO, Sept. 11.—Advocates of women's rights in Japan are advancing a proposal for the increasing interest in political affairs, the fact that 14,000 persons who occupied seats in the visitors' galleries of the Diet at the Diet building last session, 4,000 were women. No previous session of the Diet has had so many women visitors.

Prince's Party Robbed of Jewelry Worth $250,000

Lady Louis Mountbatten and Hon. Mrs. Norton Lose Quarter of a Million's Worth of Property While Guests at Home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Cosden on Long Island—Ladies Formed Part of Entourage of His Royal Highness

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Theft of a fortune in jewels from two members of the Prince of Wales' party on Long Island has been revealed here. Lady Louis Mountbatten and Hon. Mrs. Richard Norton, both of whom accompanied the Prince and his party to this country, were the victims. Estimates of the value of the jewels stolen run as high as $250,000.

The jewels were stolen on Monday night from the home of J. S. Cosden, oil millionaire, near Port Washington, Long Island. Mrs. Norton and Lady Mountbatten are guests. The members of the house party were attending a dance in honor of the Prince of Wales at the time. It is stated, but only today was the attention of the police called to the robbery. It is believed that the robbery was "an inside job."

In addition to jewels of great value belonging to Lady Louis and Mrs. Norton, part of the famous Cosden jewel collection also is missing.

HON. DR. TOLMIE ISSUES DENIAL

Has No Intention of Entering British Columbia Political Field, Reports to Contrary Notwithstanding

CONSERVATIVE GAIN IN QUEBEC REPORTED

Denies Solidity of Eastern Agitation to Replace Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Conservative Chief Minister

"YOU can say for me definitely that I have not the slightest intention of entering Provincial politics," said Hon. Dr. F. S. Tolmie, Federal organizer for the Conservative Party, who arrived at his home in Victoria yesterday from the East. "The question has not been presented to me since my recent arrival in the Province, and I do not expect that it will be."

Dr. Tolmie congratulated the Conservatives on their choice of Mr. R. H. Pooley as House leader, and predicted that he would make good and prove himself a strong, capable chief-minister. Mr. Pooley had had considerable experience in Provincial politics, he recalled, and should be given every opportunity to show his capabilities.

Relative to British Columbia political matters, including the by-election in North Okanagan and the violent dispute which has developed in Liberal ranks in Vancouver respecting the proposed sale of a section of the Capilano watershed, Dr. Tolmie said that he had not studied the latter question sufficiently to be able to advance an opinion. In regard to the North Okanagan by-election, where Dr. K. C. Macdonald, newly appointed Provincial Secretary, will seek confirmation from the people on September 24, the Conservative organizer expressed his intention of being present and assisting in the organization of the opposing forces.

The principal object of his trip to the Coast, he said, was to make preparations for the Federal by-election at Yale. The date for the contest had not yet been set, he pointed out. Continued on Page 3

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 11.—The civilian members of the Cabinet have resigned following the assumption of control by the military committee. Arturo Alessandri, President of Chile, whose resignation, both the Senate and the Chamber have refused to accept, left for Buenos Aires last night. Both bodies of parliament yesterday voted to give him six months' leave of absence from the country.

Senator Alessandri went on a special train.

Ambassador Collier, whose guests the President and his family had been for the last few days, was one of those who accompanied him to the station.

Executive power has been assumed by General Luis Altamirano, head of the Chilean army, after a bloodless revolution. It is claimed that the new head of the government expects to declare a dictatorship similar to those of Italy and Spain.

Leopold and Loeb Narrowly Escape Death on Journey

During Trip to Prison Convict Car Swerves to Avoid Collision With One in Front and Bounds on to Electric Line Where Onrushing Tram Stops Sixty Feet From Convicts

SQUIRM WHEN ASKED AS TO THRILL RESULTING FROM TRIP

PENITENTIARY, JOLIET, Sept. 11.—Leopold and Loeb narrowly missed death on the journey to prison from Chicago. The car containing them, which was in the midst of a five-car convoy, suddenly swerved to the right on to the ballasted tracks of an electric railway, righted itself and bounced forty yards down the right of way before it stopped.

The brakes on the car ahead had burned and stuck, and the driver of the convict car turned to avoid a collision.

Deputies levelled their shotguns at the principal car and halted the procession. An electric car came up and stopped with headlights glaring on the prisoners. The electric, which had been flagged by deputies, stopped sixty feet from the convict car.

TO COLLECT REPARATIONS

SEYMOUR: Gilbert Parker, former Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury, has been appointed permanent Agent-General for Reparations payments by Louis Barthou, chairman of the Reparations Commission. He is virtually a controller of international commerce, a tremendously powerful position.

They were taken to "court miliary," where all prisoners spend their first night in solitary confinement. "Well," chirped Loeb, surveying the dull grey room with a smile when he was inside the prison walls, "this is not such a bad place."

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Leopold and Loeb, neatly dressed, smiled as they walked from the jail to the car which started to Joliet with them. Five armed deputies rode with them in the automobile on the forty-mile trip. Sheriff Hoffman, with half a dozen deputies in another car, headed a procession of automobiles including the car containing the prisoners.

Flashlights beamed as the boys entered the car and visibly startled them. Before leaving jail, the boys had been handcuffed to a deputy. The youths played cards with their guards until time to leave the jail.

ROYAL VISITOR RIDES TO HOUNDS

ENJOYS THREE AND HALF HOURS FOX HUNTING AT SVOSSET

Very Jolly and Tremendous Success Although No Victim Materialized—Autographs Declined

SVOSSET, Sept. 11.—The Prince of Wales rode to hounds for three and a half hours today, holding a firm seat on a white horse which carried him over twelve rail fences, over acres of ditches and many miles of Long Island fields. He declared it was "all very jolly and a tremendous success, although no fox was taken," as he removed a black bowler and mopped his face and brow on the porch of his holiday home—James A. Burden's house. The Prince rode Ghost, a horse belonging to Harry Ladew.

The Prince of Wales today did some fox hunting, his first taste of that old English sport as transplanted to the country estates of Long Island. Here it is known as cub hunting at this season, the game being young foxes born in the Spring. Several rides to hounds have already been made by members of the Meadowbrook Hunt Club, and the sounds of hunting horns and baying hounds have rung across the hills occupied by His Royal Highness. He usually has hardly finished his riding, dancing when the hunt begins soon after dawn.

The Prince and all the members of his staff left the James Burden house shortly before a o'clock, without revealing their destination. Captain Lancelotti, secretary to the Prince, stated His Royal Highness would not attend the Willis-Firpo fight.

The vigorous constitution of the future British King, which has borne constant strain and strenuous exercise in an exhausting round of dinner-dancing parties for the last eleven days, showed its first sign of fatigue today. The Prince left the polo field at the end of the sixth period, telling Major Metcalfe he was tired. He went to the Burden house for an afternoon rest.

Letters from feminine admirers of the British heir, ranging from part sub-debs to stately dowagers, most of them requesting photos and autographs of the Prince, continued to arrive, despite Captain Lancelotti's announcement that such requests cannot be complied with.

The Prince went yesterday to the estate of J. Pierpont Morgan, where he was shown a herd of Guernsey cattle. Preceding the visit to the Morgan estate, the royal visitor had a long talk with Mrs. Harrison Williams in the evening. He was the guest of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt at a dinner.

Prince Plays the Best Polo of His Career

Prince Scorns Odds at Sport Offered as Homage

Polo Playing Has Improved in Last Two Years, but Any Contest He Enters Must Be Won on Merit—Rajah's Efforts to Turn Tiger Hunt Into Tame Pastime Resented by Royal Guest, Who Returns to Polo—Calls Himself "World's Worst Player"

(By Francis Yeats-Brown)

WITH his usual modesty, the Prince of Wales has described himself as the "world's worst polo player." This is an exaggeration. In the last two years he certainly has improved. The only reason the progress has not been faster is that he has not been able to play regularly.

In 1922, at Lucknow, he played and practised almost every day of his ten-day visit, as well as riding in the local races. He was a dashing rider then, but an uncertain hitter.

Now he is far surer with his mallet, and if he gives himself—or is given—sufficient time to practice, undoubtedly he will become a good forward. Temperamentally and physically he is best suited to the attack, but I believe a course of playing "back" would be the best thing to complete his polo education. At present he rides too hard, hits at the ball too hard, is altogether too wild to make certain of not missing. If he played "back" for a season he would learn the paramount importance of sitting still.

In India, I remember, he always wanted to play "one," and I notice it is the same here. Perhaps it is because he likes the rough and tumble of No. 1's position and the hard riding that must be done there. Certain it is that he enjoys "riding a finish" more than anything in the world.

At the Lucknow races the Prince had got an idea that a certain horse he rode had been allowed to win on purpose, and, of course, the quarry who is with him now told me that the Prince would not ride again if he thought that winners were being farmed out to him.

This was certainly not going to happen in any races in which my regiment had entries; we knew the Prince didn't mind whether he won or lost. If he had a horse in the next race in which the Prince was riding, a brown Australian gelding, Antinous, and another officer in my regiment had a fast thoroughbred mare, Fanny. There was quite a rush in the betting for the Prince's mount when the numbers were up for that race, and the odds on mine went right out, so I backed Antinous for a place.

It was quite a race. The Prince rode a splendid race, but only came in third, being beaten a head by Antinous, who came in second, and a neck by Fanny, who won. The public lost their money, and I was able to pay my grain merchant six months' arrears in my stable account, to my great satisfaction—and his. In the course of that afternoon the Prince rode three winners, in each case his victory being thoroughly well deserved.

As a jockey he is a good judge of pace, and is utterly fearless. That the heir to the British throne should imperil his life and limbs is supposed to cause grave concern in England. But I think this is chiefly in the imagination of people who live in the fog of Fleet Street. The average Englishman would rather see the Prince a sportsman than a plaster saint.

As a matter of fact, as Thackeray said long ago, "Courage never goes out of fashion." Supporting the Prince against the odds is a sport, and I think it is a good thing to see him making a good speech, remembering faces, and saying the right thing by instinct. Very useful, no doubt. But speechmakers and diplomats there are a plenty, compared to men with minds of their own.

The noticeable thing about the Prince is that he is a good judge of pace, and is utterly fearless. That the heir to the British throne should imperil his life and limbs is supposed to cause grave concern in England. But I think this is chiefly in the imagination of people who live in the fog of Fleet Street. The average Englishman would rather see the Prince a sportsman than a plaster saint.

Prince is that he has a very definite mind of his own, and that although he has necessarily had to "walk with kings" all his life, he has by no means lost the "common touch."

Peril Needed in Tiger Hunt

I want to tell a little story of him when he went to the Himalayan foothills on a tiger shoot, because it seems to me a typical characteristic.

The risks and superciliousness of a certain Indian state had made the most elaborate arrangements in all history so that the Prince should bag a record quantity of big game. Tigers were located months in advance and fed with tethered goats so as to induce them to remain where they might be found with ease. Daily elephants went out in serried phalanxes to drive in every available beast into a selected patch of jungle.

When the auspicious day dawned at last and the fastness of the forest had been stocked in a way the Birminghams might envy the Prince set out on a great tusked elephant, with an attendant official sitting in the back of the cushioned howdah to hand him a second rifle. Fifty other pachyderms lurched along with state dignitaries, who were all ready to join in the shoot, and away, with emphasis it need be, that the Prince's bullet was the one that laid the tiger low. A thoband beaters slowly ringed the quarry and drove it toward the Prince. Bad elephants behind the party groaned under a burden of strange viands and loed drinks.

For a day the Prince enjoyed himself, seeing the peacock and deer and the occasional panther slinking by, followed at last by the king of the forest himself. And he bagged his tiger. Then, politely but firmly, he returned to camp, sent for his polo ponies and spent the remainder of his days in that jungle "knocking the ball about" on a little patch of open ground near the railway station.

Scandalized sportsmen begged him to shoot. Shooting gorged tigers bored to return to the forest. It was to no avail. It was not his idea of sport, no matter what anyone said. He would have none of it.

But ask the Prince to do something in which there is an element of personal risk, and you may be sure he will park himself right there.

FEBRUARY SET FOR BRITISH ELECTIONS

NO APPEAL LIKELY THIS FALL, SAYS ONE AUTHORITY

Will Probably Force Irish Question Through House, But No Discussion on Soviet Treaty

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Although the opposition parties are preparing vigorously for a general election next November, and the hustings are filled with political propaganda, there is no chance of a general election until next February at the earliest.

The Labor Government probably can force through its Irish measure next month when Parliament reconvenes, although there are serious dangers ahead in connection with the Russian agreement. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, however, is too astute a politician and too able a strategist to force an election on the latter issue.

It is also unlikely that the fight will be made over the budget, for financial issues are never popular with the masses and for this reason it is almost certain that the battle will be fought before April.

REFUSES TO FOLLOW MR. LLOYD GEORGE

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN FINDS SOME GOOD IN TREATY

Suggests Lack of Warrant for Much Criticism of Pact With the Moscow Government

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Manchester Guardian, the greatest Liberal organ in the United Kingdom, while admitting that the Anglo-Russian Treaty is not a matter for enthusiasm, suggests that it does not warrant all the noise that is being made with regard to it. The chief allegation against the treaty, the Guardian declares, is that it does nothing, and that paper thinks this would be a poor plea in an appeal by the Liberals to the country.

The Guardian's London correspondent forecasts that many Liberal members of the House of Commons will refuse to join Mr. Lloyd George in voting against the ratification of the treaty. It should be noted, however, that Mr. Lloyd George, in his speech last night, reiterated that he had previously said in the House of Commons that in denouncing the Anglo-Russian Treaty, he had consulted such prominent Liberal M.P.s as Sir John Simon and C. F. C. Masterman, and every available Liberal leader, with reference to the character of the deal made by the Labor Government with Russia.

Today's Chronicle, which nowadays is a supporter of Mr. Lloyd George, admits that while Liberalism—and Labor may be heading for a collision over Russia, they are completely in accord on Irish matters.

"The omens are," says The Chronicle, "that when the Commons resumes its sittings, the Irish business will soon be disposed of, and it will not be until October that an appeal to the electors will be made, either on the Russian business, or on some other matter."

REFERS MONTREAL TO QUEBEC'S STORY

GAZETTE'S CRITIC STRESSES FATE OF ALL TORIES

KINGSTON, Sept. 11.—Declaring that what the Montreal Conservatives want is "not a leader who will lead, but a leader who will sell himself, body and soul to them, and surrender his policies at their dictate," and adding that "Mr. Meighen, happily, is not of that kidney," the Kingston Daily Standard (Conservative) comes out editorially in direct opposition to the demand of Montreal papers for a change in the leadership of the Conservative party.

Stating that "it is a notorious fact that if Mr. Meighen would bend the knee to the would-be dictators in Montreal and swallow their political nostrums, he could have their support beyond question."

The Standard declares that "if Mr. Meighen were now superseded by another leader, this would be tantamount to a confession by the Conservatives of all the other provinces that they are willing that the Quebec Conservatives, who were not able to elect a single member of Parliament in the last election, should dictate to all other Conservatives the choice of a Conservative leader," a supposition that The Standard regards as preposterous.

Strongly supporting Mr. Meighen as a leader of courage and capacity, The Standard recalls that just now there is a revolt in some quarters against Mr. Meighen's leadership. So there was a cabal against Mr. Borden when he was the Opposition leader. And then it goes on to state that "this cabal, by the way was headed by some of the very men who afterwards were glad to serve under him in his Cabinet when he became Prime Minister."

POLICE CHASED INTO BARRACKS BY MOB

The trouble started when the mob, repulsed the civic guard and chased the policemen into their barracks.

CANADIAN PRESS ISSUES STATEMENT

APPEALS TO INTERNATIONAL PRESIDENT ON STRIKE

Asks Fair Play and Not Prussian Methods in Proposal for Arbitration on Wage Question

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—So that nothing might be left undone to avert the threatened strike of the telegraphers of the Canadian Press, J. F. B. Livesey, general manager, wired last night to Roscoe Johnson, international president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, with headquarters at Chicago, as follows: "The Canadian Press was served notice this afternoon by Mr. Schnurr and a general committee of our telegraphers that following a strike vote the men will cease work at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon unless the company withdraws its proposals for decreased wages. These proposals were the reply of the company to the demand of the men for increased wages. The company contends that the agreement negotiated September 1, 1920, signed by yourself, is of a permanent character, and that the arbitration clause, No. 22, was incorporated expressly to meet such a situation as now prevails. We contend the present dispute should be arbitrated under that clause. The men, on the contrary, said it did not apply. We offer to arbitrate under this clause to interpretation of such clause. We have also applied for a board of conciliation from the Department of Labor to deal with the whole dispute. This the committee refuses. We now, therefore, appeal to yourself as being cognizant of the intention of such arbitration clause, to exercise your authority as international president so that before the strike is made effective there shall be arbitration of the whole dispute under that clause, or at least that there shall be arbitration of the interpretation of such clause."

No Reply to Message
"So far we have had no reply to this message," said Mr. Livesey today. "We wired the international president as a last resort, and because we feel the company is not getting a square deal from the International Union's local representatives. Roscoe Johnson, who, by the way, had a distinguished overseas service record with the A.E.F., assisted in 1920 in the negotiation of our present agreement, which was designedly made of a permanent character, an arbitration clause being inaugurated to take care of just such disputes as the present. We shall be surprised indeed, therefore, if he does not support the contention advanced in the above wire message."

"What is the situation? We offered to arbitrate, as we think we have an undoubted right to do under our present agreement. The men's general committee refusing that, we then proposed a board of conciliation. The reply was a strike ultimatum. Recognizing, no doubt, the fairness of the company's attitude, the Minister of Labor has granted a board of conciliation, but the men refuse that, prejudice though it will their side before public opinion, and will proceed to a strike."

"The whole attitude of the men's general committee in these negotiations has run counter to every recognized principle of labor unionism. The reply to our reasonable proposal is that they prefer to strike—the sort of talk that was heard in Winnipeg in 1919," said Mr. Livesey.

Always Reasonable
"The company has always been reasonable and might be expected, for instance, to show itself reasonable in the matter of proposed wage reductions. But it expects to be treated reasonably in return. It is not reasonable at this time of economic depression for our men, who have been used too well in the past, to demand a wage increase to refuse to arbitrate and to stuff a strike ultimatum down the throat of the company."

"Our press telegraphers are a highly intelligent class whose relations with the company are generally of a most friendly nature. They give of their best and are used right."

"In voting to strike," Mr. Livesey continued, "the majority of our telegraphers have been stampeded—not so much by their general committee as by their international vice-president, Paul Schnurr, an American, domiciled recently in Canada, but whose methods are Prussian, and who started us all by declaring in open meeting that the men could not look for justice to a Canadian board of conciliation. He believes in the strike. We believe that he represents international union practice and sentiment, and we have appealed over his head to the international president, Roscoe Johnson."

world peace, it is stated on good authority.

This assurance created a favorable impression among the smaller European states and strengthened the idea that England and France are closer than some people think to a settlement of the problem of security which the French insist must accompany the acceptance of compulsory arbitration.

Plans of the committee on sociological questions are now before the League of Nations to establish a world-wide campaign of education among the masses on the consequences following the use of dangerous drugs.

Georgian Revolution
The League today took cognizance of the Georgian revolution by passing a resolution proposed by France, Great Britain and Belgium, directing the council to "seize any opportunity to help the return of that country to its normal situation."

Speaking before the assembly, Paul Boncour, of France, said: "We are sitting talking about peace while blood is flowing in Georgia, where a state of war exists between two states. They are not members of the League, but the covenant provides that the League may deal with anything affecting world peace. This resolution is the result of an agreement between Premiers Herriot and MacDonald. They believe the League would be neglecting its duty if it did not try to do something for Georgia."

HON. DR. TOLMIE ISSUES DENIAL

but he expected it to take place some time in December.

The Quebec Results

Dr. Tolmie denied that the Conservative Party had been in the least discouraged by the results of the two by-elections held recently in St. Antoine and Rimouski, Quebec, where Liberal candidates were returned. In the St. Antoine riding, he pointed out, the Liberal majority of 3,500, made in the last Dominion election, had been cut to 1,940. Referring to comments made in The Toronto Globe relative to the Liberal victory, including the statement that it had been a clear-cut endorsement of Hon. Mackenzie King's low tariff policy, Dr. Tolmie pointed out that the St. Antoine election had not been fought entirely on high or low tariff ground. Two Conservative candidates had been in the field until the day before nomination day, thus weakening the Conservative cause, he said. Also, the Liberal machine had been a well organized one and the Liberal candidate was a man particularly popular in that riding. He was an A.J.P. man and had been a member of the Quebec Legislature.

In the Rimouski by-election, the Liberal majority of 5,500 polled in the last Dominion general election, had been cut to 1,500. Dr. Tolmie said in Conservative circles the progress made in that riding was considered very satisfactory. In Liberal circles it was viewed with alarm.

The Conservative Leader

Dr. Tolmie spoke feelingly in regard to vague statements emanating from the East that the Conservative Party was withdrawing its support from Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Conservative leader. "There is a certain group opposed to the leadership of Hon. Mr. Meighen because they can't use him," he said. "The activity of such a group is a strong argument in favor of retaining Mr. Meighen in his present position, as any leader who is going to allow himself to be controlled by any group or faction would have his usefulness extremely curtailed."

Propaganda against Mr. Meighen had been carried on for years, Dr. Tolmie added, and he believed the present agitation was as frothy as its predecessors.

Many B.C. Matters

Questions relating particularly to British Columbia, which had been dealt with during the last session of the Dominion Parliament included the following. Dr. Tolmie said: Canadian National Railways branch lines; the Crow's Nest Pass agreement relative to freight rates; hydrographic survey of the west coast; proposed removal of the receiver-general's office from Victoria to Vancouver; location of a buoy off Sidney; reduction of the tax on loganberry wine; the delay in landing passengers in Victoria after inspection of ships at William Head; Canadian National Railways' development programme in the port of Victoria; Oriental mail-parlor car service from United States into Canada; steamship connections with Mexico; exclusion of alien labor; grant for the emigration of the British Fleet; regulations with regard to the importation of certain Alpine flowers and plants; British army reserve pensions; introduction of further trout fry into Prospect Lake. In this connection, Dr. Tolmie said that he had a letter from the Federal Department of Fisheries saying that instructions had been issued to make a further distribution next Spring if fry were available. Dredging of Rock Bay, and a great many other matters.

SWEDISH FARMERS USE ELECTRIC POWER

Forty Per Cent of Agriculturists Run Household, Dairy and Other Machinery by Wire

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 11.—While the utilization of water power for every purpose has been developing rapidly in Sweden during the last two decades, there is a strong tendency at present to convert the turbine power into electric energy for further industrial use. Thus factories are being built hundreds of miles away from the source of their power, and electric current is not only distributed to all parts of Sweden, but is exported to neighboring countries as well.

There are now 2,100 large power plants in Sweden, of which about fifty per cent furnish light, heat and power for the country districts. Besides, there are several hundred smaller plants using less than 10,000 horsepower each. Forty per cent of the Swedish farms now run their household, dairy and agricultural machinery by electricity, and fifty per cent of the houses in the country districts are lighted by electricity. This is believed to be a record for the world.

INTERURBAN RAILWAY

The decision of the B. C. Electric Railway Company to discontinue service on the Saanich interurban is based on purely business reasons, we are told. The line does not pay. The efforts to make it pay and continue it as a going concern may or may not have been adequate, but at all events they failed to secure the desired co-operation of the public. That is exceedingly regrettable, because the interurban involves a somewhat heavy capital expenditure and it was built at the earnest solicitation of the people of this and neighboring communities. The interurban, it is claimed, has suffered, and suffered to the point of extinction, by the development of motor stages. The reason to be derived from the abandonment of this line, if abandoned it is, is that the people concerned could have provided for its continuance had they given it the support the company had the right to expect after the representations that were made prior to its construction.

Following the putting into operation of the interurban, settlement in Saanich was developed. Many Victorians elected to live in that municipality when the transportation to and from their places of business became available. The interurban has been and still is a factor of no mean importance in developing the Saanich peninsula and its abandonment will tend to have a dampening effect on progress. We would urge the company to reconsider its decision, which it purposes is unfortunate and may have more far-reaching consequences than can now be anticipated. It would prove an undoubted blow to the development of the hinterland of Victoria and such a retrograde step, whatever the business necessity, comes at a most inopportune time.

TRANS-PROVINCIAL HIGHWAY

Mr. A. F. Bement, Secretary of the Lincoln Highway Association, who has just completed a trip to the Pacific Coast by motor from Winnipeg, proves himself a staunch advocate of the building of the missing link of the trans-provincial highway. He is to speak today at a Canadian Club luncheon on his experience during the recent trip and no doubt will emphasize his belief in the asset the completed trans-provincial highway would mean to the development of the tourist traffic. The Provincial Government has been flitting with the idea of completing the road for many years. It is a subject that crops up perennially. Action has been postponed so often that the project would appear to be in a sense illusory, or else the Government considers the time is not ripe for action. Advocates of the tourist traffic believe it is over-ripe and are fully convinced that the Province is losing heavily by lack of a through route for motor cars to the coast.

The situation now is that the project will be laid before the Legislature during the coming session. That body, no doubt, will be influenced by the trend of public opinion. Opinion varies very considerably on the route that should be chosen to link up the unfinished ends of the trans-provincial highway, and we do not understand, as yet, that the Government has definitely decided on the Fraser Canyon way. Without a doubt, the cost of construction by that route is going to be very heavy. The present estimate is $1,250,000. The construction work presents grave difficulties and the possibility exists that the building of the road may cause damage to railway rights-of-way and lay the Province open to action in the courts. These are considerations that must be fully canvassed, and, what is more, there should be a most careful estimate of the cost.

In connection with projects in British Columbia we have had many, far too many, experiences of the original estimates of cost falling substantially below what the ultimate outlays were. This blunder should be avoided in connection with the completion of the trans-provincial road. The route to be chosen should be the one which presents the least engineering difficulties, and, considering the state of Provincial finances, it should, therefore, be the route which will cost the least in construction and maintenance. These are paramount considerations. Action has now been delayed so long that when a decision is reached it should be possible to have full knowledge of every consideration involved, and this is a matter in which full responsibility should be accepted by the Legislature and the money specifically voted for the purpose. The resultant benefits of a completed trans-provincial highway seem obvious and the Legislature should be put in possession of all the facts relating thereto. From the standpoint of this city, interest will be stimulated by today's Canadian Club luncheon.

AN "ULTIMATUM"

Politics are reaching an extraordinary pass in this Province when a Member-elect for the Legislature can issue an ultimatum to the Government. News dispatches perhaps exaggerate the nature of the communication which Mr. Charles Woodward has addressed to Premier Oliver, but, whatever the wording, the tenor of it is that he, Mr. Woodward, will resign his seat unless there is a public assurance by the Government that timber will not be sold in the Capilano watershed area. It is the duty of responsible government to be responsible for its actions and to decide itself what those actions will be. It is within the power of any private member to resign his seat if, though a supporter of the Government, he does not agree with any particular action which it may decree. A government, however, would speedily lose the confidence of the people if it were to be intimidated by an ultimatum from one of its House supporters.

The language of the dispatch dealing with Mr. Woodward's "ultimatum" is most unfortunate. We are told that "Premier Oliver has until noon tomorrow" to agree with Mr. Woodward or take the consequences of losing a supporter. Mr. Woodward, it appears, on the representations of a fellow Member-elect, "has agreed to grant another extension of 24 hours," or, in other words, he has amended the terms of his "ultimatum." A government which subjected itself to phraseology of this character would speedily cease to be a government at all, and we feel assured that Premier Oliver will not permit such intimidation. The question of the merit or demerit of Mr. Pattullo's proposal to permit the sale of Capilano timber does not enter into the point we are emphasizing. Mr. Woodward may be quite right in his opposition to such sale, but he is wholly wrong in trying to prevent the Government carrying it out by a process of intimidation. If this method could be tried successfully the responsibility of constitutional government would at once become a by-word and people would lose faith in administration. Mr. Woodward may be excused because he is new in politics, and, perhaps, is unaware of methods of constitutional procedure, but nevertheless nothing in any sense is to be gained by a policy of ultimatums where the threat is against the Government.

The Sydney Bulletin says: "All food is sacred. The community of man arose out of the necessity for combination in maintaining the food supply of the race. The honest sweat that goes to win our bread from the soil is not a thing to be treated lightly. A country like Australia, which holds the possibilities of a food supply infinitely beyond its own requirements, is holding those possibilities as a trust for the race. Yet in plain and sordid fact there is nothing which we treat with such easy contempt. Half the food put before Australians is either wasted or spoiled in preparation, sometimes by the manufacturer and dealer, and sometimes by those whose daily standards of living are too loose to regard the maintenance of life as worth a little trouble. Loaves of bread are tossed about by unclean hands; the deadly frying-pan makes a quick and evil meal for the worker in homes where the women have never given an honest thought to their job."

There is some indication that interest in Canada in aviation is on the decline. In 1922 there were 23 firms operating aircraft for commercial purposes. This number dropped to 15 in 1923. In 1922 there were 4,415 flights in the Dominion, whereas the number in 1923 was 3,086. The flying mileage, however, for 1923 was better than for the previous year by 3,500 miles. These statistics deal only with civil aviation. Canada has yet to establish air mail routes, the Post Office Department seemingly discouraging any attempts in this direction although such routes have become common in the United States and in Europe.

A correspondent writes to inform us that the poem "To Miss Jessie Lewars," printed in this newspaper on Tuesday and believed to have been written by Robert Burns, was reproduced many years ago. On the former occasion it was preceded by the following paragraph: "The following exquisite lyric depicting Burns' affection for Jessie Lewars in his last illness has recently been found in Kilmarlock. It is anonymous, but is believed by competent critics to have been written by Motherwell, who cherished an almost idolatrous admiration for the great Scottish bard."

The outcome of the conference at Ottawa on the question of unemployment is that the Federal Government is prepared to give all the aid it is capable of, providing the Provinces and municipalities will contribute the work and the money that may be necessary. It was a waste of time and money for Provincial officials to make the trip to the capital.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

In an atmosphere of considerable pomp and circumstance Leopold and Loeb, murderers of the young boy Frank, have been sentenced to imprisonment for life. Thus ends for the time being a very notorious case.

There are many people in the world who will say that in this case justice was unduly tempered with mercy; but if they had been sitting on the bench of the Cook County Court in the place of Judge Caverly, who admitted that he had taken counsel with the Supreme Judge of all the earth, and asked the newspaper men to make a note of it, possibly they would have hesitated also before ordering the callous young transgressors to be taken out of jail and hanged by the neck until they were dead. It must be no light task for one man to order the execution of another man. We do not think we could do it under ordinary circumstances, and the circumstances in this case were extraordinary. The culprits, after all, are mere boys, just on the threshold of life, and to order that life to be strangled out of them, as we have said, would have called for the suppression of certain emotions that, we trust, still linger in the heart of every man, even in the heart of a man who has earned the reputation of being a "hanging judge."

But we do not contend that Leopold and Loeb ought not to be hanged. Their crime, one of the most callous and heinous crimes in the history of modern times, should be expiated upon the scaffold. If they had been tried in a British court of justice they certainly would have been sentenced to death. A British judge would have discharged his obvious duty regardless of all emotional appeals and regardless of his own personal feelings. If the circumstances warranted clemency, an appeal to the proper constitutional authorities would have determined the matter.

The decision of Judge Caverly may be creditable to his own finer feelings and in accord with the will of the Being he consulted before passing judgment, but we doubt whether it will prove a terror to the multitude of evil-doers in the United States now engaged in the trade of killing their neighbors. The result of it will be that society in the republic will be under a greater menace than ever; that life will be less secure; that the administration of justice will be more of a mockery and a by-word.

We do not believe, no one in the United States probably believes, that Leopold and Loeb will remain in jail during the term of their natural lives. On the very day the sentence of the judge was announced speculators were betting on the result of the trial. Even the two culprits themselves were offering odds on the event. One of them was so sure that he would be hanged that he was willing to back his judgment at odds of more than two to one. Standing on the brink of eternity, the young men appear to have been holding a reception in the jail and entertaining their numerous callers after the manner to which they were accustomed during the days of freedom.

If they were accorded such liberties while they were awaiting sentence, does anyone believe that their liberties will be seriously curtailed while they are undergoing what may euphemistically be described as punishment. Would a poor culprit who had not a dollar at his command have been accorded such privileges?

Therefore we are warranted in saying that Leopold and Loeb will not die in jail. Their freedom of action for evil may be somewhat circumscribed for a few years; but in due time they will come forth, like Mr. Harry K. Thaw, and pass the remainder of their days in luxury, thereby testifying to the fact that the law is a respecter of persons. We are told quite frequently in these days of fine altruistic theories that the object of law enforcement is the perpetration of acts of vengeance, but the protection of society. Will the judgment in the case of Leopold and Loeb result in greater security for society?

Our readers will have noticed that we take some interest in the very interesting affairs of Vancouver. Another question of more interest even than cabinet representation, is being discussed in Vancouver. Someone has discovered that the present system of municipal government is a failure; that the administration could be carried on more efficiently and more effectively by a civic manager. Other cities, it appears, have tried the experiment and have found out that one-man control is better and cheaper than popular control.

If that is true, the results of the discovery of the truth may be far-reaching, possibly revolutionary. It may lead to the discovery of an equally obvious truth: That the affairs of the Province, even the affairs of the Dominion, could be more efficiently and more economically administered by one man than they are being administered by the ten men or the twenty men who now administer them. It would also lead to an admission of a co-relative truth: that popular government is a failure; that a dictatorship is more desirable in the interests of the common people than our much-lauded and widely-heralded democratic system of responsible or representative government. Considering the condition of affairs today in Canada, Great Britain, in the United States, and in many other places far, too numerous to mention, who shall undertake to say that the kernel of truth that has sprouted in Vancouver may not develop into a tree of majestic proportions?

The next world problem will be finding the right kind of dictators.

Canada's Story Day by Day

By BLODWIN DAVIS

September 12

Frontenac has left us no authentic picture of himself, yet of all the fascinating characters which are to be found in the pages of Canadian history, none move more clearly across the mental vision than that of the great governor. In him was the essence of French character of the age, romance, adventure, courage, and a love of magnificence. He was long been intimately associated with the French court. His grandfather was the friend of Henry IV, his father the playmate of Louis XIII, and he himself was a constant of Louis XIV and his queen. In his early youth he became a soldier, and his successes made him popular at court. At the age of 21 he fell in love with a sixteen-year-old girl. They eloped to be married, but the match was a failure. They were both banished from court, leaving the famous Frontenac without an heir to his titles and honors. Frontenac had a magnificent post and at the same time separate him from his uncongenial wife, Louis made Frontenac Governor of Canada on this day in 1672. He was then fifty-two years of age. In the Chateau St. Louis at Quebec, he established a replica of the court at Versailles, in which he played the part of monarch. The fashions and ceremonies of court life then prevailed upon the shores of the St. Lawrence. The place by the side of the river remained unfilled, for the unruly countess never resigned with him.

Arena Service

Sir—I have a certain number of friends who would like to know where the money that was collected at the Arena Rink on May 25 last went.

I, with others, understood the chairman to say that there was no expense whatever in connection with the service, and that whatever money was collected was to go to the Jubilee Hospital, and as it was collected by the nurses who were there fully expected that the hospital would receive the collection. But a few days after the papers stated that there was somewhere in the neighborhood of $125 collected and that there was a shortage of about $150 after expenses were paid.

Would the parties who were responsible for the service kindly state what the expenses were for and where the money went, and thereby satisfy some of my many friends who never go to a service of this nature or ever give a cent to anything of this sort, but always grow out of where did the money go? Hoping that someone may clear this matter up, as I certainly think myself that it should be.

A. R. NEX.

660 Montreal Street, Victoria, B.C., September 10, 1924.

Horse Racing

Sir—Kindly allow me space to endeavor to corroborate Mr. Fullerton's defense of horse racing and breeding of thoroughbreds.

In this instance one might do worse than take a leaf from the administration of Australia as an example as to how a sister Dominion of the British Empire is progressing and ever increasing in population. This is a state of affairs much to be envied, especially by the people of the Dominion of Canada, who are dependent on the retrograde as to both progress and population.

Where else in the whole world can you point to a young country that is actually losing the population, and there is no area any richer in natural resources than is Canada. One can point to dozens of reasons why Canada is losing the population, but the main reason is "circulation of currency." Horse racing is one, if not the greatest, medium for the circulation of money. Mr. Fullerton has ably outlined how it does this in that it brings in people who are good circulators, and therefore we should lament their leaving all too quickly.

A word as to the activities of the Hon. H. H. Stevens, of Vancouver, B.C., who is using his best endeavor at Ottawa to kill this medium of circulation. He is a man who apparently does not realize that seven million dollars, nor any such amount, is involved in the period of racing staged in British Columbia. As a matter of fact, the actual cash amount would not total one and a half million dollars for the simple reason that it is only a "loser" who has to top his capital for a "new start" and on top of this you must not forget that a large majority of the horse owners are by no means paupers, and they are the people who do the big betting; and they must mainly support the money in Victoria or Vancouver on which to make those bets. By all means let us have a population of horse owners who are racers; they are good circulators of currency, mostly their own at that. If "H. H." will inquire of certain officials at Ottawa he can have a much better line on which to waste his energy, namely, "lose in duty on the export of liquors in bond to Mexico" to the tune of at the last estimate five millions per annum."

H. P. WINSTON.

Errington, B.C., September 5, 1924.

"Treatment of Mental Cases"

Sir—I would like to add my plea to that of Dr. Denton Holmes and the Local Council of Women, that some different place be found for the observation and treatment of nervous breakdowns than the city jail. They were admitted to the Jubilee Hospital in 1921 and 1922. At what period this was changed to incarceration in jail I do not know. It is cruelty of the grossest kind that these poor people whom society has driven to the edge of life have hit too hard should find on recovering the added burden of a sad memory of an undesired period in the city jail. It is hard enough to take up the burden of life again for them without the added insult and disgrace which is attached to a period spent in the hands of a city police officer. These stricken ones would gladly pay the cost of a few days or a week's treatment in some non-criminal institution in consultation with their usually taken by stealth.

MARGARET BERRY.
1143 Yates Street, Victoria, B.C., September 10, 1924.

TELLS ROTARIANS ABOUT B.C. ROADS

HON. DR. RUTHERLAND DESCRIBES HIGHWAY WORK

Increased Income Foretells New Big Issue for Construction—Need of Interior Development

There was no better system of opening up and developing the country than by the construction of good trunk roads. Hon. Dr. W. H. Rutherford, Provincial Minister of Public Works, told members of the Victoria Rotary Club yesterday noon at their weekly luncheon gathering in the Chamber of Commerce, during the course of an address on "The Roads of British Columbia."

Hon. Dr. Rutherford informed his hearers that the permanent paving of roads had all been paid for out of capitalised gasoline tax. He said the motor and gas taxes this year were expected to net payments of $187,000 for the Government, and $208,000 for the municipalities. The charges on present road building, bond issues were $442,000, and at the end of the year there would be a surplus large enough to warrant issuance of a further road building bond issue of $1,500,000.

The speaker said that the Government could only build roads to the extent of funds available, and he thought that loads on trucks should be limited to the capacity of the roads which the Government could afford to build.

Taxpayers could play their part in effecting lower costs for the maintenance of roads and highways, Hon. Dr. Rutherford pointed out. They could aid by exercising a little judgment when using a car, and would keep off them as much as possible during times when the frost was coming out and heavy rainstorms were being experienced.

The Malahat Highway
In speaking of the Malahat road-way, the Minister said that if "we got more rain on the island, we could keep the Malahat in better shape. It is useless, however, to try and keep up gravel surfaces in dry spells. The sections of heavy grades on the road-way have been left unimproved because of skid danger. If we have to put concrete pavement at $15,000 a mile on such a stretch, you can realize what is going to happen to your taxes."

Hon. Dr. Rutherford spoke of the necessity of trails for prospectors and settlers. He believed that the one thing the Province needed greatly was the opening up of the mineral and agricultural resources of the interior. If we devote more time to developing the interior towns, the cities on the coast have no fear for future development.

In conclusion, the Minister asserted that the program of permanent highways, started six years ago, which had caused many problems of regrading and relocation, would not be completed for several years. He affirmed that the upkeep of the highways was being paid for by those who used them most.

President Jimmy Beatty, in thanking Dr. Rutherford for his comprehensive address, assured him that he could rely upon the loyal co-operation of the Rotary Club in the organization of public opinion for the better understanding of the problem of roads.

Mr. A. F. Bement and Captain E. S. Evans, the Canadian Highway pathfinders, who have just arrived in the city from a motor trip from Winnipeg were introduced to the members, and accorded a warm welcome.

Mr. Joseph Patrick, president of the Canadian Club, urged Rotarians to attend the luncheon that the Canadian Club is holding to honor the pathfinders today at noon in the Empress Hotel.

Criticism on Wane

CAPETOWN, Sept. 11.—The number of entries in South Africa has dropped from 900,000 to 120,000. The fall is in consequence of fear of an ostrich feather shortage.

The fire at the Bishop's Close—Yesterday a fire was found to be burning in the bay barn at the Bishop's Close of Columbia avenue. The damage was $100. The fire was caused by a gas leak. The Bishop's Close would also have caused fire.

Mr. Erick Bowman, the discoverer of The Bowman Remedy, claims that in treating 70,000 cattle in the United States, the results have been successful in 98% per cent of the cases treated.

Are your dairy cows and heifers causing you trouble? Are you obtaining results in calves and milk that satisfy you? Do your cows (according to your knowledge of their capacity) produce as much milk as they should—or are you marking time and feeding a number of boarders that should be sent to the butcher?

These are matters that can be put right. Delays are fatal. Why not consult

If this assurance is not received tomorrow Mr. Woodward will resign his seat immediately.

HUDSON'S BAY CO. STARTS CAMPAIGN

SEEK 5,000 MORE CUSTOMERS BY END OF PRESENT YEAR

Popular Department Store Sees Indications of Prosperity and Makes Contribution to Progress

The Hudson's Bay Company in this city has launched a vigorous campaign to secure 5,000 more satisfied customers by December 31, and confidently expects to reach that objective by offering the public of this city and other centres on Vancouver Island the most dependable quality merchandise at the lowest possible prices.

Merchandise to the amount of $500,000 has already been purchased by the Hudson's Bay Company for its Fall and Winter selling, and this has been marked at a low margin of profit in anticipation of a big volume of sales.

Eleven large stores in Canada and hundreds of fur trading posts require an enormous amount of merchandise, and consequently the Hudson's Bay Company is able to buy in larger quantities than many big wholesalers, thus enabling the concern to dispose of the most dependable merchandise at extremely low prices.

The Hudson's Bay Company feels fully justified in inaugurating this campaign to augment their already large number of customers by 5,000 through the indications that a general improvement in business conditions in the West will shortly be an accomplished fact, and by reason of the development work that will be carried on in Victoria this Winter.

The company feels that Victoria will share in this prosperity, that it is anticipated will shortly be ushered in, and is anxious to share in the benefits and give their constantly increasing clientele the best in merchandise and the most in service that is possible.

Reasons for Decision Reasons for the decision of the Hudson's Bay Company to embark on a scheme of business expansion are demonstrated clearly in one of the Douglas Street windows of this popular department store. Views of various development enterprises that have been completed or are in progress of construction here are shown, and the company feels that up the opportunity that is given the Hudson's Bay Company to serve the requirements of the increasing population that is indicated.

In the Douglas Street window were also cards pointing out the various modern services of the big institution, while two figures, representing a delivery man and a saleslady, depict the courteous treatment and prompt delivery system that accompanies Hudson's Bay purchases, while the latter figure, representing the kindly and courteous manner in which the members of the sales staff attend to the needs of the store's patrons.

The Hudson's Bay Store in Victoria is the last word in modern department store construction, every modern facility being incorporated in its equipment. Science and years of research relative to modern merchandising methods have been utilized in developing the services in this great retail establishment.

Some of the various reasons why the Hudson's Bay Company has faith in Victoria and Vancouver Island, and is preparing to do its part in contributing to the prosperity that is coming to this portion of the Canadian West, are enumerated as follows:

Great Natural Resources
The natural resources of British Columbia, and particularly lumber, agriculture, minerals and fisheries, are comparatively only in the early stages of development. Yet in the year 1923 the total production from these, our principal sources, amounted to over $268,000,000. Compare last year's figures with those of ten years ago, and see how we have progressed.

1913 1923
Lumber ..... $31,450,000 $54,474,000
Agriculture .. 24,222,835 .. 69,159,798
Minerals .... 30,294,398 .. 41,304,320
Fisheries .... 13,891,296 .. 18,549,658

Of the total of standing merchandise, timber in British Columbia, two-thirds is on Vancouver Island, and of the actual production the Island is responsible for more than half.

The steady increase in Victoria's bank clearings over figures of previous years indicates a healthy state of business in our city.

Providing employment for hundreds of men during the coming Winter months will be the beautiful Crystal Gardens, the development of which is to be commenced almost at once. This new C.P.R. undertaking will represent an investment of at least $400,000, and will be ready by May 24, 1925. It will give a big added attraction to tourists, and incidentally make a big addition to Victoria's payroll.

Assembly Plant, Elevators
The Canadian National Railway is going to construct next year an assembly plant at the Ogden Point Docks. Car ferries which will probably be built in Victoria will bring lumber intended for ocean shipments from the Canadian National Railway terminal. The proposed elevators, the establishment of which is almost assured, will still further aid in the development of the big docks.

The great new drydock at Esquimalt, the largest in the British Empire, will accommodate the biggest ship afloat, and when completed next year will be a fitting companion for the big government wharves at Ogden Point and will make a memorable step forward in the extension of port facilities at Victoria.

The Pacific Salvage Company will shortly be operating from Victoria the most perfectly equipped and the most powerful salvage craft on the Pacific Coast. It is also claimed to be the largest and fastest in the world. This, in conjunction with the new drydock, will undoubtedly prove a great attraction to Pacific shipping, resulting in additional industries and big increase in employment.

The two new C.P.R. steamers, the Princess Margaret and the Princess Kathleen, now under construction on the Clyde, will be ready by next Spring and will make provisions for an increased passenger capacity of 75 to 100 per cent.

In view of the foregoing indications of general prosperity, the Hudson's Bay Company feel fully justified in their present aim of increasing the number of their customers by 5,000.

WORKERS HAMPER REAL SOCIALISM

PREMIER MACDONALD FEARS PRESENT TENDENCIES

Preface to New Addition of Well-Known Book Says Profiteering
Has Become Universal

LONDON, Sept. 11.—That the present day tendencies among the workers threaten the ideals of genuine Socialism is the fear expressed by Premier MacDonald in a preface he has just written for a new addition to his well-known book on Socialism. After defending Socialism as evolutionary, not revolutionary,
the Prime Minister writes:

"The revolutionary and materialistic frames of mind created by the war are becoming a serious menace to the Socialist spirit of common service. Profiteering has become universal. The evil is not confined to the classes generally designated as profiteers, but has infected all sections."

The Premier complains that in the legitimate struggle to remedy their hard and unjust conditions the workers are being tempted to force. They are all interdependent members of a social unity and consequently only injure themselves by punishing those against whom they have grievance to such an extent that they injure the society to which they belong.

Trade Unionists' Limitations
"The trade unionist," continues Mr. MacDonald, "has the same limitations imposed upon him in this respect as the capitalist—he cannot advance his interests at the expense of society. It cannot be over-emphasized that public duties, strikes for increased wages and limitation of output not only are not Socialism, but may mislead the spirit and policy of the Socialist movement."

"Socialism calls on men to give unlimited service in return for a reasonable reward measured in terms of life and nobody should be more impatient than the Socialist with the fallacy that a man cannot be expected to give service before he gets a reward. The Socialist, therefore, looks with some misgivings on the recent developments in the conflicts between capital and labor. They are contrary to this spirit, he believes.

They are immoral, uneconomic and will lead to disaster."

gard to the present civil war in

At City Temple—Rev. Clem Davies will preach Sunday morning at the Victoria City Temple on "The Message of the Modern Ministry" and sound a warning against the displacement of proper recognition to the important elements of worship. This will be the last outdoor service of the season.

No Changes at Night School—Curriculum and fees at the night school this year will be substantially the same as last year, according to the schedule under the trustees at their meeting Thursday night. Municipal Inspector Deane stated that the fees in Victoria are about the same as those charged in Vancouver. Formal notice was received from the Esquimalt School Board that it would not be responsible for Esquimalt pupils attending the Victoria High School.

First Meeting Held—The Ladies' Aid of the First Congregational Church held the first meeting of the season on Tuesday at the home of the president, Mrs. Walker, Albany Road. It took the form of a miscellaneous shower in preparation for the winter sale. At the close of the business afternoon tea was served by Mrs. Osard. On the previous Friday Mrs. Clifford Walker kindly lent her home and garden on Linden Avenue for a lawn social, when a very enjoyable time was spent.

Would Bring Singer Here—Music lovers of Victoria will be pleased to know that Mary McCoy Jamieson, the local authority on Gaelic and Scotch

Mr. Macleod is at present in Winnipeg, visiting his daughter, Mrs. Macdonald. He has sung before royalty by committee and has also produced a number of excellent records for the Columbia Graphophone Company. His repertoire includes all of the best of the Southern Scottish songs as well as those of the Highlands.

TWO ESCAPE HURT PINNED UNDER CAR

MOTOR JUMPS OFF ISLAND HIGHWAY AND TURNS OVER

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, Ladysmith, Are Scratched and Bruised—Poor Road Held Responsible

LADYSMITH, Sept. 11.—On the Island Highway on the outskirts of Ladysmith this afternoon, a car driven by Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, well-known hardware merchant of Ladysmith, skidded in loose gravel, smashed through a fence and finally came to a stop upside down in a small ditch. With Mr. Bailey in the machine were his wife and Mr. Allan Porter, of Saltair.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bailey were pinned under the car. Mr. Porter was thrown clear, unhurt. No serious damage was done to any of the occupants of the vehicle, however. Mr. Bailey escaping with minor injuries and his wife with a shaking up, and a few bruises. Both are expected to be fully recovered in a day or two.

The accident was directly traceable to the poor condition of the Island Highway at this point, where it adjoins the mill of the Eastern Lumber Company. The surface of the road has been worn away and gravel is piled in heaps on each side. The place has been the scene of three mishaps in the last week, although all have not been as serious as today's accident. The Bailey car has been the first to go into the ditch. This point has a bad name among tourists, some of whom have vowed never to return while such roads must be traveled.

The wrecking crew recently purchased by Mr. I. E. Lowe, of the Ladysmith Garage, proved its worth after this afternoon's smash by lifting the Bailey machine in its badly smashed condition back to the road again in short order.

WOODSMAN MAKES JOB OF PRUNING TREES

Magistrate Jay Reserves Judgment in Charge Against Tenant for Destruction

A case involving the wholesale destruction of trees on the grounds of the late Mr. E. Mohun, 615 Hinchard Street, came before Magistrate Jay in the police court yesterday. Mrs. Emma Reid, the tenant of the place, was charged with the destruction of the trees. The case was adjourned to Thursday in order to consider the evidence before reaching a conclusion.

The evidence of Chief Fry of the city forces who had examined the grounds as to the extent of the damage done was that he had found trees cut down as follows: Four horse chestnuts from four to six inches in diameter; five fruit trees from five to seven inches; a large chestnut about eight or ten inches; a large maple measuring two feet six inches in diameter; a small tree of about five inches in diameter; a maple eight inches through; and a clump of maple had been cut off close to the ground.

"Grow from Roots." Mr. Arthur Wolfenden, manager of the B. C. Land & Investment Company, the agents for the place, testified that he had given no permission for the cutting of any of the trees. The big maple tree had been in place about sixty years. When he remonstrated with Mrs. Reid she said that it would do the trees good as they would grow up from the roots.

In reply to Mr. Aikman who had returned to represent Mrs. Reid, witness said that the maple tree had been cut down by four men from the ground. The accused had called it pruning.

Mrs. Mohun testified that she had never given any permission to cut the trees down.

Mr. Joseph Saxby said he had done the "pruning" under engagement with Mrs. Reid. He is very deaf and some difficulty was experienced in getting the facts from him. He had been instructed to cut down a holly tree, but had refused to do so and had only trimmed it. He had also refused to cut down the laurel hedge completely. He testified that the instructions of Mrs. Reid were to cut the trees down. He had followed the instructions.

Understood Pruning Mrs. Reid, called in her own defence, said that Mr. Saxby told her he understood pruning "as he had worked all his life in the woods." She had instructed him to do the pruning. She had told him she did not want the trunk touched.

To Mr. C. L. Prior, who appeared for the prosecution, witness denied that she had had the trees cut down so that a sign that she had a boarding house on the premises could be seen from Belleville Street.

Mr. Aikman felt that it could not be said that the accused had wilfully destroyed the trees. She had only employed the man to prune them and the charge should be laid against the latter if against anyone. It was quite evident that the fact that the man was deaf had perhaps led to the misunderstanding.

LEADER OF TORIES OFF FOR INTERIOR

HON. DR. TOLMIE WILL ACCOMPANY CONSERVATIVE CHIEF

Mr. Pooley Will Proceed to North Okanagan in Connection With Approaching By-Election

Mr. R. H. Pooley, Provincial Conservative leader, will be accompanied by Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Federal Conservative organizer, who arrived in Victoria yesterday from the East, when he leaves tonight for the Mainland en route to the Interior. The Conservative leader will proceed direct to North Okanagan, where he will marshal the forces to oppose the election of Dr. K. C. Macdonald, newly-appointed Provincial Secretary, in the by-election to be held in that constituency on September 24. Dr. Tolmie will travel to Penikese, where he will confer with Conservative forces relative to the approaching Federal by-election in that riding. Afterwards he will journey to North Okanagan, to assist the Conservatives in their fight against Dr. Macdonald.

"We believe we have a good opportunity to upset some of the nice calculations of Hon. John Oliver in the North Okanagan by-election," said Mr. Pooley last night. "The Conservatives are being held for the purpose of choosing a candidate to oppose Dr. Macdonald, and it is felt that whoever secures the nomination will have behind him the full strength of consolidated Conservative forces. The name of Mr. Price Elliott, who ran as an Independent Conservative in the late general election, has been put forth, and it is understood that he has consented to allow his name to go before the convention. Mr. R. J. Colhart, it is understood, will not be a candidate.

Fashions and Foibles

By Shirley Sharen

The exigencies of the nine-to-five business days are very well met by the present styles of very simple, easily freshened clothes.

The present excessively simple styles are a boon to the woman of affairs. The narrow bellies, frock with no plaits to be pressed, made of a material that doesn't resent being sat on, in a color that doesn't show dust and spots and with removable collars and cuffs that can be changed daily, makes a perfect working costume and one that is very smart into the bargain. The beige, grey and fawn shades are more spot-proof—if not too light a shade—than black, brown or navy, but any of them is correct and good style. Cashmere is new, and will, rep. kasha, plaids, etc., are smart.

Harry Wills Displays Superiority Over Firpo

Negro Heavyweight Has Better of Nearly Every Round in Fight With Argentine Slugger—Fight Goes Full Twelve Rounds With Colored Man Gaining Newspaper Decision—Arena Is Jammed With Huge Crowd

JERSEY CITY, Sept. 11.—Harry Wills, colored New York heavyweight boxer, gained a newspaper decision over Luis Angel Firpo in a twelve-round no-decision bout before a crowd that crammed the arena at Boyle's Thirty Acres here tonight. The negro led from the very start. His blows carried more steam than those of his rival, and Wills was given nearly every round.

The Fight in Rounds

Round one.—The fight opened with a rush, both men boxing right and left. Wills landed with a hard right swing. In a clinch Wills had all the best of it, peppering Firpo's back and kidneys with short jabs. Firpo shot a hard right to body. Wills clinched, sending Firpo staggering with left in the breakaway. Wills' furious assaults seemed to puzzle the negro, who was in clinches which were frequent, being particularly brilliant. Firpo shot a hard right to Wills' heart. In this round Wills had the best of the argument.

Round two.—Firpo attacked furiously. Wills cleverly avoided punches and clinched. Wills frequently clinched, holding Firpo while he shot rights to the body. The referee warned Wills against holding. A right to the jaw sent Firpo to the floor, and when he got to his feet again Wills peppered him with steaming rights and lefts. Firpo landed right to head as bell rang.

Round three.—The men exchanged blows freely. Wills countering with a barrage of body blows after Firpo had landed a beautiful uppercut. Wills holding in clinches, he brought warning from the referee. Firpo shot a terrific right to Wills' body and the negro retaliated with right and left to ribs. Wills was still getting punished in clinches.

Round four.—Wills staggered Firpo with a right flush to face, but failed to follow up his advantage. Firpo was missing frequently, his rights directed to the head going wide. Wills' work was good. At close range he landed a hard right to the jaw, followed by a left swing to the body, which caused Firpo to wince.

Round five.—The fighters wrestled around the ring, pulling and heaving each other. Wills blocked twice sharply to head. Wills was blocking beautifully. Wills hammered Firpo's kidneys. Wills' right stunned Luis. Both men were roughly tiring.

Round six.—There was again plenty of body punching at close quarters. Wills doing most damage. Firpo landed weakly to head and then halfway across the ring to avoid Wills' rush. Wrestling tactics continued. Firpo sent a stiff right to body and Wills hammered him ribs.

Round seven.—The Argentine's punting rushes were missing. Wills doubled Firpo up with a left to body. Firpo sent in right and left to head. Wills jabbed with left and crossed with right, staggering Firpo in his own corner. The negro was undoubtedly hitting hard, and drew in the main event here last night. In the semi-final Billy Young, of Vancouver, B.C., won the decision over Willie O'Brien, Los Angeles lightweight.

Round eight.—Firpo came up at the bell, jabbed weakly with left, but a straight right sent his head back with a snap. Wills was boxing superbly, his punches carrying plenty of steam. Firpo was short with a right uppercut, but landed twice to body. Wills was boxing right and left to the head. Firpo appeared to be in bad shape when the round ended.

Round nine.—Wills did Firpo up with a right uppercut, but landed twice to body. Wills was boxing right and left to the head. Firpo appeared to be in bad shape when the round ended.

Round ten.—The men exchanged body blows. Firpo protested to the referee against Wills' hitting in clinches. Wills' heavy right found Firpo's body consistently and he landed a one-two punch before they clinched. Firpo landed a stiff one to the wind and landed weakly to the

LAWRENCE EVERETT OFF FOR ENGLAND

POPULAR LOCAL ATHLETE TO TOUR OLD LAND ON BICYCLE
WILL SPEND SIX MONTHS IN BRITISH ISLES—May Fly to Paris—Active in Running and Cycle Circles

Lawrence Everett, the well-known Victoria cyclist and marathon runner, will leave next week on a visit to his old home in England. He will sail from Montreal on September 27, on the White Star liner Doric for the British Isles, where he intends remaining for a period of five or six months.

Upon arriving in England, "Laurie," as his many friends call him, will first visit his parents, who reside in Somerset, and then proceed to inspect the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley. Early in November he proposes to cycle as much around the British Isles as time will permit. From Edinburgh he intends going direct to London and back on home again to Somerset. He also hopes to visit the continent.

Having secured a six months' leave of absence from the customs office here, where he is employed, Lawrence will be able to travel about the British Isles as he possibly can, and prefers to travel about in the Old Land on a bicycle rather than depend upon railroads, motors, etc., as means of transportation. He will not take a bicycle with him, but will purchase one in London.

"Laurie" is well known in sporting circles in Victoria, and since he first came to this city in 1917 he has been an active participant in several branches of athletics. He has been an entrant in many marathon races, and in all the fourteen long distance events in which he took part he has never failed to finish.

The crowd began to assemble early for the fight here tonight, and when the first preliminary started it was estimated approximately 95,000 persons had jammed their way into the arena.

In the first preliminary McKenna defeated Mike Ferrara by a slight margin on points. The men are still getting punished in clinches.

Carl Johnson defeated Joe Silvani in a four-round heavyweight clash.

Bill Tate caused Joe Cassanova to take a nose dive early in the first round.

HEAVY BETTING

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Close to a million dollars, it was predicted in Wall Street circles, would be wagered on the outcome of the Luis Firpo-Harry Wills fight.

One firm of betting commissionaires alone reported it had handled more than $250,000 on the fight, with Firpo ruling a slight favorite in most cases.

Most of the wagers on Firpo were on the basis that he would win by a knockout. One bet of $1,000 to $4,000 was reported that Firpo would score a knockout in the first round.

denying the fact that the contest at Ayr, where the league champions are due, will be regarded as the most interesting of the season.

Last season the Rangers met their first reverse at Ayr, while two years ago, in the same town, the right Blues were knocked out of the Scottish Cup. The United has generally done well against the Ibrox team, even when the side was going indifferently in other games.

"Bairns" and Hovorts
If one were to pick the next best team on the list, the choice would fall on the engagement between the Rangers and Hovorts.

So far as we can recall, the Hearts have never won a league game at Falkirk. A year ago the result was a no-scoring draw, but Falkirk won the return game at Tynecastle by 3-1.

The Celtic should continue their winning form against St. Mirren at Parkhead.

St. Johnstone is set a big task in opposing Airdrieonians away from home at Cowdenbeath, however, has an easier proposition—Morton appearing in Fifeshire town.

Items of Interest
Leicester City beat Chelsea by 4-0 at Leicester last week. The return game at Stamford Bridge resulted in a 3-3 draw.

Newcastle United is a great "drawn" side—financially and otherwise. In their first four games this season they lost one and drew the next three.

Huddersfield Town F.C. gave a dinner the other evening to celebrate the winning of the league championship for 1923-24. One speaker attributed the success of the club to the harmony that pervaded all sections of the organization from the top to the players, and not least to the trainer.

William Meredith, the Manchester City and Welsh International footballer, has been signed on by his old club. The last has probably been one of the famous Welshman as a big league player. He has had his day—and what a great day it has been.

The death announcement of James McLuckie, a once-famous centre-forward, has died in New York, following an operation. He was a Scotman, and first made his mark for Hury. He was in the Bury team that won the English Cup in 1909, when Southampton was beaten 4-0. He also assisted Aston Villa, and later played in Canada.

The death is also announced of Thomas Meehan. He suffered from "sleeping sickness" and passed away in London hospital. The first big club was Manchester United, and as a half-back he put up some wonderful games. He was later transferred to Chelsea. Meehan played for England last season.

Henderson, the Glasgow Rangers' centre-forward, opened the season in promising style when he had the "hat-trick" against Hibernia, when he scored the three goals obtained by a club.

A club was later the "hat-trick" was again registered in a league game. This time the performance was accomplished by Skinner, the Ayr United forward, against the Hearts—and at Tynecastle, too.

Airdrieonians have suffered a disappointing set-back owing to the injuries sustained by two of their best players—Ewart, goalkeeper, and McQueen, back. Both men have done splendid work for the club during the past two seasons.

CARD COMPLETED FOR BOXING SHOW

SIX GOOD BOUTS ON THURSDAY PROGRAMME
Tommy Moore Will Box Mason of Navy—Hayley and Roy Training Hard for Scrap

Billy Davies has completed his card for the boxing show to be staged next week, when Joe Hayley, of Victoria, will again defend his laurels, this time being against Alec Roy, also a local boy. Six good bouts, including the main item, are on the card, and those who attend Pantages Theatre next Thursday evening should enjoy a good evening's sport.

Among the preliminaries is a four-round bout between Tommy Moore, of Nanaimo, and A. B. Mason, of Esquimalt Naval Barracks. Moore is a boxer who is well known here as a first-rate performer with the padded mitts, and in view of the fact that he also has sent a challenge to Joe Hayley, his work will be watched with great interest.

All the contestants in the preliminaries, with the exception of Moore, are now busy working out at the quarters of Bayley or Roy, and the workouts are being witnessed by large crowds of interested fans, which points to another full house when these boys meet in the ring next Thursday evening.

A meeting is being held this evening between the contestants in the main event and the promoter when a decision will be made in regard to the selection of judges and referee. Promoter Davies will insist that the referee be an outsider, and it is quite likely that a Vancouver man will be brought over to act as third man in the ring.

The programme of events is as follows:
Flyweights, 3 rounds—A. Woods, (Victoria) vs. Nanaimo entry.
Bantams, 2 rounds—Eddie Wilkinson (Victoria) vs. Len Woodley (Victoria).

Feathers, 4 rounds—Danny Pascoe (Victoria) vs. Dave Lewis (Victoria).
Heavies, 4 rounds—Sam McFee (Victoria) vs. McAllister (Victoria).

Semi-windup, 4 rounds, 140 lbs.—Tommy Moore (Nanaimo) vs. A. B. Mason (Esquimalt Naval Barracks).
Main event for Canadian lightweight championship, 10 rounds—Joe Hayley (Victoria, champion) vs. Alec Roy (Victoria, challenger).

Nayada Breaks Rudder
In Race at Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Mebeth, the Lake Erie entry in the "R" boat championship contests, won the first race today over two rivals, Nayada, of Ontario, and Ariel, of Lake Michigan. The Canadian boat Nayada broke her rudder, but repaired it and sailed around the course miles astern of the two leaders.

S.O.E. Football Club
Is Meeting Tonight

The Sons of England Football Club will hold its first general meeting for this season at 8 o'clock this evening, at the Foresters' Hall, Broad Street. As it is planned to open the season on the 27th instant, all players and those interested in the team are expected to attend and give a rousing start to a season which promises something even better than that of 1923-1924.

England Not Played Out, Declares Dean Quainton

Old Country Changed, Yet Same, Seven Hundred People Hear in New Memorial Hall—Less Snobbery Since War—Oxford Men Now Go Into Business—Young People No Worse Than in Past—Liquor Without Strong Kick of Former Days

"Is England changed? In one sense she has; in another she has not. She has still her amazing neatness. She has still—I hope—her honesty, although there is a petty thieving in the garage, in the hotel, since the war. She is still the same in her patient way of bearing a heavy burden, in her dislike of tail-talk. And the Englishman is still the same in his refusal to be driven, his willingness to be led; in his dislike of the superlative phrase for commonplace people and commonplace things; in his knack of grumbling. And they are still playing cricket in England, and in this connection please remember that Yorkshire won the cricket championship."

In such fashion did Very Rev. Dean Quainton talk to the seven hundred people packed into the new Cathedral Memorial Hall last evening. The interest in the lecture far surpassed the expectations of the organizers, and literally hundreds of people turned away owing to lack of seats. What the Dean had to say about the Motherland was not by any means all flattering, but his criticism was tempered by such, were tempered by an obvious affection. And they related rather to the practical and material things than to the abstract. Because of its idealism, the Englishman is still the same in his refusal to be driven, his willingness to be led; in his dislike of the superlative phrase for commonplace people and commonplace things; in his knack of grumbling. And they are still playing cricket in England, and in this connection please remember that Yorkshire won the cricket championship."

No Pessimist
"I am not among those who think that England is played out. It may be that the Empire's commercial centre of gravity may move from the Atlantic to the Pacific, but I still think we shall look to the Old Land for high ideals," said the Dean. The national spirit was unbroken and indestructible. No race in the world had a deeper sense of idealism, a stronger mysticism. It was the mysticism of the England of today that had found expression in the great nave cathedral at Liverpool. England had put into that noble monument of stone her belief in the unseen, her appreciation of invisible power.

"Had it not been for this deep vein of mysticism, I believe the British throne would have gone long ago. Millions of the loyal people of England about never seen the British throne nor the British King. When we sing 'God Save the King,' we demonstrate this mysticism. The things which the seen are temporary; the things that are unseen are eternal."

English mysticism concentrated in the crown, the symbol of a sovereign's power, returning to the land to be increased even since Victoria's reign. "Canada has the virtues and defects of youth; England the virtues and defects of old age," continued the Dean.

The "New Rich"
The Dean spoke of the "new rich" and the "new poor." He spoke of the war profiteer, in two or three generations, he thought, would acquire the ideals of the older landed gentry; "who have been both strengthened and weakened by additions from those who are spoken of as the lower classes." England has accomplished this fact of absorption before; she could do it again.

"I am inclined to think there is rather less snobbery in England than before the war," continued the speaker. Cambridge and Oxford men were going to America in order to learn modern business methods, and to enter the hitherto despised profession of business. Yes, democracy was gaining. The loose sloppy clothes of today were an unmistakable sign of the closer relationship. Of the younger generation of England the Dean had something good to say. The elders in all generations had had the same criticism of the younger people; that things were not as they were when they were young. "Old men among the ancient Babylonians had said it; older people were still saying it."

"If I were a young person today, I would call a public meeting and condemn the sins of the elderly people; their pessimism, their fault-finding, their aversion, some of their tricks of business, their frequent appearance in the divorce courts. I don't believe the young people of England are any worse than the young people of my own time. I think there are as many earnest and sober-minded young people as there ever were. Today they have peculiar and very real temptations—all brought about by the war, by the freedom of the new age. But their faults are on the surface. We know the very worst of the young people nowadays. Fifty years ago there was a furtiveness and secrecy, more silly prudery and hypocrisy. The English girl of today is less of a doll and more of a comrade."

Still Overdrinking
Although England was becoming more temperate in her use of alcoholic liquors, the average Englishman still drank more than was good for him. Overdrinking was still one of the Englishman's sins. Gambling was on the increase. But despite these things, England was becoming more temperate without the aid of prohibition—chiefly because there is less kick in the liquor since the war, said the Dean. The number of public houses had been reduced. The cinema had come; and no man could spend his time in two places simultaneously. Education had done much to aid the temperance cause by moulding public opinion. The Public House Health Association had also done much for the cause by improving public houses and giving managers commissions for pushing the sale of non-alcoholic liquors and food. This made it to the interest of the manager not to push the sale of alcoholic drinks.

Higher Education
The democratization of the older universities, the increased facilities for education among all classes, scholarships open to any who had the ability to win them, movements tending to the extension of school age, all these were in the best direction, and it was increasingly recognized that better education would make worse but better ploughmen and dishwashers. And it was notable that this was the first time in history that the demand for better education had come from below.

A democratic society, if it is to be wholesome and peace-loving, must be educated, said the Dean. It would help the people to distinguish between bags of wind and bags of treasure—in their politicians and elsewhere.

Trades Unions
Recalling the "bitter conditions" which allowed trades unions to arise, Dean Quainton, while sympathizing, seemed to regret a little the attitude which the unions in their attitude toward dilution of labor.

He expressed a great sympathy for the Labor party owing to their great passion for social reform. As a party they were learning the difference between destructive criticism out of office and constructive criticism in office. They were learning that they could not escape the historic past of England; that in a single night heaven and earth could not descend without some connection with the past.

"The Socialists are moulding the past of England; the past of England is moulding the Socialists," said the speaker with epigrammatic force. An amusing illustration of this was given in the House recently when a Socialist minister who had rejected the proposal for the installation of a "loud speaker" and microphone, things which were new and useful, had enthusiastically supported a proposal to mend Hadrian's wall, a thing which was old and useless.

Almost solemn appreciation was expressed for Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, whose government had already achieved very wonderful things, both in its home and foreign policies. He had succeeded to office partly because of the failure of his predecessors; and his government had been criticized for its failure to solve the unemployment problem; for the remission of the McKenna duties; for their refusal to support the naval base at Singapore, and for other points. But they had relief works for the unemployment problem, and logical arguments to meet their critics on the other questions.

The Dean had something to say also about the English climate, her amazing ignorance of and indifference to facts about Canada and British Columbia. One of the newspapers had even called him in all good faith "The Dean of Colombo."

SOVIET TREATY MAY CAUSE ELECTIONS

EDITOR OF LONDON TIMES GIVES INTERVIEW AT QUEBEC
British Sentiment Strongly Critical of Measure, and Indicates Point to Contend, Says Journalist

QUEBEC, Sept. 11.—That the Russian trade treaty may cause general elections in England as a result of the strenuous opposition it is bound to meet in the House of Commons was the opinion expressed by Mr. G. G. Dawson, editor of The London Times, in an interview this morning at the Chateau Frontenac. Mr. Dawson is on a trip to the Western Provinces. Though a Conservative himself, Mr. Dawson said that he had always been in favor of giving Labor a chance in power, and personally he could see no reason for regretting of this decision.

The Labor government had made many mistakes as they were bound to do through lack of experience. The people were surprised over their last budget, but considerable opposition is expected to be given the next budget, the government having had plenty of time during the year it has been in office to draw up an absolute Labor budget, their previous one having really been drawn up by the Baldwin administration.

Anxious as to Treaty
There was great anxiety in England over the Russian treaty which had been rushed through without due consideration by the British Government, and this in turn was proving adverse to trade conditions, causing a consequent increase in unemployment, with a very bad winter facing the country. There still remained the question as to whether Ramsay MacDonald intended seeing the treaty through, thus bringing about a battle in the House of Commons, which would oblige him to go to the country in a general election or whether in reality it was only intended by him as a pacifier to the more extreme Laborites.

The Irish boundary question appeared, very dangerous when Mr. Dawson left England, he said, and he learned just before sailing that the Imperial Government had decided to call a special session of parliament on September 30, when it would introduce a bill which would authorize it to appoint a commissioner to act in the interests of Ulster to the boundary immediately. This was necessary in view of the fact that Ulster refused to appoint a commissioner itself on the commission. The British Government will thus reassemble month earlier than was scheduled, the end of October being the ordinary period for its gathering. One thing certain, Mr. Dawson stated, is that no party in England wishes to go before the people in a general election over the Irish situation.

Mr. Dawson will remain a guest at the Chateau Frontenac for three or four days to visit the many points of interest in the ancient capital, after which he will visit friends at Little Meville, but has not arranged any travelling programme beyond that point.

STRAWBERRY VALE
STRAWBERRY VALE, Sept. 11.—Strawberry Vale Women's Institute is responsible for two interesting events over the week-end. On Friday evening the first steps necessary to forming a company of Girl Guides at the Vale will be taken when a meeting will be held at 8 o'clock in the institute room at Colquhoun. Under the auspices of the ladies the first of a winter series of card parties will be held on Tuesday evening in the Strawberry Vale Institute Hall on Burnside Road.

London Theatres

By E. Montisambert

LONDON (By Mail)—I hastened to see "Storm," the new play at the Ambassador, as soon as I returned to London, and came away marveling that Mr. Munro should have fallen into such very obvious pitfalls when his theme and his interpreters were so good.

Why, when his success with "At Mrs. Beam's" was still fresh in the public mind, did he show so little courage as to repeat his setting and place almost the same characters again in a boarding house, and even repeat his plot to the extent of introducing to the boarding house Milieu, talking the same drive, another faux monnaie. Surely he could have quite easily developed his theme of the antipathy between one type of unmarried woman and her married rival in a fresh setting and used dialogue not so very reminiscent that one felt one had heard it all before at Mrs. Beam's. As it is, in spite of the clever acting of Miss Cadell, the debutante Miss Elissa Landi, Mr. Hugh Wakefield and Lindsey Gray, the piece suffers from repetition.

"Pansy's Arabian Night," which Messrs. Alfred Butt and Basil Dean are presenting at the Queen's Theatre, is certainly a play that lives up to its title, but before going further let me congratulate whoever compiled the programme with the genial idea of adding brief biographical notes about the cast to the joy of the critic who fills the blank pages of books of reference with the names not to be found therein.

Walter Hackett wrote the play and his wife, Marian Lorne, therefore plays the part without any explanation of her transatlantic accent. The car in which she has induced Mr. Attawater (J. H. Roberts) to let her drive in search of adventure breaks down outside a forbidding house, whose door finally opens, and from that moment Pansy and her unwilling cavalier find themselves involved in more romance than even she had bargained for. Villains, thieves, murderers, swindlers make their entrances and exit in breathless confusion impossible to recall in detail, but one carries away a very definite memory of the consummate artistry of Mr. Roberts' acting, never over-emphasized, but always mirth-provoking. If the play does not give him quite such an opportunity as "The Ladies of the Field," it is a quaint interlude and very well acted by a cast that includes Malcolm Keen, Campbell Gullan, Mary Clare.

He rides that dare-devil little horse, Tony, across a swaying trestle with a speeding locomotive coming up behind him. He takes the fiery animal through the mountain storm on "horse throwers." Never head of them? Well, Mix invented them and Tony wears 'em. The story of "The Trouble Shooter" was written by Frederick and Fanny Hatton, after a searching study of the lives and duties of Western linemen employed by the power companies which strung wires through the mountains and the desert wastes. Working with Mix in the cast are Kathleen Key, Earl Fox, J. Gunnle Davis, Howard Truax, Frank Currier, Mike Donlin, the former big league ball player, Dalores House, Charles McHugh and Al Freeman. The picture was directed by John Conway and Mix never appeared to better advantage in any part in his spectacular career.PLAYHOUSE Carmel Myers and THEATRE Beale Love are starring in a little drama and comedy called "The Flying Torpedo." They first entered high school together they became inseparable companions and planned their studies and free moments together. Without a preliminary planning they were suddenly swept into motion pictures, both getting their first work at the old Griffith studio. And when Beale Love was given her first big part, Carmel got hers and they were in the same picture, "The Flying Torpedo." Beale played the ingenue lead and Carmel the dark-eyed siren. Ten years have gone by and during all that time they have continued their friendship but have never played together, not even as much as at the same studio. Then almost to a day from the time they played together in "The Flying Torpedo" they were both cast in "Slave of Desire," the film version of "The Magic Skin," the Balzac story which is an entertaining theatre-going treat this week at the Playhouse Theatre. Their parts are the same as before. Beale is the young girl heroine and Carmel wrecks havoc with her irresistible eyes as the Countess Fedora.DOMINION Jack Holt, who has the THEATRE featured male role in the new Fleming-Fleming production now playing at the Dominion Theatre, is a philosopher of no mean ability. Some of his sayings are well known throughout the Dominion. A few of them: When an extra ceases to look for glory and fame and well-comes a day's work because it means a few dollars, ambition suffers a cruel blow. Bank presidents are not made in a day; neither do Senators rise overnight. No one can be a star on a new entrance into motion pictures. Nobody can direct a motion picture in his own mind. It is the hard facts of actual direction that distinguish a real director. Holt is a practical philosopher, that is to say, he practices what he preaches. Always ambitious to succeed, he struggled along year after year, and at last, with fully and always striving to do his best. Today, despite the fact that he is one of the most successful actors in the Dominion, he works just as hard as when he was an obscure extra.PANTAGES Has every child the THEATRE right to have both parents? When setting forth the qualities of a motion picture, the abundance of superlatives is the thing most needed, according to the unwritten law of motion picture publicity and advertising. A. Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall, the latest screen production of Mary Pickford, coming to the Dominion Theatre next week, is a perfect example of the use of these well-worn superlatives. "Never since Mary Pickford started her screen career has she assembled such a cast of players," says Manager Robertson. "Weeks were spent in the selection of the cast. Sets that for beauty and reality could be equaled by no other described were constructed after thorough study and research had been made. On the screen one sees the impressive, castle, Early England set in the landscape that transport the watcher to that picturesque country."

Eleven Million People See Empire Exhibition

Visitors to Queen's Doll's House Contribute to Charity in Sixpences $125,000—Westminster Bridge to Be Tested for Signs of Traffic Strain—"Touching the Knocker" at No. 10 Downing Street—Story of the Inns of Court

(By PANTON HOUSE)
LONDON, Aug. 22. (by Mail).—Yesterday the British Empire exhibition received its eleven millionth visitor, the last million having arrived within eight days. The Queen's doll's house, in the Palace of Arts, which is being shown at a charge of sixpence a head, earned the restaurants at Wembley, and it appears they are a somewhat better fingered crowd. Every six days they contrive to break five tons of crockery, or 10,000 pieces, including 9,132 cups, 4,140 saucers, 1,444 plates and 9,288 oddments. To these must be added glasses at the rate of about 40,000 a week.

On September 1 a large party is to arrive at Wembley from Guernsey, in the Channel Islands. It will bring with it banners and flags, and a Norman invasion from Guernsey. The Channel Islands, owned by Duke of Normandy in the tenth century, have been united with the English Crown since William I came over; the inhabitants consider that England belongs to them rather than they to England, and are accustomed to give the royal toast as "The Duke of Normandy, His Majesty King George."

Testing a Bridge
Within the next few days Westminster Bridge (the handsome bridge that spans the Thames from the Houses of Parliament to the County Hall) is to be tested for signs of strain due to the passage of heavy traffic. It will be closed for a quarter of an hour—which means that over 150 tramcars, 150 motor buses and 400 other vehicles will be held up or have to find another way around. Among the instruments to be used is an optical-stress-recorder, fitted with a cinematographic apparatus for photographing changes in the material caused by strain.Charm of Downing Street
"No. 10," the Prime Minister's house in Downing Street, has a powerful attraction for the visitors from all parts of England, Scotland and Wales, who are flocking to London this August at the rate of 250,000 a week. Canadians usually like to inspect this narrow, seventeenth-century street, but it is not they who have started the custom of touching the ministerial door-knocker. This is the practice of many pilgrims nowadays. They do not, like bad boys, knock and run away, but simply finger the lion's head in a way that can disturb nobody.PROVINCIAL POLICE ANTICIPATED REQUEST

Had Been Working on Janet Smith Case Previous to Agitation for Second Inquest

VANCOUVER, Sept. 11.—Provincial police will redouble their efforts to trace the murderer of Janet Smith, Point Grey housemaid, backed by a verdict of murder from a coroner's jury the police will leave no stone unturned in their attempt to detect the person or persons who killed the pretty servant girl. It is understood that the police do not intend to offer a reward for the capture of the murderer, believing that this measure would be useless.
It developed today that the Attorney-General's Department had commenced investigations and decided on a second inquest, before the agitation in favor of such a course commenced. The Provincial police had been working on the case for some time before the second inquest started.Bank Short $700,000
PUTNAM, Conn., Sept. 11.—The First National Bank of Putnam, which closed after its cashier, G. H. Harold Gilpatrick, former state treasurer, attempted to commit suicide on August 7, is short $700,000 in its accounts as a result of the cashier's embezzlements, which are known and produced on the stage by William A. Brady. The picture comes to the Capitol Theatre next week for six days.Another new custom is the photographing of small boys, standing as near as may be to the doorstep of "No. 10." The explanation given by the fond mamma with the camera is that if Tommy or George eventually becomes Prime Minister, the picture will be of historical interest.
Zoo's Record Breaking
The Zoological Gardens—undoubtedly London's favorite pleasure resort—have been breaking all their "gate" records this August. In the first sixteen days of the month they had 288,783 visitors, an increase of thirty-three per cent over the corresponding period in 1923.

The present holder of the record for escapes is an owl, who has been discovered on no less than fifteen separate occasions, two tanks away from his proper home in the great new aquarium. He has not been caught in the act, but it is clear that he wriggles up the rockwork, does a wriggle up along narrow ledges, and then alights down into the compartment that he prefers; "the reason assigned for the rash act" being that he is bullied by a big brother. He is now to be allowed to stay in the new tank, in the peaceful society of a number of sea worms.

Inns of Court
Canadian lawyers and their families who took part in the recent London gathering of the English, Canadian and American Bar Associations, will be interested in a recently-published book, "The Story of the Inns of Court," by Sir D. Plunket Barton, K.C., and Messrs Charles Benham and Francis Watt. The records of the Inner and Middle Temple begin early in the sixteenth century, their traditional history in 1347, when certain lawyers and students leased what had once been the property of the Knights Templars from their successors, the Knights Hospitallars. The Templars' headquarters had been confiscated in 1307, when their Order came to grief on charges of treason, sorcery and black magic.
The Title of the Inner and Middle Temples was regularized by royal grant in the reign of James I, conditional on a rent of £20 per annum, and after the presentation to the King of a golden cup valued at £448—about £14,800 in modern money. The yearly value of the property today is probably over $500,000.Jugo-Slavic's Army

BALTIMORE, Sept. 10.—A Christian college in India is proposed by the Lutheran Board of Foreign Missions, which is attempting to raise $500,000 in America for that purpose. The object of the college is to lay a firm foundation for the extension of general education among the masses of the teeming population of the Indian Empire. ## Three New Coast Boats for Union Company of B.C.

Coaster Construction Company, of Montrose, Secures Contract—To Be 230 Feet Long and Have Speed of 15 and 14 Knots an Hour—One Will Be Used in Alaska Service

TO BE DELIVERED FOR 1925 TOURIST SEASON

FOLLOWING the placing of the SS. Cardena in the Alaska service, and the Lady Alexandra in the Vancouver-Howe Sound service, the Union Steamship Company of British Columbia, represented here by Captain George McGregor, of the Victoria Tow Boat Company, has ordered the building of another three passenger and cargo steamers, it was announced here yesterday.

The Coaster Construction Company, Limited, of Montrose, has been awarded the contract, and these orders will provide work at the Montrose yard for some period.

This year the Coaster Construction Company delivered to the Union Steamship Company two screw passenger and cargo vessels, and it is a tribute to the efficiency of that steamer that the Union Company has gone back to the Montrose yard for three more vessels.

Two of these ships will be used for the day passenger service of the company, and the third will be placed on the Alaskan route, to run opposite the Cardena.

Description

Each of the ships is to be about 230 feet in length over all. The day service steamers will have a speed of fifteen and a half knots an hour, and the northern steamer a speed of fourteen knots.

They will be finished in a first-class manner for their respective services, the day steamers having dining saloons and officers' accommodation on the main deck, and an observation house on the promenade deck.

The steamer for the Alaskan run will also have saloons, lounge and observation house on the main and upper decks, and there will also be provided two berth cabins for eighty-eight first class passengers, and four-berth cabins for forty second class passengers.

The vessels will be fitted with powerful sets of twin-screw propelling engines, and two funnels.

Six New Ships

The ordering of these three new coasting passenger and cargo steamers marks the sixth new vessel for coast service. The Canadian Pacific Railway will have both the Princess Kathleen and Princess Marguerite out to this coast for operation on the triangle and Alaska services next spring. The Canadian National Railway will also build a new passenger ship for the Alaska service, to be delivered here in time for the 1925 tourist season. While the three new ships ordered by the Union Steamship Company round out the six, this is only another illustration of the confidence the local steamship firms have in the future of British Columbia, her export business and tourist trade. The Union Steamship Company, it might be pointed out, is the oldest steamship company in this Province, and is steadily building up one of the largest coasting fleets on this coast. It has always been its policy to augment the fleet with new liners as business justified. The Cardena and the Lady Alexandra are both new ships, built within the last year and a half. It is thought quite probable that one of the day steamers may operate between Victoria and Vancouver.

CAPTAIN J. W. TROUP NOW AT MONTREAL

Announces That Lady Mount Stephen May Officiate at Princess Kathleen Launching

Lady Mount Stephen is expected to officiate at the launching of the new C.P.R. coast steamer, Princess Kathleen, which will take place on September 27. It was stated in a special wire to The Colonist from the Montreal office of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The wire states that Capt. J. W. Troup, manager of the British Columbia Steamship Service of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is in Montreal on his way to Glasgow, where he expects to be present at the launching of Princess Kathleen, the first of the new sister steamers for the Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle run, which are under construction by John Brown & Co., of Clydebank.

The Princess Kathleen and the Princess Marguerite will be the largest

OVER 1,000,000 feet of lumber will be loaded this week-end on three ships, it was reported at local mills yesterday. The City of Vancouver, due to arrive here early this morning, will load 505,000 feet for the Atlantic seaboard. The steamer Skagway, which arrived yesterday morning and left late yesterday afternoon, picked up 125,000 feet for California. The Canadian Skirmisher is also due this week-end to load 75,000 feet, but even without this steamer the million mark would have been passed. The above shipments bring the export figure for this week-end to 1,155,000 feet of lumber.

Over 6,000,000 Feet There is no longer any doubt that this month will be the best in the history of lumber export business so far this year. Over 6,000,000 feet of lumber will have been shipped out of Victoria by the end of September. Already several large shipments have gone and many other vessels are reported due to load.

The Gyokoh Maru, however, will not come here to load as was at first expected. The lumber for the carrier will be transhipped to Vancouver for loading. Some 135,000 feet will be sent over to the Terminal port by scows.

Next week the Arkansas will arrive to pick up a big shipment of railway ties for England and will be followed by the Dicto, which will load a similar shipment for the same place. The Arkansas will load over 200,000 feet of ties, while the Dicto will load approximately 400,000 feet. The C.P.S. Lumber Company have 100,000 feet and the Lemon-Gonna-son Company 300,000 feet for this steamer. Another lumber ship also due the latter part of this month is the Turi Maru. She will load some 500,000 feet of lumber for the Atlantic seaboard.

That intercoastal lumber movement is picking up is illustrated in the above report. The Atlantic market is taking 230,000 feet of the total shipments for the remainder of the month. The United Kingdom is also showing an increase in demand, for railway ties. That market is taking 700,000 feet of ties this month alone, and further orders are forthcoming.

After ramming her forehead on a rock near Prince Rupert, the steamer Prince John, of the C.G.M.M. Coast Service, will be held at Prince Rupert for repairs, and the chartered steamer Gray will take her run.

BIG SALMON CARGO ON CANADIAN ROVER

Helped Out in the Queen Charlotte Islands Freight Business—Gray Replaces Prince John

Owing to the fact that the steamer Gray had to replace the damaged steamer Prince John, which is laid up in Prince Rupert for repairs, the Canadian Rover was dispatched to Queen Charlotte Islands to help out with the freight business.

With 80,000 cases of canned salmon the Rover arrived from the North last night.

This is one of the large shipments of canned salmon to be made from the Northern packing plants and the Government Marine officials decided to send one of the big boats up and bring the entire shipment down at one time.

Several more such shipments are expected to move soon.

A good service has been given Queen Charlotte Islands this year by the Government line. When the cancelled steamer going to waste for want of additional cans they sent word to the Government line officials and one of the big California steamers was diverted from its regular course and sent to the Northern point with empty cans necessary to care for the pack.

Since the steamer Prince John struck a rock in the North and has been taken off the Prince Rupert to Queen Charlotte Island run the steamer Gray has been pressed into service and is caring for the settlers on the islands.

LOCH KATRINE AT HARLAND & WOLFE

R.M.S.P. IS INCREASING REFRIGERATION SPACE

All of Company's Liners to Have Refrigerators Reconditioned—Will Meet Competition

Coming close on the announcement that the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company had inaugurated a fortnightly service from the United Kingdom to Pacific Coast ports, and that Victoria would soon be placed permanently on that schedule, comes the information that all the company's liners will have their refrigeration space increased.

The Loch Katrine, which leaves soon for this coast, has been taken to the Harland & Wolfe yards at Belfast, to have her refrigeration space enlarged. Each of the company's liners in the U.K.-Pacific Coast service will be taken around to the Harland & Wolfe yards for enlargement of refrigeration space. This particular accommodation will be reconditioned to the same size as that aboard the company's latest motorship Loch Monal.

The R.M.S.P. is to be given considerable competition in this service next year. The Harrison-Deane Line has ordered the building of seven new motorships, of 7,500 tons gross. They will be equally as well equipped as the R.M.S.P. with regard to refrigeration service.

JAPANESE SHIPS MAY PLACE COAL ORDERS

Victoria Dealers Anticipating Big Orders From Japanese Training Squadron Coming Here

Local coal dealers are watching with keen interest for the announcement of the definite sailing date of the Japanese training squadron, comprising the Asama, Asama and Kirishima, for Victoria, on its cruise of the Pacific Coast, visiting Victoria first, then Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Honolulu.

These boats are all coal burners. British Columbia fuel interests received no direct benefit from the British squadron this summer as the boats were all oil burners, but the Japanese ships have not been changed to the more modern fuel.

Several big orders, therefore, are expected from these ships on their arrival here. It is reported that the ships may come to this coast at a much earlier date than at first expected.

This Province increased its output from 125,000 to 175,000 tons and the total output for Canada for June was 714,379 tons.

Exports of Canadian coal for June fell off slightly, being 46,194 tons as compared with 47,965. There was a decrease of nearly 70 per cent in June compared with the five-year average.

NEW INDUSTRY STARTS ON ALEUTIAN ISLANDS

First Shipment of Wool Made From Fur North to Portland Proves of Fine Quality

UNALASKA, Alaska, Sept. 11.—The shipment of seven bags of wool from here to Portland, Oregon, this morning, has brought the residents here a new era for the Aleutian Islands, of which Unalaska Island is one of the largest.

An attempt to establish sheep on the Aleutians, which in many parts about as lush grasses, was undertaken last year. In this enterprise two concerns are engaged, the Aleutian Livestock Company of Los Angeles and the Western Livestock Company of Portland. The wool sent to Portland was said to be of prime quality.

Mexico's Bad Accounts MEXICO CITY, Sept. 11.—The sum of 28,000,000 pesos appears in red ink on the Government's books, says a statement by the Treasury Department, and is composed of uncollected sums due for customs and other federal duties. The department announced that a programme of reforms is being studied, both with the object of collecting what is now overdue and preventing future bad accounts.

DEFENCE DAYS HUGE SUCCESS

Over Sixteen Million Citizens of United States Participate in Exercises Throughout the Country

CAPITAL SEES IMPRESSIVE LINE OF MARCHING MEN

Victoria Pipers Head Line at Bellingham—Ten Thousand Take Part in the Display at Seattle

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Reports tonight to the War Department from the nine corps area headquarters indicated an aggregate civilian participation of more than 16,000,000 in Defence Day exercises all over the country. These included both the one-day volunteers who turned out to fill up the ranks of regular army, national guards and organized reserves and also the civilians who otherwise took part in parades and exercises, exclusive of the crowds along the streets which watched the demonstrations. Corps area commanders were unanimous in declaring the day highly successful and asserting that the public generally was enthusiastic in the endorsement of the national defence programme.

A summary of the reports received at the department said they showed that "more than 16,793,781 persons had participated and that there have been 6,853 local demonstrations."

In the Capital
 A uniformed army of plain American citizens tramped by a reviewing stand today to be greeted by the plain citizen who is commander-in-chief of all the armed forces of the nation—the President. For an hour and a half the tide of marching men flowed up Pennsylvania Avenue with the orderly, steady, unbroken movement of a great river. It was fringed with the uniforms of the regular, national guards, marines and sailors, who gave the spectacle a little of the color of a military ceremony and was supplemented by groups of patriotic women. But the thing that stood out forcefully was that mighty column of plain citizens, with no more than a button of red, white and blue at their breast for trappings, rolling by in endless, thick packed ranks, volunteers for a day to record their pledge of devotion to the flag and its ideals of the duties to go with American citizenship.

COURT HEARS OF BANK'S BAD DEBTS

TRIAL OF O. G. SMITH PROCEEDS AT TORONTO

Judge Decides to Hear Crown's Evidence as to Returns Made by Branch Banks

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—Evidence today in the trial of O. G. Smith, chief accountant of the Home Bank, charged with making false returns to the government, has given by Gordon Chapman, Chapman said that during his period as assistant manager of the Toronto branch no bad debts returns had ever been made to the head office. He also mentioned some loans which had been made by the bank with no security.

Defence counsel, E. N. Shaver, repeated objections to allowing an evidence report from branch banks of which accused could not possibly know anything.

The judge ruled the crown was entitled to put in any evidence which showed any connection by the accused with the work of the bank. "I want to get to the bottom of this, and it is my duty to do so," said the judge. "If the crown can show no connection between this evidence and the accused then it falls."

G. L. Chapman, assistant manager of the Toronto branch, in evidence gave a long list of loans which, in each case, was greater than the security provided. Interest sheets filed show loans totalling $48,927 on which no interest whatever was charged.

A number of loans to H. J. Daly, former president, were shown as covered by notes.

UNITED CHURCH FOR EVERY COMMUNITY

Executive of Joint Committee Issues Statement Following Review of Situation

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—A declaration that there will be a United Church of Canada in every community of the Dominion was made at the close of the meeting of the executive of the joint committee on Church Union this evening following a review of the situation by the members of the executive. It was made clear that the United Church would take care of the ministers of non-concurring congregations who desire to follow their church into the union.

GRANT BRITAIN RESERVATIONS

Sub-Committee of League Upholds Right to Qualify Acceptance of Compulsory Arbitration Clause

MARITIME LAW QUESTIONS ALONE TO BE EXEMPTED

Lord Parmoor Declares Disputes With U.S. Would Be Settled Through Legal or Diplomatic Channels

GENEVA, Sept. 12.—Great Britain's right to sign the compulsory arbitration clause of the World Court of Justice, with reservations, was upheld today by the sub-committee of the League of Nations assembly, which will report its findings to the full judicial commission of the assembly.

This decision means that not only Great Britain but any other state which subscribed to the obligatory arbitration clause has a perfect right to make whatever reservations it chooses. The jurists frankly admitted tonight that this decision, in principle at least, will open the way to a general weakening of the world court statute.

Great Britain made it clear today that her reservation would affect only the fourth category of jurisdiction matters open to compulsory arbitration by the court. This category refers to arbitration of all points of international law and the British representatives indicated that they would confine their reservations to questions of maritime law, which may be raised by some power in consequence of some action by the British fleet while performing a peace service for the League of Nations.

Interpretation of Sea Law
 In other words, Great Britain does not intend to have her interpretation of sea law submitted to obligatory arbitration.

Although today's decision marks a distinct advance in the work of the commission, the jurists laid special emphasis on the fact that it might be continued on Page 11

MR. MAXWELL SMITH RETURNS TO CHARGE

DEFEATED DEWDNEY LIBERAL TO PROTEST ELECTION

Disatisfied With Outcome of Recent Election, and Proposes to Ask for New Deal

VANCOUVER, Sept. 12.—Mr. Maxwell Smith, defeated Liberal candidate in the Dewdney riding, is not satisfied. Twice he had the ballots in dispute, and that, he said, was not the way to run a free election.

Mr. Smith intends to lodge an official protest against the election of Mr. Dewdney, the Conservative, although his majority was reduced somewhat. Now Mr. Smith intends to lodge an official protest against the election of Mr. Dewdney, the Conservative, although his majority was reduced somewhat.

"I have no desire to be elected merely by technicalities, and I do not propose to be defeated by technicalities."

A number of absentee votes were not counted because they did not reach the Dewdney returning officer till after the count had begun. Technically these votes could be counted. In reality they were perfectly good votes.

"Under all the circumstances I think the voters of Dewdney will be better satisfied if there is a new election. There are good grounds for a protest which could not be raised on a technicality," stated Mr. Smith today.

"I have no desire to be elected merely by technicalities, and I do not propose to be defeated by technicalities."

Basis for Agreement on St. Lawrence Waterways

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The State Department in a short time will send a note to the Canadian Government which will form the basis for an agreement on the question to be referred to the board of engineers which will make a survey of the St. Lawrence Deep Waterways project.

The note will reply to the protest of Canada against the suggestions of the United States Government that a study of the diversion of water at Niagara Falls should be included in the questions referred to the board in order to ascertain how this diversion balances with water taken from the Great Lakes by the Chicago Sanitary Canal.

MR. A. O. COCHRANE GETS NOMINATION

CONSERVATIVES SEE VICTORY IN NORTH OKANAGAN

Huge Convention Choozes Candidate—Former Opponents Line Up in His Support

Optimistic reports regarding the prospects of Conservative victory in North Okanagan, where a by-election will be held on September 24, were received at Conservative headquarters in Victoria yesterday. Mr. Arthur O. Cochrane, the Conservative candidate, who has been nominated at a convention there to oppose Dr. K. C. MacDonald, newly appointed Provincial Secretary, is widely known throughout the riding, and his supporters are confident that he will pile up a comfortable majority in spite of cabinet opposition.

Mr. R. H. Pooley, Conservative leader, left last night for the Mainland en route to North Okanagan; and "son" Dr. Pooley, Federal Conservative organizer, will arrive there in a few days following a visit to Penticton. He will leave Victoria on Sunday.

Mr. Cochrane was nominated by Mr. Price Ellison, Mr. R. J. Coltart, seconded the nomination, and Mr. A. T. Howe, of Vernon, gave his hearty support to the choice of the convention. The gathering, according to the report received in Victoria, was the largest political convention ever held in the riding of North Okanagan, and that perfect cohesion existed among the opposition force is borne out by the fact that Mr. Cochrane's nomination, Mr. Ellison's second, Mr. Howe, were all in the field on different tickets during the recent general election. On that occasion Mr. Howe was the Conservative candidate, Mr. Ellison was Independent Conservative candidate, and Mr. Coltart was the candidate of the Provincial Party.

NEW GOVERNMENT IN CHILE GETS BUSY

State Treasury Starts Paying Salaries and Other Fought-For Reforms are Instituted

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 12.—The Government today began to effect the reform measures, demand for which on the part of a military junta was one of the foremost causes of the current political crisis. The state treasury began paying the July and August salaries to public employees.

"Vice-Admiral Juan Neff, Minister of the Treasury, announced today that attention soon would be paid to the settlement of all of Chile's obligations. Complete tranquillity reigned today in Santiago.

Was Forced to Holiday
 BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 12.—President Alessandri of Chile, on his arrival at Mendoza, Argentina, today from Santiago to begin a six month leave of absence from his native country, following the assumption of power by a military junta there, declared that he had not left Chile voluntarily but had been forced to do so.

PREMIER'S ANSWER NOT SATISFACTORY

Promises Mr. Woodward No Sale at Capilano—Member's Resignation Holds Good

VANCOUVER, Sept. 12.—Charles Woodward, M.P., elect, informed the City Council today that he had no steps will be taken to dispose of the 178-acre timber tract in the Capilano watershed until the Premier's return from Ottawa. Mr. Woodward told the Council members that when the Premier comes back they would have to take the matter up with him. He made it clear, however, that the Premier's announcement was not satisfactory to him personally, and understood that his ultimatum to resign, unless some definite action was taken by the Government to conserve the timber, still holds good.

SAYS DOMINION IS PROSPEROUS

No Reason for Pessimism in Canada, Says Sir Hamar Greenwood on Reaching Toronto

POSITION NEVER BEEN STRONGER IMPERIALLY

Citizens Have Every Reason to Be Satisfied With Apparent Progress and Prosperity, Is Claim

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—A distinguished son of Canada, who has risen to a high position in the councils of the Empire, Sir Hamar Greenwood, former Chief Secretary for Ireland, is in Toronto today on a tour of the Dominion, which he is making during his vacation.

Sir Hamar this afternoon stated that to him the most striking feature of his visit was the prosperity of this country. "From the point of view of a resident of England I see no reason for pessimism," he said. "Compared with other countries in Europe, Canada has every reason to be satisfied."

Sir Hamar has noticed many changes in Canadian life, but they are more fundamental than apparent. "The principal differences which I have observed are, first, in the industrial development, and, secondly, in the financial standing of the country as a nation."

From his knowledge of Empire politics, Sir Hamar opined that the position of the Dominion of Canada had never been stronger, imperially. This was largely the result of the contributions the Dominion had made during the war, and of the distinction with which her troops had served.

"By her contribution in the war, plus the signatures of her representatives to the Treaty of Versailles, the position of Canada as a partner in the Empire was strengthened, and there can be no retrogression," he said in conclusion.

Near-Record Is Made For September Heat

Only Once Previously Has Victoria Experienced For This Month Higher Temperature Than Yesterday's 81.5 Degrees—Heat Wave General Over Pacific Slope—Year's Sunshine Above Average, and Rainfall Below Average

If the Meteorological Bureau could forget about the notable occasion of September 24, 1918, when a temperature of 82.8 was scored up in the Penitence can, that would yesterday for the second time this year have been able to report a high temperature record. In July last the mercury slid up to 82.2, the highest for July of any other month since the Government in 1873 decided to keep an eye on the thermometer. Yesterday's 81.5 degrees is just a little more than a degree less than the famous September record of six years ago. It all goes to supplement Victoria's reputation as a city with a long summer.

The extraordinary autumn experience was by no means local, however. The whole Pacific slope seems to have had something of the same heat wave, many places running ten or fifteen degrees higher. In Seattle the maximum temperature yesterday was 85; in Portland it was 82, some points in Southwest Oregon report as much as 96. Vancouver reports only 74; but on the other hand Kamloops and Kelowna were 82 and 81 respectively.

There was quite a little breeze with the high temperature here. This, in fact, probably carried heat with it, flowing in from the north over the heated stretches of inland. Even in the northern British Columbia coast usually high temperatures for the season were experienced, and Prince Rupert had a maximum of 84.

The heat at the Coast has its compensatory opposite in the Prairie country on the eastern side of the Rockies. In Alberta sharp frost was experienced in many places, although

ATHLETE DROWNS IN SOOKE RIVER

Mr. Vincent Hicks Meets Death in Pool at Falls—Fatality Ends Vacation Trip Into Woods

VICTIM WELL-KNOWN AS LACROSSE PLAYER

Represented Victoria in Games This Year—Native Son of British Columbia—Served Overseas During War

SUMMER lakes, rivers and beaches, which had already taken heavy toll this season from among campers and pleasure seekers, claimed yet another life yesterday when Vincent Hicks, 28, son of Rev. J. P. Hicks, 617 Drake Avenue, was drowned in Sooke River, in the pool beneath Sooke Falls.

The accident occurred about 5 o'clock in the afternoon as the young man and his companion, Mr. Alan Macsey, with whom he was spending his vacation camping in the woods, were taking advantage of yesterday's fine warm weather to have a dip in the stream. Mr. Macsey, it seemed from the uncertain accounts of the family received last night, had just climbed out of the pool and was sitting on a high rock nearby when he thought he heard a shout for help from the water. Hurrying back to the pool he could find no trace of his companion and began to search for him beneath the surface. It was some time, owing to the depth of the water, said to be thirty feet, before he was able to discover the body on the bottom.

Mr. Hicks was generally regarded as a good swimmer and his death is the more mystifying on that account.

MANCHURIAN FORCE NOW READY TO MOVE

THREE DIVISIONS AND TWENTY MIXED BRIGADES STAND BY

Armies at Mukden Said to Be Working Overtime to Produce Munitions for War Lord

SHANGHAI, Sept. 12.—Chang Tso Lin's main forces, comprising three divisions, about 37,500 men, and twenty mixed brigades, about 107,600 men, are being held in readiness to move against Chihli, according to a seemingly reliable report from Mukden. The Armies at Mukden, the report said, is working overtime with the conscripted labor to turn out munitions for the Manchurian War Lord's projected assault on Peking, and the allies of Wu Pei Fu, military dictator in the Chinese capital.

The Manchurian forces were said to be under command of General Liching Ling, with Chang Tso Lin's son, General Chang Hsueh Liang, second in command.

Railroad Blocked
 PEKING, Sept. 12.—The Peking Mukden Railway Company is selling tickets only as far as Shanhaikwan, the dividing point on the sections of the railway controlled by the central Government and General Chang Tso Lin, of Manchuria. Formerly an arrangement existed for the issue of through tickets and the exchange of cars.

fortunately crops are cut. In the majority of districts at Edmonton there were two degrees of frost yesterday. In the contrary, has had very heavy rains.

Year's Sunshine
 Yesterday's heat wave has called attention to the extraordinarily fine weather which has favored this part of the Province all this year. Since the beginning of May the only month which has a below-average sunshine was August. Here are sunshine figures, as compared with the average for the month quoted: May, 47 hours above; June, 26 hours above; July, 4 hours above; August, 15 hours above.

Up to date this month there have already been 116 hours of bright sunshine here, which is an average of nearly 19 hours daily.

As for rainfall, Mr. Napier-Denison says that as there has not been a drop of moisture since August 18, and the average September rainfall is 1.85 inches for the whole month, old Jupiter Pluvius will have to get "good and busy" for the remaining eighteen days of the month. If the usual amount is to be made up.

The rainfall for the whole year is 2.69 inches below average to date. From January 1 to August 31 (the also means to September 12, as there has been no rain yet this month) the entire precipitation has been only 11.13 inches. The average precipitation for the same period is 13.82 inches. Forest fires are the usual corollary of such extended drought, and yesterday's northerly wind blew clouds of smoke over the city, obscuring nearly all the hills to the northward.

Explorers Cut Way Through Ice to Free Schooner in Arctic

MacMillan Party Gains Freedom After Being Locked in White Waste Off Greenland 330 Days—Leader Gives Graphic Description of How Salvation Was Effected

OBSERVERS SEE EVIDENCE OF RETURN OF GLACIAL ERA

(Copyright, 1924, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

BATTLE-HARBOR, Labrador, Sept. 12 (Special).—Donald B. MacMillan and his staunch little schooner Bowdoin are safe on the North American mainland by virtue of a pair of buccas.

The Bowdoin worked up to the fish shed here Wednesday "without a feather knocked out of her," as the fishermen ashore remarked, and brought the first story in history of a ship being saved out of the Arctic ice. When, on August 1, Refuge Harbor was barred by a huge ice block, with food, fuel and supplies low, MacMillan and his crew of seven men sawed their way through the barrier and landed here triumphantly with one of the most dramatic stories of Polar exploration ever brought out of the North.

The Bowdoin was locked in the ice for 330 days at latitude 73.32 North and longitude 72.27 West, on the northwest coast of Greenland. The 19-foot schooner is the smallest vessel ever to attain this latitude and withstand the Arctic Winter.

MacMillan and all members of the expedition are fit and well, and reported gratifying success in their scientific observations and all other objectives of the trip. They have brought back several rare cyprinodonts, the Arctic hawk, live blue foxes, and other trophies. MacMillan has produced positive evidence that the glaciers are advancing. He took photographs of the glaciers on his previous expedition in 1906, and found old tree trunks among Eskimo ruins who were of the opinion that the ice was creeping down.

Ice Age Returning?
 Although MacMillan does not consider the evidence sufficient to predict a return of the ice age, he is positive that the glaciers are retreating and probably will continue through a long cycle of years. Richard Goddard, observer for the Carnegie Institution at Washington, made eight months' continuous observation of terrestrial magnetism, atmospheric electricity, and related subjects, the longest and most exhaustive study with the most complete equipment ever made in the latitude.

Goddard said he had no conclusions to state at this time, as his work was solely observation and finding, which must be corrected with deductions at Washington. He stated, however, that he found the magnetic disturbance lessened when the sun disappeared and increased when the sun came back, proving the theory of the solar effect on terrestrial magnetism.

Donald Mix, radio operator on the Bowdoin, had no explanation for a strange phenomenon which caused his radio signals to travel southward from the coast to be heard best on the Pacific Coast. He said he got best results on a 220-metre wave length, but could make no observations on the possible effect of the Northern Lights on radio, as the lights were mainly invisible from the vessel. Signals came much better, he said, in the dark than in the light than during summer, and his inability to work steadily with the stations of

TRANSPORT ISSUE BEFORE COUNCIL

SAANICH BODY NAMES COMMITTEE TO MEET RATEPAYERS

Dispute Situation Created by Cancellation of Interurban Lines—Petition for Jitney Service

The Saanich Council last night appointed a committee consisting of Reeve Macneil and Councillors Robertson, Oldfield and Hagen, to meet the ratepayers living in the district of the municipality which will be affected through the closing down of the B. C. Electric Railway Interurban lines and to decide upon an alternative transportation system.

The question was raised when several deputations waited upon the Council in connection with the problem of transportation and has come up through the decision of the B. C. Electric Railway, which also advised the Council last night that the interurban service in Saanich had financially proved a failure, and the company believed that their service was not a necessity in the peninsula.

Reeve Macneil, who suggested the plan of a committee of the Council meeting the ratepayers concerning transportation matters, stated that Councillor Robertson, Mr. Frank Mellor and himself had waited upon Mrs. Goward, vice-president of the B. C. Electric. Mr. Goward had reviewed the reasons that have prompted the company to decide to close down the lines in Saanich on October 31.

Make Suggestions
 The speaker said that Messrs. Robertson and Mellor and himself had suggested to Mr. Goward that the B. C. Electric Company extend its city line on Barnside Road to Wilkinson Road, and also to operate motor buses and give transfers at the

PREMIER REACHES NEW MORAL GROUNDS

Discusses Normal School and Other Matters—As to Prohibition, Deems Teachers to Blame

NELSON, Sept. 12.—Premier John Oliver, Nelson's member-elect, was tonight tendered a complimentary banquet by the Board of Trade, at which one hundred were present. In a general address, the Premier indicated that he may have reached new ground on the prohibition question, saying that if after centuries of moral education, the only result of the people agreed with the ministers, he put the fault on those who took charge of the public morals.

In the afternoon he met the Board of Trade discussing freight rates, district roads and a normal school.

 CALEXICO, Cal., Sept. 12.—A few minutes after the automobile he was driving struck an aged pedestrian here today, Arturo Garcia, 18, believing he had killed the man, hurried home and ended his own life with a bullet, according to the police. The pedestrian was unconscious when he was picked up after the accident, but was soon revived by a surgeon and pronounced only slightly injured.

SMOKING, IT SEEMS SPOILS THEIR BEAUTY

Women Warned by Famous Viennese Doctor That Tobacco Will Ruin Their Fair Complexions

VIENNA, Sept. 12.—Women who are heavy smokers lose their fair complexion much more quickly than non-smoking women, in the opinion of Dr. R. Hofstadter, noted Viennese gynecologist, who has written a book entitled "The Smoking Woman."

The features of smoking women, he contends, are usually much sharper than those of non-smokers. The more women smoke, the sharper the nose and chin are outlined and the skin becomes very taut.

The lips, says Dr. Hofstadter, lose their rosy natural color and become pale, while the corners of the lips show wrinkles prematurely and there is a tendency for the lower lip of a female smoke addict to project further than the upper lip. Through this gradual change the features of the smoking woman become more and more masculine. Dr. Hofstadter claims to have observed that heavy female smokers have a pronounced growth of beard.

The eye of strong female smokers undergoes a change, says Dr. Hofstadter. The lid rises and falls much more slowly. There is a tendency to stare. Some women even become cross-eyed as they smoke.

Among the women who smoke heaviest are teachers, students, female physicians, actresses, artists, and piano virtuosos.

OLD LAND BIDS TOURISTS ADIEU

America's Greatest Invasion of British Isles Slackens as Hosts of Holiday-Makers Depart for Home

UBIQUITOUS NATURE OF VISITORS AMAZES

Popular Misconceptions as to Mother Country Give Way Before First-Hand Observations of Travelers

LONDON.—America's greatest invasion of the British Isles is rapidly drawing to a close. Straw hats, as well as tortoiseshell glasses, are disappearing from London streets, and the Strand once more is getting to be a British thoroughfare, says John Elliott, writing to The New York Herald-Tribune.

The year 1924 undoubtedly will live long in the memory of Londoners because of the vast influx of Americans here. In addition to the hordes of tourists who annually come to these shores, the conventions of the advertising men and the American Bar Association brought thousands of Americans who otherwise probably would never visit Great Britain in all their lives.

The tide of the invasion did not halt in London, but spread all over the kingdom, so that Great Britain seemed to become the Summer playground of the United States. Any American who thought that by traveling to England he would arrive in a strange and exotic region must have returned sadly disappointed.

Ubiquitous Surprises. No matter where one journeyed in Great Britain this Summer, the American accent was to be heard. Every hotel register, in the remotest part of the country, bore the familiar scrawl, "From U. S. A." while the visitors' book at every place of historic interest was decorated with such well-known names as Quincy, Mass., and Pasadena, Calif.

What amazed the Britishers most of all was the ubiquitous character of the Americans. Thousands of them, every day during the last two months, have walked through the aisles of Trinity Church at Stratford-on-Avon; hundreds of them have gone to English and Scotch lakes and Highlands, and the Washington ancestral home near Northampton, or the beauty spots of Devon and Sussex, the cathedral cities and North Wales.

These are spots at which tourists naturally congregate. However, the visitors made trips also to such out-of-the-way places as Rochester, where Charles Dickens was born there, and to Scrooby, in Nottinghamshire, because the Pilgrim Fathers started from there on their long voyage.

Every day this Summer Americans could be seen throwing stones in Bannockburn Brook, walking along the downs at Hastings, or sitting on the fallen slabs at Stonehenge. Wherever there is a spot that has the slightest historical or literary or legendary association, anywhere from one end of the land to the other, there the Americans went.

The same insatiable curiosity of the Americans could be observed, of course, in London. The provincial visitor to the British capital satisfied his tourist's conscience by "doing" Wembley and such famous sights as St. Paul's, Westminster, Abbey and Trafalgar Square. But not the traveler from the other side of the Atlantic.

If he is a Dickens admirer he has made himself familiar with every nook and corner in Alsatia and has gone to see Old George Inn, where Mr. Pickwick met Sam Weller, and necessarily hunts up the prehistoric cheese. If he is a disciple of Carlyle he puts his signature in the visitors' book in the little old house in Chelsea. If he is a Byron lover he spends hours admiring the poet's favorite view from Harrow Hill.

Learns How English Live. It is doubtful if there is a single street in London to which the click of the American camera was not familiar this Summer. Nor was the Yankee content with merely seeing the sights of England. His curiosity impelled him to inquire how his fellow countrymen lived. He went to the Law Courts to behold the bewigged lawyers in action. He stormed the American Embassy to get a peep into some session of parliament. With the ardor of a small boy he began the day by going to the polo grounds.

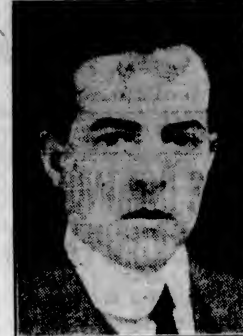

He visited the night clubs, and he even violated the unwritten but sacred American traditions by having a 10 o'clock tea. He even wore a high hat and frock coat to garden parties. When the London season was on he took in every one of his numerous activities that he possibly could—from the Royal Academy Art Exhibition to cricket at Lord's and yachting at Cowes.

In fact, the American tourist made himself so well-known this Summer that the waiters in London restaurants now are actually bringing ice water to table without having to be told to do so. If any popular misconceptions regarding England are not dispelled speedily it will not be the fault of the many thousands of American tourists who spent their Summer vacations in this country.

WARNS AGAINST ANY ATTEMPT AT PAROLE

Illinois State Attorney Issues Statement in Connection With Recent Case

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—State Attorney Robert E. Crowe today issued a general statement to the public in which he warned against possible attempts to parole Nathan Leopold, Jr. and Richard Loeb, millionaire youths now serving life sentences in the state penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., for killing fourteen-year-old Robert Frank.

The statement, of great length, was couched in bitter terms. By inference, Crowe criticized Judge Caverly for failing to impose the death penalty. "It is unfortunate for the welfare of the country," the murder of Bobby Frank struck terror to the hearts of every father and mother throughout the community. Without doubt it was the most terrible criminal offense perpetrated in this generation."

Crowe called on the Illinois Department of Public Welfare to guard against freeing the youths.

NEW AIRCRAFT IS GIGANTIC MACHINE

BLACKBURN-NAPIER CUBAROO HAS 1,000 H.P. ENGINE

Carries Three Tons of Bombs and Wing Span of 88 Feet—Flying Test Is Complete Success

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The first official flight of an airplane of 1,000 horsepower, the largest single-engine machine yet devised, took place recently at Brough. The machine and its initial flight are thus described in The London Times by its aeronautical correspondent.

"The Blackburn-Napier Cubaroo, the largest single-engine aeroplane in the world, built specially to utilize the full power of the 1,000 horsepower Napier Cub engine, in itself the highest powered aero engine in existence, is designed to be either a torpedo or bomb carrier of exceptionally long range in point of duration, and may fairly be said to represent a notable achievement in British aviation."

"It is the result of the aircraft skill of the Blackburn Aeroplane Company, whose works are situated here on the Humber, and the long experience of internal combustion engines possessed by Messrs. P. Napier & Son, and its flight has been awaited with considerable interest, not only in British air circles, but in many foreign countries. As the machine has been built to the order of the Air Ministry for service purposes, it is not permissible to refer in detail either to the performance of the machine, which in itself is noteworthy, or to all the interesting features of all the internal arrangements, but it may be stated that the gross weight of the Napier Cub is 12,000 lbs., and the length is 55 ft. 4 in., and the overall height is slightly more than nineteen feet."

"The span of the machine, which positively towers above one when standing on the ground, is eighty-eight feet, and despite its size, the wings are so arranged that they can be folded back for storage. The length is fifty-four feet, and the overall height is slightly more than nineteen feet."

"The machine is the product of Major Bunnup, the chief designer of the Blackburn Aeroplane Company, who has already an exceedingly successful record."

PAINLESS EXTRACTION (?)

John Bull: "Well, that's out! and a very tough fellow it was!"

Fritz: "Ach, tank you, tank you! and I no more pain shall now have?"

John Bull (doubtfully): "H'm, I don't quite know. You see, we have still to extract—h'm—payment!"

Unsuccessful Attempt to Overthrow Government Made by Party Aided by Soldiers

LISBON, Sept. 12.—Another unsuccessful attempt at revolution has been made here by Communists. With civilians and soldiers the Communists attacked the Ministry of War, the telegraph station and the customs house. They failed and the leaders were arrested. The capital is now calm.

The revolutionists occupied the customs house, but were driven out by Government forces.

Among those under arrest are numerous officers, soldiers and sailors.

DEPLORES PUBLICITY PREVIOUS TO TRIAL

Chief Justice Martin, of Montreal, Suggests Remedy for Alleged Growing Evil

MONTREAL, Sept. 12.—"There is one thing that I deplore, and that is great newspaper publicity before trial, and some restrictions on this should be imposed by law," declared Chief Justice Martin, at the reopening of the civil courts. The Chief Justice said that publicity before trials should be restricted to official statements by the police and Crown Attorney. This would in no way interfere with a chance to operate. The Chief Justice said that public sympathy or hostility towards an accused person might influence a jury in its determination of guilt.

"Such restriction," continued Chief Justice Martin, "if imposed, must, of course, be balanced by publicity at the trial itself."

ful deck landing torpedo plane (now in extensive use in the Service) to his credit, and it utilizes the latest development of angular form of steel fuselage construction which is a feature of Blackburn productions.

"If the machine were here, so, and despite its size it obviously was handled as easily as a scout. Its pilot, Flight Lieutenant W. B. Bulman, certainly did many of the things one associates with a small machine, such as thrusting down close to the ground, flying directly toward a group of cinema operators on a mound, and then opening out on a climbing turn over their heads."

"At one time it looked as if low clouds and heavy rain would prevent the flight, but at 4 o'clock a watery sun broke through the clouds and the internal self-starting was at once set to work to charge up the big engine. Once the Cub got going it genially grumbled to itself in a deep-throated rumble during the preliminary warming-up process, and then, the pilot, a tiny figure it seemed, perched high up in the fuselage, "taxied" over to the far side of the aerodrome, turned, and at once opened up the engine."

Meets All Tests

"With a powerful roar the Napier Cub lifted the machine into the air after a run of 200 yards. Then followed over twenty minutes' delightful flying, and though one never lost the impression of the aerodrome, and the smallness of the circle in which it maneuvered, suggested more the control of a single-engine scout than that of a machine weighing tons."

"The landing was the most perfect it has been one's pleasure to see for a long time; the huge machine glided slowly to earth and without any perceptible moment of contact with the ground sank on to the oleo gear of its double undercarriage and came to rest in a short run."

Good Progress Made in Fighting Tuberculosis

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The spread of tuberculosis will be stamped out within a decade. This is the prediction of the Ministry of Health, according to a high official. The reduction during the last decade of twelve per cent of cases and twenty-five per cent of deaths is due to preventive measures, to earlier treatment of suspected cases, to the increase of sanatoria and the spread of propaganda regarding sanitation.

Charge Against Vernon Motorist Is Dismissed

VERNON, Sept. 12.—Magistrate Heagle dismissed the charge against James L. Hopkins, of Armstrong, that "being in charge of a motor vehicle on August 26 at Vernon, he did not have the same under proper control." The case arose out of an accident on the Vernon-Armstrong road, when W. H. L. Ladner was killed. The magistrate, in giving his decision, said the evidence which the prosecution had advanced was to his mind insufficient to justify putting Hopkins on trial. He

Prince Knows All About Horses, Americans Find

New York Newspaper Woman Interviews Baron Renfrew's Stablemen and Obtains Picturesque Eulogy of Their Royal Master in His Capacity of Horseman—Is an Expert in Horses and a Fearless Rider and, Despite the Adage, Is a Hero to His Valet

(Copyright, 1924, in U.S. Canada and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

By HELEN HOFFMAN
THE Prince of Wales has never been sold in a horse deal. And he is the best horse in the world. That's what is said by the men who handle horses for him and the others who are in his employ.

"Before His Highness leaves America he will show that he is not given to falling off his horse," says one of the retainers of the Prince.

"And what's more, His Highness is an expert on horses. In the many years he has been buying horses of one kind or another, I have never known him to be sold on a single horse."

"He can size up a horse quicker than the oldest horse trader. And in choosing horses, it is done with almost instant judgment by His Highness. A case of love at first sight, as it were. His judgment is unerring."

"Of course he often defers to the opinion of his experts on certain points, but in the main he relies on his own judgment."

The Prince is the owner of one of the largest stables in the world. Near London, at Ranelagh, the polo field, he keeps from fifteen to twenty polo ponies. And the ponies never lack for exercise, for their royal owner visits the field three or four times a week, and plays for a few hours of an afternoon.

He keeps his eye on them. On these visits he gives the once over to all the ponies as though they were humans dependent on him.

At the Craven Lodge Hunt Club at Melton Mowbray in Leicestershire, the Prince maintains a big stable filled with the pick of English hunters. Upwards of twenty of the finest are always in readiness.

Besides these, the Prince has several fine horses at his big estate in Cornwall, where he maintains a good-sized stable. In addition, he is the owner of several of England's best steeplechases.

"The Prince is a fearless rider, otherwise he would not be likely to go in for steeplechasing," said his follower. "The thought of danger, I believe, never enters his mind. He can take his share with the best of 'em. It gives his family no little concern."

"People from all over the country are always wanting to sell the Prince a horse. But he is not slow to please. A casual glance at many of those offered convinces the Prince that they are lacking in 'pep.' They may be jumpers, but one trial often shows that they can only reach the second rail of a five or six-rail fence. Perhaps their owners consider them pretty good horses to be sold for the second rail, but such riding would be mere baby riding for His Highness."

Looks for Horseflesh, Not Color
"Unlike so many horsemen, or lovers of horses, His Highness has no set aversion to horses because of their color. The question with him is, has the horse got to him? I have seen the Prince ride all sorts of horses, some that seemed almost unmanageable, but when it comes to managing a horse, the best horsemen in the world must take their hats to the Prince. I never saw a horse he was afraid to ride. But then, fear is not a part of the Prince's make-up."

The Prince, not unlike the late Colonel Roussett, possesses an almost superhuman faculty for remembering people and their names. And it is partly due to this that his army of employees term him the "best boss in the world." From his ranch in Canada to his London residence those who work for him are devoted to His Highness.

From Nikito, his Japanese ranch cook, to Mr. Thomas Smith, his valet, traveling with him, Edward P. is an ideal employer. His valet has been valeting for the Prince almost since the day he donned knickerbockers. And then there's Perkins, also, who comes to the Prince, called in English terms the brusher, but in reality assistant valet.

These two men have charge of the Prince's extensive wardrobe, and it keeps them busy mending and pressing and brushing. But they don't mind. They would "work their bladders" heads off for His Highness. "And who wouldn't?" they ask.

Waiting List for Jobs
Some idea of the popularity with which the Prince is held by his employees may be gained from the fact that there is always a long waiting list of men ready to step into any job that may be vacant in the royal household.

"I once worked for Lord—," said one, "and you know he would never let a man as nervous as I might have been a tree or a piece of armor."

"With the Prince it is different. By Jove, there isn't a man who works for him that he doesn't know by name. 'How are you?' he asks, and he means it."

"While he has so many people to look after his vast interests and report to him in every detail, if he wished it, the Prince himself does not depend on this. He takes a keen interest in everything he owns, and there is nothing slipshod in the way he looks after his property, whatever it may be. He is an exacting employer, but he is never mean about wages. In fact, His Highness is one of the most generous souls and one of the best friends a man could have.

"From his numerous secretaries to the lowest stable boy, they all feel they have a friend in the Prince."

"If anyone in his employ falls ill the Prince wants to know about it. 'Give an old employer had been suffering from a long illness. The Prince saw him limping badly. And you'd think the Prince was his father the way he went up to him and said sternly, 'See here, old man, what are you doing here? And he sent him back home.'"

Buys Tickets in Batches
"And then the Prince often surprises those who are employed by him by buying up a lot of tickets for some entertainment or sporting affair and sending them around."

"Come Christmas, every blooming person who works for the Prince is remembered. Usually it is a money gift, and not a stinging one, either. It is enclosed in a little envelope with His Highness's personal card."

"He's not a bit of a snob. You should see him at one of the sergeant's dances at Aldershot. The Prince dances with a sergeant's sister or wife and he apparently enjoys himself as much as at the drawing-room affairs of Mayfair."

URGES CANADIANS TO LAUD CANADA
CAPTAIN EVANS AND MR. A. F. BEMENT HONORED
Speakers Advocate Early Completion of All-Canadian Highway—Ald. Todd Presents Gold Medal

"If Canadians would appreciate what they have got, and praise on every occasion the wonders and advantages that they possess, they could expect more confidence and faith from the people south of the border," stated Captain E. S. Evans, of Detroit, Michigan, amid cheers, during an address delivered yesterday noon at the Canadian Club luncheon in the Empress Hotel.

Business men of the city yesterday extended an enthusiastic welcome to the luncheon of Mr. A. F. Bement, vice-president and secretary of the Lincoln Highway Association, and Captain E. S. Evans, of Detroit, the two pathfinders who have completed a motor tour from Winnipeg to Victoria. Alderman Todd, vice-president of the Canadian Highway Association, in the unavoidable absence of Mr. J. L. Beckwith, president of that organization, presented the two pathfinders with a gold medal, which they accepted on behalf of the Packard Motor Company, owners of the car in which they made the trip to this city.

Captain Evans had high praise for the scenic grandeur of northern Alberta and British Columbia, stating that in all his travels he had never seen any landscape more picturesque and beautiful. He said that the roads from Winnipeg west were in excellent condition, and that Mr. Bement and he had traveled over them at a rate of speed from 40 to 60 miles an hour. They crossed 150 treasles on their journey, he averred.

Warrants United Support
"The movement to establish a transcanada highway should receive the unanimous and united support of all such an all-Canadian highway would bring money into the country, which would be disseminated in all industries, and contribute much to ushering in greater prosperity," asserted Captain Evans, amid applause.

Mr. Austin F. Bement, who is a prominent official of the Lincoln Highway Association, told of the completion of the Lincoln Highway, which runs from New York to San Francisco. Over $57,000,000 has to date been expended upon that project, and he hoped that Canada would soon have a highway as good as that road.

The speaker stated that Captain Evans and he had come West as strangers, but were leaving a host of friends behind over the 2,000 miles that they had just traveled. He expressed deep appreciation and gratitude for the most generous welcome accorded them on their trip.

He stated that he hoped the trip would be the means of developing greater interest in the all-Canadian highway proposal.

"A greater problem confronts any Province or State than the construction of good roads. Transportation is the lifeblood of development, and connecting highways are of prime importance in any project for development of the country. The progress of transportation marks the progress of civilization," Mr. Bement held.

Roads From Tourist Standpoint
Mr. Bement spoke of the necessity of good roads and a main highway from the standpoint of tourist trade. To bring tourists to any given place a city or state must be in a position to assure them that the avenues of motor transportation are good. He stated that no less than $200,000,000 had been left in California last year by motor tourists while Denver and northern Colorado several years ago reaped a benefit of $40,000,000 from the same agency. He said that tourists left a trail of dollars behind, and strongly affirmed that national highways contributed greatly to that circumstance.

In conclusion, Mr. Bement made a transcanada plea for the building of the transcanada highway. He said that the roadway from Winnipeg to Victoria, including the Fraser River Canyon route, could be constructed for $4,000,000, and this sum would not only build it, but would put gravel on mud roads. The expenditure for this project would seem small to the results that would accrue to the various provinces. The amount thus expended should be left here by tourists on the Pacific Coast alone in one year, he thought. "Get the road opened. Begin now. Every dollar

MOTOR DRIVERS UP IN POLICE COURT

Fines Inflicted for Violations of the Rules Laid Down for Street Travel

The time of the police court yesterday was largely taken up with charges against drivers of motor cars alleged to have failed to exercise sufficient care in the handling of their machines on the public highways.

E. L. Vantreight, driver of a motor bus, was fined $15. It being alleged that he had, after following a street car to its stopping place at the corner of Hillside and Blackwood Avenue, had cut across behind this car, leaving the first named street car going down the other way had passed up in close proximity to where the crossing of the street was made.

The driver contended that he had exercised every care. He had stopped and seeing all was clear had made the turn across to Blackwood Avenue under very slow time, having the bus under control all the time. The approaching car was seen by him some distance away.

"Ignored Law"
The contention of Mr. R. C. Lowe, who appeared for the prosecution

HEAD-FIX FOR Sick and Nervous Headaches

THE VANCOUVER DRUG CO., LTD. Special Agents

in the absence of Mr. C. L. Harrison, was that the rule of stopping in rear of the street car and making the turn at the intersection of the streets had not been complied with.

It was a first offence and the fine was a light one.

The second charge was one of a more serious nature inasmuch as a pedestrian had been knocked down by a car and narrowly escaped death.

The charge laid against Henry A. Smith in connection with this accident resulted in a fine of $50 being assessed and in addition a fine of $5 for not making a report of the accident as required by the law.

This accident took place on Shelbourne Street. Mr. James McKenzie was walking along the street with his father and his mother about 11:30 at night when the former was struck without warning by the approaching car. The evidence was that the street was clear of traffic at the time and the street lights were going.

Driver Struck
Mr. McKenzie, the young man who was struck, is himself a driver of a car. It was not represented that the accused was making fast time. His counsel, Mr. H. H. Shandley, offered as the only reason for the failure of his client to see the people ahead of him was the fact that the style of light carried on the Ford car used does not offer sufficient light for such emergencies. Proceeding at a slow rate the light is not very bright. Moreover the street lights have the effect under certain circumstances of bewildering a driver.

DISPUTE OVER WAGES
Master's Claim Under Short Contract That Was Broken Comes Before Court

In the County Court yesterday the case of John Wood vs. F. E. Graham was heard by Judge Lammiman. The case was one of an appeal from the small debts court. After hearing the evidence His Honor reserved judgment.

The plaintiff had been engaged for a short term in the Poodle Dog as a waiter during a rush of business there. Before his time expired he had taken the opportunity to enter upon a more permanent job on board a steamer and left his former employer. The action was taken in an effort to collect for the time he had served at the Poodle Dog.

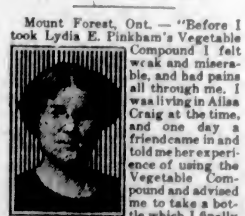

Mr. E. J. Bennett appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. Sydney Child for the defendant.

ATHLETE DROWNS IN SOOKE RIVER

A Native Son

Many will mourn his death, for he was a fine man, his friends said last night. He was a native son of British Columbia, educated here at the Collegiate School, and a resident of Victoria for most of his life. During the war he served overseas with an infantry battalion. A year ago he spent some time in San Francisco, following his occupation of piano tuner, but returned later to this city and entered the service of the Walter E. Evans Company.

It was as an athlete that Mr. Hicks end of the Cloverdale car line. Mr. Goward promised to look into these proposals, he said.

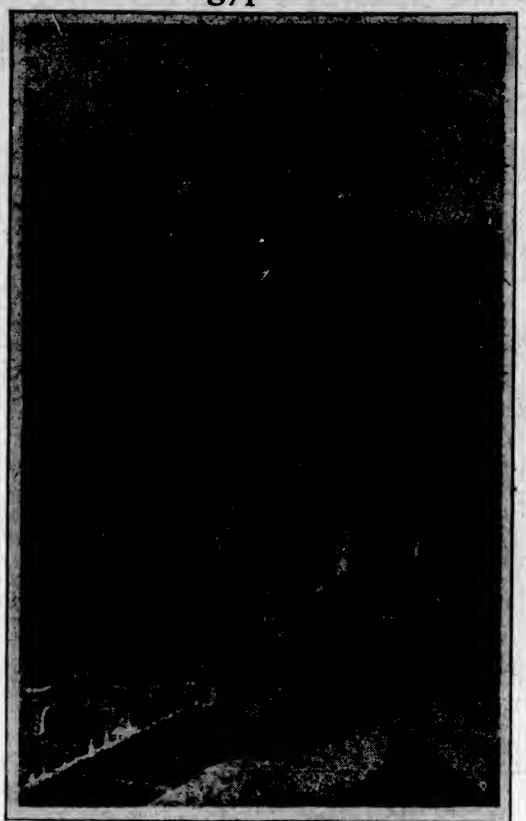

Councillor Simpson suggested that the ratepayers should meet in the different districts and arrive at some conclusion as to what is required in the matter of transportation, such as hours, schedule and other such questions, before they meet the Council's special transportation committee. This was agreed upon.

That the ratepayers were vitally interested in this transportation problem was Councillor Robertshaw's contention. He urged the committee to meet Ward Four ratepayers as soon as possible.

Hard to Replace Service

Councillor Hagen asserted that the cessation of the Sanich interurban service affected Ward Six very much.

operate on the routes that were profitable to them. If the buses were municipally owned and operated, then the Council could decide on the matter of routes, he averred.

The Council received a petition from eighty ratepayers urging that a jitney service be operated on Glenford Avenue. Mr. Frank Melior spoke in support of the petition. The Council tabled the letter pending the report of the committee that will investigate the transportation situation.

Councillor Robertshaw raised the question as to whether or not jitneys carry insurance. Reeve Macneil thought that they should either carry liability insurance or should put a notice up in the cars that they are not doing so. A number of the councillors discussed the matter, but no decision was arrived at in the matter.

Egyptian Premier To Remove Difficulties

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Zaghoul is coming to London now to negotiate immediately, but to remove obstacles afterwards to enter negotiations. The attitude of the Egyptian Government thus continues somewhat defiant and means negotiations begun September 23 will be in an atmosphere of close suspense. The Sudan, generally, maintains a calm attitude, though reports continue to arrive respecting the activity of Egyptian agitators.

Sensational Case Ends

RIMOUSKI, Q., Sept. 12.—One of the most sensational cases ever before a local criminal court ended suddenly today when, following the acquittal of Pit Mosan, one of the six men accused of murdering Joseph H. Laurence, a game warden employed by the B.C. Tomato Growers' Association against the Occidental Fruit Co. Ltd., whereby the latter is enjoined not to purchase tomatoes from other growers.

The Crown declared it had no further evidence to offer against the other men under arrest, and they were released with the exception of Emmanuel Michel, who has evaded capture. He will be tried, however, when arrested.

Injunction Granted

VANCOUVER, Sept. 12.—Following a lengthy argument in the Supreme Court chambers, Mr. Justice Morrison granted the injunction applied for by the B.C. Tomato Growers' Association against the Occidental Fruit Co. Ltd., whereby the latter is enjoined not to purchase tomatoes from other growers.

The association is a than members of the association as per an agreement alleged to have been entered into by the parties.

5,000 New Customers

One of our many new customers, recently returned from New York, remarked the other day that in all her travels she had never experienced more courteous attention than she had received from our sales clerks. She remarked, too, that our values and assortments were even better than she had found in many of the big New York stores.

This last remark is hardly surprising because we have at our back one of the most powerful buying organizations on the Continent, buying as we do for eleven large retail establishments and hundreds of trading posts. Half a million dollars' worth of new Fall merchandise has already been secured for our Fall and Winter selling, all of which has been marked at a low margin of profit in expectation of a largely increased volume of business.

If you want more value for your money, if you appreciate a store service that is thoroughly up to date, shop at Hudson's Bay.

Honor Minister's Wife

Mrs. Hart, wife of the Hon. John Hart, retiring Minister of Finance, was the guest of honor at a tea given yesterday afternoon by the Liberal Women's Forum in the Liberal club-rooms. The rooms, which were crowded with members and friends, were charmingly decorated for the occasion with roses and dahlias, the tea table, at which Mrs. J. D. MacLean and Mrs. Henry Hart presided, being very dainty in its appointments. Among the specially-invited guests other than Mrs. Hart were Mrs. John Oliver, Mrs. Fattullo, Mrs. MacLean, Mrs. Sutherland, Mrs. Mangon, Mrs. Sloan, Mrs. MacDonald and Mrs. Harrow. The formal part of the proceedings consisted of a short business session, when Mrs. R. H. Taylor, the president of the Forum, presided. Expressions of regret at the pending departure of Mr. and Mrs. Hart for Vancouver were coupled with good wishes for the future, the basket of flowers presented to Mrs. Hart by little Betty MacLean, daughter of the Hon. Dr. MacLean and Mrs. MacLean, being the symbol of these expressions. A very nice programme of music, arranged by Mrs. Morton, rounded out the afternoon's entertainment in a way much appreciated by everyone present. The reception committee consisted of Mrs. G. H. Chisholm and Mrs. Gairbairn.

Fashions and Foibles

By Shirley Shores

"Aux Courses" should be the name of the new coat frock, for it is seen so often at the French races.

A successful French model that is seen wherever smart women are gathered together is cut on extremely neat tailored lines. It has the collar and single-breasted closing of a coat, the small armhole, close sleeve and narrow shoulder of the newest straight silhouette. It is made most often in reddish-brown, invariable plaid such as would be used for a man's light-weight suit, a fine material but rather light in weight. It is worn with a small hat, needless to say, the new perfectly plain pump, nude stockings matching nude gloves. The Parisienne puts a sash or a large dark red carnation on her lapel.

Miss Florence Boyce Wins Second Prize for Sarah Maxwell Essay

Mrs. Curtis Sampson, Regent of Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E., accompanied by Miss A. H. Cooke, Municipal Chapter Education Secretary, attended the commencement exercises at the South Park School yesterday afternoon and presented Miss Florence Boyce with the second prize for the Sarah Maxwell essay prize for "Herodotus".

The competition, held annually under the auspices of the I.O.D.E. is to perpetuate the act of heroism of Sarah Maxwell, a teacher who gave her life in the effort to save seventeen little pupils in a fire in a school building in the Dominion. Last year the first prize was won by Miss N. Bjornfelt, of the South Park School. This year the first prize was won by Miss Florence Boyce, of the value of $12, and second prize books to the value of $10 was divided into two first and two second. Miss Boyce received a book of poetry, and a book on the story of Canadian history.

WEDDINGS

On Tuesday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Leterme officiated at the service which made Georgina, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Logan, 2330 Bridge Street, the bride of Mr. Leo Bernard Gerrard, of St. Andrew's Cathedral. Entering the Cathedral on the arm of her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of white silk tulle, she wore the conventional wedding veil crowned with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of roses, maidenhair fern and swansea. Attending the bride were Miss Eleanor Hutchison, bridesmaid, who wore a pretty gown of mauve silk tulle and carried a bouquet of orange and pink sweet peas; and Miss Emma Mary Watson, of Port Alberni, formerly of Victoria, as flower girl. She was sweetly pretty in a frock of pale pink satin, and carried a basket of sweet peas and asters. Mr. Edward Logan, brother of the bride, attended as groomsmen. A reception was held later at the home of the bride, when about twenty guests were present and were received by the happy couple and Mrs. Logan, who wore a handsome gown of grey crepe, with a fur stole. In the evening, from 7:30 until 11 o'clock, a reception was held. For the occasion the rooms had been profusely decorated with flowers by friends of the bride. During the evening Mr. F. W. Francis, uncle of the bride, rendered several solos. Mr. and Mrs. Gerrard were the recipients of many handsome gifts, testifying to the high esteem in which they are held by their friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond ring, and to the groomsmen a watch chain. After a honeymoon to be spent in Vancouver, the bride and groom will make their future home in Victoria. For traveling the bride wore a smart costume of navy blue, with hat to match. Among the out-of-town guests who attended the ceremony were Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Monk, both of New Westminster, and Mrs. Peterson, of Seattle.

NUXATED IRON

Helps make rich red blood and revitalizes weak nerves

WEAK NERVES AND THIN BLOOD

RUIN HEALTH OF THOUSANDS WITHOUT THEIR EVER SUSPECTING THE REAL CAUSE OF THEIR TROUBLE—IRON STARVATION

An enormous number of people who ought to be strong, vigorous and in the prime of life are miserably complaining of weak nerves, headaches, pains across the back, disturbed sleep, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, a general "run-down" condition, melancholy, bad memory, etc., all as a result of iron starvation of the blood.

There are 30,000,000,000 red blood corpuscles in your blood and each one must have its proper amount of iron. If it does not, it loses its power to change food into living cells and the iron money will be exhausted. You must get the proper amount of iron—do not get the full strength of Nuxated Iron.

Consequence you become greatly weakened, both in body and mind.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Now take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor damage the stomach. It is a pleasant iron like the iron in your blood and the iron in the blood of the young and the old, and not metallic iron which people usually think of. It is a pure iron compound, and not a mixture of iron and other substances. It is a pure iron compound, and not a mixture of iron and other substances. It is a pure iron compound, and not a mixture of iron and other substances.

Look for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N.I. on every tablet, sold by all druggists.

MRS. GENGE RECEIVES AN UNUSUAL HONOR

Gonzales Chapter, I.O.D.E. Presents Regent With Life Membership in Recognition of Service

In recognition of her splendid and faithful work as vice-regent, acting-regent and regent of Gonzales Chapter, I.O.D.E., Mrs. L. A. Genge was presented yesterday afternoon by members of that chapter with an I.O.D.E. life membership, the highest honor to be conferred on members of the order for service. Mrs. Genge has always taken a prominent part in the work of Gonzales Chapter, and it is therefore particularly pleasing to the members that the sun room for the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital, for which effort the chapter was formed, is now drawing to a successful completion during Mrs. Genge's term of office.

Accompanied by a graceful little speech, in which the recipient's excellent service to the order was enthusiastically praised, Mrs. Curtis Sampson made the presentation on behalf of the members at a meeting held in the summer house of Mrs. Hadden Gillespie's garden, "Windy-haugh." After acknowledging the honor conferred on her, Mrs. Genge was presented with a charming little bouquet by Mrs. Gillespie, who also gave similar bouquets to Mrs. Sampson and Mrs. David Miller.

The business of the meeting was devoted to plans and discussions connected with the new sun room.

NAVY TWEED COAT IS COLORED IN RACCOON

NAVY blue tweed of the soft, light-weight variety is the material used in the coat of stylish lines sketched above. An extra thickness of the material is applied across the back, ending in a plain line at the waist and extending into a narrow strap which fastens at the front. Flat grey bone squares make the buttons, and the fur collar is of raccoon.

The Marriage Handicap

By RUBY AYRES

The story thus far:

Maria Gainsford, rich, powerful, a man of affairs, married a country house of a man.

She was my father's sister.

I am staying with her.

There was an eloquent silence.

broken by the boy Molly drifting up to them.

"I say, what are you two talking about?" he asked in his fretful voice.

"And where is everyone tonight?"

Nobody playing.

"Constance slipped a hand through his arm. 'I'm coming at once.'"

Rachel stood looking after her with a dream-like feeling of unreality.

"After all, that here in her aunt's house she should meet the one person in all the world whom she most wished to avoid!"

"A penny for your thoughts," Randal said at her side, at which she woke with a start to the present.

"Come and play, fair lady," he urged. "I've kept seats for us, and I'm sure your husband will be in again tonight. What is it now?" he asked, turning sharply as a servant spoke diffidently at his elbow.

"Your mother has a message for Mrs. Gainsford."

"For me?" Rachel turned eagerly, her thoughts flying at once to her husband. She caught up the letter which the man carried on a tray, then her eager color faded as she recognized Theo's handwriting.

She tore the letter open, and hurriedly read the few lines:

"I must see you, and at once. Will you come out, or may I come in? It is urgent."

"Is anyone waiting for an answer?" she asked quickly.

"The gentleman is calling back, madam."

Rachel hesitated, then she said:

"Please tell me when he comes."

She slipped away and up to her own room. It must be something very urgent to make Theo write such a note, she was sure. It was such a little while since they had met. What could be wrong? Had something happened to Martin?

It seemed an eternity before the message came that Theo was waiting downstairs. The card rooms were crowded when she passed them, running swiftly, hoping to escape being seen.

There was waiting in the big drawing room. He was pacing up and down agitatedly. Rachel ran to him.

"Oh, Theo, what is the matter?"

He turned round, taking both her hands in his hard grip.

"I'm going to take you away from this house at once," he said breathlessly. "I'm not going to let you stay here another night."

Tomorrow—Rachel's Defiance

Fall Election Insures Test of Mr. MacDonald

Labour Party Invites General Balloting and Sees Opportunity to Win Majority in House of Commons—Risks All on Wisdom of Foreign Policies—Reverse for Government on Russian Treaty to Put Issue With Voters

LONDON.—Although Parliament does not reconvene until next month and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald is at Geneva attending the League of Nations conference, Great Britain is becoming more and more interested in the question of a general election just at about the time when the United States is preparing to make its choice from among the Presidential candidates, writes Harold Scarborough to The New York Herald-Tribune.

Ordinarily, late summer is not a suspicious time to suggest the holding of an election, but this year three major political parties are making elaborate plans for an appeal to the country. The Labour party is fully prepared to enter the political campaign, and its leaders hold fond hopes that they will emerge from it with a majority membership in the House of Commons.

There is bound to be a fight in Parliament over the Russian treaty.

"I don't know. Stay with Lydia, I suppose."

"Does Gainsford know where you are?" Theo asked presently.

"Yes, I wrote a note and told him."

"Humph! Do you think he will come and see you?"

Rachel winced as if she had been hurt. "I am quite sure he will not, Theo."

She answered gently, and in her heart she was saying wildly, "If only he would, if only he would!"

They walked back to Mrs. Gainsford's.

"When shall I see you again?" Theo said.

"Tomorrow, if you will come."

"Ask Mrs. Gainsford to invite me to dinner one night," he suggested suddenly. "Do you think she would?"

"I am sure she would, and I will ask her."

"Well, I should go to bed early tonight," he stood looking at her as if he did not want to leave her, and there was a little awkward silence till Rachel said:

"I think I had better go in, Theo."

He turned resolutely away, but Rachel stood on the step looking after him till he was out of sight, then she sighed as she entered the house. There had been something about Theo today something—she hardly knew what—that had made her feel not quite at her ease with him.

"Are the same people coming again?" she asked Mrs. Gainsford as they sat at dinner that night.

Mrs. Gainsford nodded.

"Some of them, I dare say, and others whom you have not seen before."

"Would it matter if I asked Theo Freeman to come some evening?" she asked.

Mrs. Gainsford looked up quickly.

"What sort of man is he?" she asked. "I mean, is he at all straightforward? I know his mother has that reputation. Would he disapprove of what we do here?"

Rachel considered.

"I don't quite know," she said hesitatingly.

"Well, I should find out first if I were you," Lydia said. "Don't ask him till you've discovered—tactfully—what he thinks of such a thing of inquiry as this house." Her voice was sarcastic. Rachel laughed.

"What a thing to say! I enjoyed myself thoroughly last night. I thought it was lovely."

"You won, didn't you?" her aunt said dryly.

"I should have enjoyed it anyway," Rachel answered. In her heart she was looking forward to another such evening. She was conscious of a new pleasure, excitement, which seemed to dull all her trouble and make her forget.

She sang as she ran lightly downstairs, then she stopped suddenly on the last stair, her color fading, as, amongst a little knot of people already arranging, she met the cold, self-possession eyes of Constance Mallison.

For a moment Constance Mallison did not seem to recognize Rachel, then a sudden flush swept her face, and a look of something which might almost have been guilt filled her eyes. She moved away from the man who was egotizing her and came forward.

"Surely it is— isn't it Mrs. Gainsford?"

Rachel held out her hand. She was very pale and her heart was beating fast, but she managed to smile.

"What a surprise!" she said. "And what a long time since we met!"

"More than a year," Constance Mallison's cool eyes swept the girl from head to foot, taking in the dainty outlines of her face and figure and the soft folds of the lemon-colored silk frock.

"And whatever are you doing here, may I ask?" she questioned. Rachel's face quivered into a smile.

circumstances to deal largely in generalities and theories. There is no longer any question about the vitality and life of the League of Nations.

Present Strong Front

The only thing remaining in doubt is the degree of vitality. Sooner or later Germany and Russia will both join its membership; Germany probably will join at an early date. Consequently Labour can make a strong appeal to the country on the record of its accomplishments in the foreign field. No party dare challenge it on this score. If it has failed in home affairs the party can argue that domestic improvement depends on international relations.

Aside from the Russian treaty, then, the only other really contentious question is the old one of the Irish boundary. That, however, is causing the Labour leaders no loss of sleep, because the Liberals and even some Conservatives hold similar views regarding the merits of the case.

The present situation politically here is almost as unnatural as one that would be created in the United States if the elections were to result in a deadlock and an appeal to Congress were necessary. There must be a general election here, and, although nobody wants it, there is no escape except through postponement for a while.

Whether it is on the subject of the Russian treaty or some other issue, a division adverse to the MacDonald Government probably will be taken early in the Autumn, and then will come the fiercest political battle this country has had in many years. The only prediction one dares make is that it will not result in a Liberal victory.

Mr. MacDonald's Right

The truth is they are rather taken with the idea of holding a general election sooner, because they are convinced the Russian treaty issue will do them more good than harm. They cannot see the loss of any votes for having negotiated the pact, and on the other hand, they can count on some new votes from the Communists, not many, but enough to bring victory in some triangular contests.

The Liberals do not like the situation in the least. Most Liberals would prefer to keep Labour in office indefinitely rather than see a Conservative government in power. MacDonald's policies could be adopted in full by the Liberals. MacDonald has to his credit the acceptance of the Dawes report, which everyone is prepared to admit is the greatest step toward the stabilization of Europe since the war, not excepting the Treaty of Versailles.

He has further triumphed at Geneva and given substance of practicability to an organization which hitherto has been compelled by the force of circumstances to deal largely in generalities and theories.

There is bound to be a fight in Parliament over the Russian treaty.

NEWS OF THE SPORTING WORLD

Davis Cup Is Retained By the United States

Tilden and Johnston, After Dropping First Set, Win With Ease in Doubles From Patterson and Wood, Thus Securing Trophy by Three Straight Victories Over the Australian Challengers—Fifth Successive Triumph

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—The United States retained the Davis Cup, when William T. Tilden, national champion, and Vin. M. Johnston, Californian veteran, today defeated Gerald L. Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, of the challenging Australian team, three sets to one in the doubles contest. The scores were 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1. This victory, with the two in the singles yesterday, gave the American team three straight matches in competition for the famous trophy, emblematic of tennis supremacy.

The Australians won the first set with smooth team play, but once the American team got under way, the result was never in doubt. The driving slashing forehand shots of Tilden and Johnston more than counterbalanced the combination play of the Australians.

Beginning with the second set, Tilden and Johnston outscored their rivals in clean placements. The tendency to netting, evident in the play of the United States team, was not repeated in the doubles yesterday, as the Americans played like a combination of many years' experience.

America won today largely through the individual brilliance of its two players, rather than through the smoothness of their team work. Tilden and Johnston, back as partners in the Davis Cup doubles for the first time since they joined forces, in 1920, to bring the trophy back from Australia, played like a combination of many years' experience.

The Australian team gained its early lead in the match largely through failure of the United States players to team up properly, and through the superior steadiness at the net of Pat O'Hara Wood.

With the start of the second set, however, Tilden and Johnston were playing in unison, driving brilliantly from deep court, a riving with terrific force and accuracy and pounding Patterson, the Australian captain, on his back-hand until the challengers broke under the pressure.

Save for a brief rally in the middle of the third set, the result never appeared to be in doubt after the second set. Patterson became slow on foot, and his play became erratic. O'Hara Wood valiantly tried to stem the rising tide of play on the part of the Americans, but without avail.

The triumph of the United States doubles team today, coupled with the two singles matches yesterday afternoon, gave three victories to the American team. Two more singles matches are scheduled for tomorrow but their outcome cannot affect the ultimate disposition of the trophy.

The victory today was America's fifth successive triumph. In 1920, Tilden and Johnston, the victorious doubles team of today's match, brought the Davis Cup back from Australia, and in three of the last four years the Australians have been the competitors of the United States in the challenge round. Japan was the other competitor, in 1921.

Lady Golfers Start Play for Championship of Dominion Monday

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—Seventy-one women already have entered for the Canadian ladies' open golf championship, which commences on Monday morning. They were paired today for the qualifying round, out of which will be selected sixteen players who will contend with Miss Glenna Collett, Providence, R.I., former United States champion, her right to the Canadian title, which she won last fall from Mrs. Gavitt, of Huntercombe, England.

Mrs. Harold Hutchings, Winnipeg, is paired with Miss Collett in the preliminary.

WALKER CUP GOLF

GARDEN CITY, N.Y., Sept. 12.—The American golfers took a commanding lead in the first day of the Walker Cup competition today, winning three out of four 36-hole individual four-ommes. Hon. Michael Scott and Robert Scott, Jr., defeated Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, and W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, one up.

RICKARD IS LITTLE IMPRESSED BY WILLS

Making No Plans for Fight Between Firm's Conqueror and Champion Jack Dempsey

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The complexion of the heavyweight fight which is under way in the boxing world today as a result of Harry Wills' decisive victory over Larry Firpo last night at Boyle's, Thirty Acres.

The Argentine's crushing defeat, it seems, has eliminated the probability of a sequel to his dramatic battle with Jack Dempsey of 1923, but Wills, despite his victory, was not considered to have improved his chances of gaining his much-sought title match with Dempsey.

This view was shared by Tex Rickard, who declared he was not impressed by Wills' showing, and had made no plans for a match which would bring the negro and Dempsey together.

Rickard indicated he might stage several additional exhibitions of contests before finally picking the champion's next opponent. Wills, Jack Renault, the hard-hitting Canadian; Tom Gibbons, who stayed fifteen rounds with Dempsey last year, and possibly Firpo will figure in further tests.

LEAGUE BASEBALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The Giants today got their first dose of Western medicine and as a result their temperature decreased to the danger mark. While Brooklyn remained idle the St. Louis Cardinals plastered the Giants, getting 13 hits to only eight for the Cardinals. In spite of the 13 hits the Giants were able to send only one run across the plate—Jackson's.

Pittsburgh continued its anil-like pace to overtake the leaders by defeating the Boston Braves, five to four.

The standing of the leaders in the National League today is as follows: New York, 44; St. Louis, 43; Brooklyn, 42; Pittsburgh, 41; Boston, 40; Philadelphia, 39; Cincinnati, 38; Cleveland, 37; San Francisco, 36; Chicago, 35; Washington, 34; Detroit, 33; Philadelphia, 32; St. Louis, 31; Cincinnati, 30; Cleveland, 29; Boston, 28; Pittsburgh, 27; New York, 26; Washington, 25; Detroit, 24; Philadelphia, 23; St. Louis, 22; Cincinnati, 21; Cleveland, 20; Boston, 19; Pittsburgh, 18; New York, 17; Washington, 16; Detroit, 15; Philadelphia, 14; St. Louis, 13; Cincinnati, 12; Cleveland, 11; Boston, 10; Pittsburgh, 9; New York, 8; Washington, 7; Detroit, 6; Philadelphia, 5; St. Louis, 4; Cincinnati, 3; Cleveland, 2; Boston, 1; Pittsburgh, 0.

OWLS ARE BEST BALL JUGGLERS

EARLYBIRDS ARE DEFEATED BY ELEVEN TO TEN

Egyptian Account by Absent Reporter of the Owl's Skill in the Play —Umpire Best Man

The Colonist Owls won a close baseball game from the Times Earlybirds yesterday afternoon at the Royal Athletic Park by eleven runs to ten. Some of the Earlybirds' supporters claimed that the Owl had only won by half newspaper decision, meaning presumably that one side thought it had won and the other was equally positive that it had.

The baseball expert of this paper having gone on strike, it has devolved on the obituary writer to record the solemn proceedings.

As he was not present himself, he interviewed the umpire, who requested for a true and accurate account of the ceremonies, and was given the positive assurance that The Colonist's expert of this paper had been correct in his decision, and that this was how it was done.

Game by Innings?
First Inning, Times: Six hits and several batters by The Times result in seven runs.

First Inning, Times: Three up and three down.

Second Inning, Colonist: Charlie Shaw by some fine base running adds one more.

Second Inning, Times: Several errors by the catcher, third baseman and second baseman resulted in nine runs.

Third Inning, Colonist: First two men up were safe on hit and error. Superb pitching by Archie Willis, retired the side by striking out three batters.

Fourth Inning, Colonist: Superb fielding by the Colonist resulted in no runs being scored.

Fourth Inning, Times: Patterson reaches first on close decision, steals second and third and scores on overthrow by Miles.

Fifth Inning, Times: Sallaway doubles to left field; next two batters strike out; next batter hits hard ball to short and Hickey fields in sensational manner and throws runner out at first.

The Winning Run
Fifth Inning, Colonist: McDonald flies out to third baseman. Hickey was out on close decision at first.

Griffin reaches third base by nice base running and proceeds to pull off the home play of the day by stealing home. The winning run is scored. The Colonist wins by a score of eleven to ten.

Thanks are due to the umpire, Mr. W. H. Hickey, who courageously helped stage the game, and to Alec Stevens of the Eagles for allowing his baseball material to be put to good use.

The police arrangements for handling the crowd were excellent and no rain checks were necessary.

S.S. ATHLETICS

Arrangements Made for Season's Basketball—Officers for the Eusuing Year Elected

Tennis and basketball were discussed at the annual meeting of the Sunday School Athletic Association of this city held at the Y. M. C. A. building last night.

The following were elected: Honorary president, William Erickson; president, W. D. Knott; vice-president, Arthur W. Williams; secretary, Miss F. Gates; treasurer, Mr. H. MacMillan, and an executive committee consisting of Bob White, C. Turner and H. Erickson.

The success of the first year's tennis tournament was discussed and plans were made for next year's season. The coming basketball season was also discussed. Arrangements are being made to have a representative league of all the city churches, and officials are expected to be equally successful season as last year. Application forms are out and clubs are urged to send them in early.

Registration cards will be printed soon. Arrangements are being made to secure the Memorial Hall, Christ Church Cathedral, where the games will be played. Some of the teams expected to be entered this year in the senior, junior and intermediate leagues. The league was successful last year under the leadership of Mr. H. MacMillan, who has always taken an interest in church sports.

QUOTING NOTES

A large turnout of spectators attended the final for the silver cup donated to the club three years ago by Mr. T. Withers, between D. McMillan and J. Leiper. The game was 41 shots and good play was seen. Leiper showed good form the first half, getting a lead of twelve shots, but seemed to lose the throw, giving McMillan a chance to pull up, the final score being McMillan 41, Leiper 31.

The silver medal is the next competition, and will likely be the last this season.

SHAWNIGAN FISHING GOOD

Arthur Wyds, of Shawnigan, reports that fishing is very good in the lake just below the dam. Catches of from a dozen to two dozen trout are being made, with the fish all of good size.

REINSTATEMENT REFUSED

The petition presented to Judge Rose asking for the reinstatement of Killarney Belle, Mrs. J. H. Mackenzie's mare, so that this thoroughbred might race at the meet which opens today, was rejected.

RACES TODAY

The last meet of this season's racing on local tracks starts today at the Willows and will continue all next week. For the final meet of the season there are some three hundred horses stabled at the Willows and all the owners are anxious to get their entries on the card. The Willows track being but half-a-mile, only eight horses are allowed to start in any race and no less than thirty-seven entries were received for one of today's races, an indication that the owners are all out for business and that competition will be keen for the valuable purses hung up.

VETERANS' FOOTBALL CLUB IS ORGANIZED

Will Enter All Competitions This Season With Strong Aggregation of Players to Pick From

A large and enthusiastic meeting was held by the Veterans' Football Club on Wednesday evening for the purpose of organization. The club has decided to enter all competitions this season, and it is expected that the team will again make a good showing. With last year's team practically intact and with the new players who have signed on, the Vets no doubt will have one of the strongest aggregations in the city.

Arrangements are well in hand to play one or two away games. The club should assist greatly in getting the boys ready for the opening game here on September 27.

The election of officers for the 1924-1925 season resulted as follows: President, W. G. Stone (re-elected); secretary, W. De Gruchy; manager, C. G. MacRae; assistant manager, J. Patterson; councillors, C. Jasper and M. MacGill; trainers, W. Hook and H. Ord.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Veterans of France for the use of their clubroom for training purposes, also to the president of the council, who generously given during the year.

DECLINES TO MAKE HIS "SHARP REPLY"

COUNCILOR KIRKHAM WILLING TO MEET RATEPAYERS

Describes Sanial Association as "Men Who Like People Go Around With Their Mouths Open"

Councillor H. O. Kirkham declined to give his expected "sharp reply" last night at the Sanial Council meeting at Royal Oak to charges made against the Sanial Council, by the Sanial Central Ratepayers' Association in the absence of any official representative of the ratepayers' body.

The charge that the Sanial Council Ratepayers' Association made against the finance committee of the 1923 council was that the committee passed an item of $225 for replacing Councillor Kirkham's car without the proper authority of the Police Commission in Sanial of that year.

The letter from the Ratepayers' Association notifying the council of the accusation was received by the council on Friday, August 15, and after Councillor Kirkham and others had spoken on the matter, was laid on the table. When the matter was raised last night at the council meeting, Councillor Kirkham asked if there was any person present officially representing the Sanial Central Ratepayers' Association, for otherwise, he said, "there is no use wasting the time of the council."

Reeve Macneil observed that Mr. H. H. Grist, president of the Ratepayers' Association, was present, but was unable to tell whether he was officially representing that organization.

Not Official Representative
Mr. Grist, who had attended the session in anticipation of a "sharp reply" from Councillor Kirkham, asserted that he was not officially representing the ratepayers' body at the meeting.

Councillor Kirkham, who reiterated a previous statement that he personally had nothing to cover up or hide as a member and chairman of the finance committee of the 1923 council, said that these reports of his remarks in connection with this $225 payment on the Broken car were much exaggerated.

He charged that he was often misquoted, although not wilfully, and denied that he had called the Sanial Central Ratepayers' Association "a group of busybodies." What he had said about that organization was, he averred, that he had described them as "men who like people go around with their mouths open."

The council also had before it a communication from the Ratepayers' Association, which contained a charge of maladministration upon the part of the council, and Councillor Kirkham, after calling upon Mr. W. Dempster, and calling upon him to resign from the Sanial Police Board.

"Are these charges against Mr. Dempster correct?" inquired Councillor Vantreight. "If they are, then an investigation should be held. However, if they are not, then they should be thrown in the waste-paper basket."

Wills Hoping for Bout With Dempsey
NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Harry Wills, victor over Lulu Firpo in twelve rounds at Boyle's Thirty Acres last night, is to leave tomorrow with a view to resuming his career on a farm with relatives near Petersburg, Virginia.

Both Wills and his manager, Paddy Mallin, expressed eagerness for a match with Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship, but, as there seems no prospect of that until next year, it is expected that the negro will engage in several fights to keep in shape.

The body contains twenty square feet of skin.

Sportive Punches

By the "Old 'Un"

It's all right, ladies and gentlemen, keep your seats and don't get alarmed. We have not declared war against China or anything like that, and that was not the distant rattle of machine guns that you heard.

It was just the opening of the hunting season and the discharge of Victoria hunters' "fowling pieces" directed against the unsuspecting young blue grouse.

SEPTEMBER 13 is marked in red letters on the sportsman's calendar. Whatever else you may say or think about golf, you've got to admit that Victoria's golf courses act as a splendid advertisement to bring people here.

Here's a short extract from a long article printed in an American newspaper on the recent Seniors' Golf Association's championship tournament at COLWOOD:

"There isn't a doubt in the world that VICTORIA can have the event next year and as long thereafter as its people want it. Never were visiting golfers treated so hospitably as were all those 'who were fortunate enough to go to VICTORIA.'"

The fame of the Seniors' Association has spread all over the Pacific Northwest and applications for membership are flooding the secretary, who is Captain Perks, OF VICTORIA, remember.

And next year a team representing the Pacific Northwest Seniors is going to Montreal to play a team representing the Eastern Seniors, and no doubt the following year there will be a return match AT VICTORIA.

Practically all these senior golfers are men of influence, and they will spread the fame of VICTORIA where it will do the most good.

Well, LUIS ANGEL FIRPO has probably made his exit from the heavyweight fighters' arena. As remarked in this "veteran" before the fight, he is not a boxer and Wills only had to be ordinarily careful to stay with him to the end of the twelve rounds.

Wills won a modest fourth for the Old 'Un in this fight, but, all the same, if he does meet JACK DEMPSEY within a reasonable time the Old 'Un's next four-bits will go on Dempsey.

What Firpo did to an incautious Dempsey is a better man than Wills in the ring, at any rate who thinks Dempsey is a better man than Wills in the ring.

As for the Bull as they call him, he should worry. He wanted to quit the fight game some time ago, or so he said, having about a million more, he wanted. Now he'll have about a quarter of a million more, if the lawyers don't get it all before he gets clear of the "land of the free."

Cricket Notes

By A. B. BROWN

England's Team Strengthened

The M.C.C. England team to leave for Australia very soon, has been added to and materially strengthened by the inclusion of Jack Hobbs. When the original side was announced a few weeks ago, Hobbs' name was not in the list, but in the interval the M.C.C. committee has been in touch with the Surrey cricketer, and gained his consent to travel with them.

Howell, the Warwickshire fast bowler, has likewise been included, also Whysall, the Nottingham reserve wicket keeper.

Seventeen Players

The complete side is made up of seventeen players—the largest number ever sent from England to Australia on a cricket tour. The full list follows:

A. E. R. Gilligan, captain, Sussex; J. W. H. T. Douglas, Essex; J. L. Bryan, Kent; A. F. P. Chapman, Kent; Hobbs, Surrey; Sandham, Surrey; Strickland, Surrey; Sutcliffe and Kilner, Yorkshire; Hearn and Hendren, Middlesex; R. Tyldesley, Lancashire; Woolley, Kent; Freeman, Kent; Tate, Sussex; Howell, Warwickshire, and Whysall, Nottingham. F. C. Trone, Yorkshire, is manager of the team.

C. H. Gibson, Sussex, who was originally chosen to travel, has declined the invitation owing to business reasons.

There are twelve South of England and five Northern men on the side. They have a lot of leeway to make up, as the Australians won the last two Test series in the Antipodes and in England.

Team for West Indies

In response to a strongly expressed wish, the M.C.C. is sending a team to the West Indies. The players leave for England December 11, and expect to return the first week in April.

Captain R. S. L. Fowler is to captain the team. Hon. F. G. Calthorpe (Warwickshire) and J. W. MacGill (Barnet) have been invited to go.

Cricket Footballers

Two of the Nottingham cricket team have delighted the soccer fans by their skill in the Summer pastime this year. Willis Walker, who keeps goal for South Shields, played a fine innings for Nottingham against Surrey at the Oval the other day, when he scored 37, or only three short of his century. William Flint, the Nottingham right half, scored 103. Playing against Derbyshire, Walker gave another dashing display, while Flint took six wickets.

Woolley's 2,000 Runs

Frank Woolley, the Kent left-handed batsman, has shown magnificent form this year. He passed his two thousand runs in the game for his county against the South Africans, and was the first batsman to reach this figure during the current season.

Woolley hit in great style, his innings of 174 including four sixes and fourteen fours.

Grace and Rhoades

W. G. Grace and Wilfred Rhodes are the only two men who have credited themselves with a thousand runs and a hundred wickets in Gentlemen vs. Players matches.

Warwickshire's Loss

Warwickshire has suffered more than any other English county cricket club from the wet weather this season. The income will be down anything from two to three thousand pounds.

Famous Player Dead

The death is announced from Calgary of W. R. Gilbert, a cousin of W. G. Grace, and in his day but little less famous than the Grace brothers. Gilbert played for Gloucestershire for ten years.

Teach's Hard Hitting

Teach, the Surrey professional, lived up to the dictum of his county in "hitting hard and often" against Somerset at Taunton. He got his first 44 runs out of 69 in half an hour, and obtained his first fifty in twenty-five minutes. Teach scored 22 of two suc-

FASCIST SECRETARY KILLED BY ASSASSIN

Shot by Carpenter in Revenge for Murder of Deputy Matteotti
Earlier in Year

ROME, Sept. 12.—Armando Casalin, general secretary of the Fascist Syndical Corporations, was shot and killed by a carpenter named Corvi. Corvi is under arrest and testified he had intended to avenge the slaying of Deputy Matteotti, Socialist leader, by killing some distinguished Fascist. Corvi is stated to be a member of the Communist party. It is officially stated that he committed the murder for personal reasons and that the crime has no political aspects.

Casalin was assassinated while riding on a street car with his daughter, aged 14. When Corvi fired at close range the girl attempted to protect her father by throwing herself before him. Corvi continued to fire, discharging four shots. As the police closed in on him he cried "Matteotti is avenged."

Casalin was taken to the hospital where he died before he could be reached by his wife. Mussolini called out all the police and military and informed them of the outrage. The cabinet discussed measures to avoid reprisals by Fascist and to maintain public order.

A short time ago a memorial to the American Ambassador, Walter Hines Page, was unveiled in the old town. This is one more sign that many of the people of the United States and of Great Britain have the same forefathers.

By word and deed Mr. Page gained and deserved the love and esteem of the British people during his term of office in the time of the Great War.

A Very Old Town

Pickering is the name of a town in Yorkshire, England. Those learned in the science of long ago have discovered that the town of Pickering was first built more than two hundred years before the Romans arrived at Britain.

It must have been rebuilt many a time before Richard II was shut up in the walls of the castle after his deposition. Many years later Elizabeth was confined there for a short time during the reign of her sister, Queen Mary.

A short time ago a memorial to the American Ambassador, Walter Hines Page, was unveiled in the old town. This is one more sign that many of the people of the United States and of Great Britain have the same forefathers.

ONTARIO PREMIER STATES QUESTIONS

Queries to be Submitted in Liquor Plebiscite—Quebec and B.C. Systems Not Acceptable

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—Premier Ferguson, following a conference today with representatives of the Prohibition and Moderation League forces, announced questions the which will be submitted to the people as a plebiscite on October 23, next, regarding the liquor question.

The questions which the voters will be asked to answer are: "Are you in favor of a continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act?" and "Are you in favor of the sale, as a beverage, of beer and spirituous liquors in sealed packages under government control?"

In the statement handed to the press, the Premier said: "Government control does not mean the system of sale such as is in operation in Quebec and British Columbia."

He added that strict regulations are contemplated.

future differences over the interpretation of sea law. He got around all the questions by saying that, however embarrassing it might be, the fact remained that the United States was not a member of the League of Nations. This being so, he added, any possible dispute between Great Britain and the United States arising out of capture of vessels at sea would be settled through the usual legal and diplomatic channels.

Any compact that Great Britain entered into, said Lord Parmoor, was with the members of the League of Nations and did not affect outsiders, but Great Britain, he declared, in bringing her naval force as a sanction against an aggressor naturally could not be asked to judge by those whom she was serving in the interests of peace.

Naturally, Lord Parmoor went on, Great Britain should not be asked to submit to compulsory arbitration any incident arising with either a member or non-member of the League of Nations.

Today's developments seemed to convince delegates generally that the League assembly was moving towards some agreement concerning sanctions. Sweden, which is violently opposed to the pact of guarantees, joined the ranks of many other states which have expressed their readiness to contribute something to outlaw war. M. Branting, the Swedish representative, asserted that Sweden would be glad to bring forward financial and economic sanctions in a common cause to increase world security and to reduce to impotence any aggressor state.

CAN'T BEAT "TIZ" WHEN FEET HURT

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, humiliated feet of yours in a "Tiz" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk, and then they'll take another dive in that "Tiz" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "Tiz." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "Tiz." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous excretions which put up your feet and cause foot torture.

A few cents buys a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel.

28TH ANNUAL FAIR HELD BY ISLANDS

WONDERFUL DISPLAY OF STOCK AND PRODUCE SHOWN

All Past Records Smashed—Keen Competition Taken Place in Various Classes

SALT SPRING ISLAND, Sept. 12.—The twenty-eighth annual exhibition of the island's Agricultural & Fruit Growers' Association took place on Wednesday at Ganges, and proved itself the prettiest show on record. At 1 p.m. the fair was opened by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, who, after being introduced by Mr. E. F. Gibson, president of the association, addressed the people present, congratulating them on their excellent exhibition, and the beauties of their island, parts of which he had spent an hour or two motoring.

He considered the scenery amongst the most beautiful it had ever been his luck to see. He concluded his opening speech by expressing the hope that he would be invited again to Ganges, if not in a public, in a private capacity.

In the main building the arrangements of the exhibit, the wonderful display of flowers, beautifully decorated dinner tables in a hall with a color scheme carried out in yellow and black, brought about a most artistic effect, which won general admiration. There was no doubt of the excellence of quality of every exhibit. The fruit and vegetables were perfect, the flowers, both in quality and quantity, have never been surpassed on the island at any show, and the same might be said of the exhibits of the bottled fruit, jam, bread and cake; probably owing to the dryness of the season, the entries in field produce were not so numerous as usual and there was a falling off also in the number of articles shown in the fancy work division.

In the show ring some excellent stock was judged, especially amongst the Jersey and grade cows. In the latter class there was a large entry. The swine shown was also of first class quality.

A great deal of interest was taken by numerous spectators in a log cutting competition, for which J. Whimie, Ryan, W. Lundy, Tom McMurdo, Bateman and E. Roeman entered. The winner was W. Lundy, in 4:14 minutes. Second prize went to Bateman.

The catering for the day was undertaken by members of the Ganges Tennis Club, under the management of Miss K. Allen. After lunch speeches were made by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Col. C. Peck, V.C., M.P.; Mr. E. F. Gibson, Mr. W. E. Scott, and others.

NEW BASILICA WILL BE SPLENDID CHURCH

Golden Statue of St. Anne de Beaupre, Saved From Fire of 1922, Will Grace New Structure

QUEBEC, Que., Sept. 12.—With all the imposing ritual of the Roman Catholic Church the corner stone of the new Basilica to be constructed at Ste. Anne de Beaupre will be laid by His Eminence Cardinal Beaudry on Sept. 14. The new structure will be one of the most beautiful church buildings on the continent and will be built from plans drawn by an eminent firm of French architects. The new Basilica will stand on the site of the great church, where miracles have been performed, known to many thousands of pilgrims throughout America, which was destroyed by fire in March, 1922. This church itself had replaced an older building incorporating parts of a chapel erected in 1688. The chapel was constructed by a number of French sailors who, in the midst of a great storm, vowed that if Ste. Anne spared their lives they would build a shrine when they landed in Quebec. They safely made shore at Beaupre and kept their promise. This was the first miracle ascribed to the saint. Since then the shrine has been visited by the sick yearly, and a feature of the last Basilica was the stacks of crutches thrown away by those healed. The only part of the church saved from the fire was the one golden statue of Ste. Anne, con-

At the Playhouses

COLUMBIA Tom Mix fans who have not seen him in THEATRE had better plan on visiting the Columbia Theatre tonight, where this new Fox feature closes a three day run. It is one of the best stories in which the Western hero ever appeared and he has the support of an unusually fine cast. Mix plays the title role as a lineman for a Western power company which strings wires through the mountains. Thrills, romance, pathos and humor mingle freely in one of the most notable yarns of Mix's career before the camera. Mike Donlin, former ball player, Dolores Housheer, Kathleen Key, and other well known performers, have important roles. John Conway directed. "The Trouble Shooter" is one of the best things Mix has done.

PLAYHOUSE "Vendetta" is the nickname given Eulalie Jensen by her friends. The actress is a dark-eyed brunette of the vivid type of beauty usually associated with women of intense Latin nature. Miss Jensen plays the role of a French countess in "Slave of Desire," the film version of Balzac's story, "The Magic Skin," which is now playing at the Playhouse Theatre. George D. Baker directed the production at Goldwyn studios.

DOMINION With the exception of THEATRE Annette Kellerman, the screen boasts no more expert swimmer than Norma Shearer, who appears in support of Jack Holt in "Empty Hands." Victor Fleming's first production for Paramount under his new long term contract. She is a Canadian, born in Montreal, and was a consistent trophy winner and exhibition swimmer and diver in the famous A. A. A. of Montreal. She was one of three fifty members of the club to give a swimming and fancy diving exhibition for the Prince of Wales upon the occasion of his visit to Canada in 1912. In "Empty Hands," the Arthur Stringer novel which is now showing at the Dominion Theatre, she is seen to advantage in an aquatic role calling for great expertise in the water.

PANTAGES News of the day was the THEATRE Inspiring motive for "The Law Forbids," new Universal-Jewel feature starring Baby Peggy, playing at the Pantages Theatre. For it was the news account of "trial separation" among several notable couples in American society that gave the idea of the story to its author, Bernard McConville. The play is a graphic story of infatuation, divorce and marital mix-up. A strong cast, directed by Jess Robbins, supports the diminutive star, who is the central figure, including Robert Ellis, Elinor Fair, Joseph Downing, Hayden Stevenson, William Welsh, William E. Lawrence and many others.

NE'ER DO WELLS ARE USUALLY FAVORED BY PARENTS, SAYS ACTOR

"Why is that John plugs along and helps me along together?" asked George O'Brien, the young lead in the William Fox picture "The Man Who Came Back." "But Jim, who ran away when he was sixteen and wrecked the family fortune, comes back to open arms and warm hearts. Why is it, anyhow?" There followed then a little philosophical study of human nature. "It seems to me that it's a pity," said O'Brien. "A family usually places a halo of romance over the head of the black sheep. They think he has suffered. Maybe he has. But with all this carving of the fatted calf going on, I believe somebody ought to set up a banquet for John once in a while. He may not wear his hat at a rakish angle, or speak strange words in a foreign tongue, but he keeps his feet on the ground and his head in on his shoulders steadily all the time. Frankly, I'm strong for John."

Which is an odd enough view of the matter for O'Brien, considering that he threw himself on heartily into his part as the black sheep son in "The Man Who Came Back." He not only wastes his father's money, but drags the family name into the mud by, twisted streets of Shanghai where he wanders aimlessly in quest of drink. But eventually he is saved by a woman and of course the father welcomes him into the fold. Dorothy Mackall has the feminine lead in the picture and a capable cast lends excellent support. The director was Emmett Flynn. "The Man Who Came Back" opens an engagement of six days at the Capitol Theatre next week.

ANDERS RANDOLF IS ARTIST AT HEART BUT ACTOR BY TRADE

Anders Randolph, who plays the role of Mr. George Vernon, father of Dorothy Vernon, in Mary Pickford's "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," her latest United Artists release, playing next week at the Dominion Theatre, is a Dane by birth, an artist by hobby, a director at heart, and an actor by trade. Randolph was one of the original members of the famous old Vitagraph stock company. "Commodore Blackton sent for me to make a painting which was to be used in a picture for Vitagraph," he explained. "They used my painting and later someone recommended me for a part, and after that another part followed. Soon I found that I was a member of the stock company with a regular salary. I tried to get a job as director—but they thought more than acting—but they thought I was a crazy artist and that it would be better to keep me acting."

GOOSESTEP SEEN IN BERLIN STREETS

GERMANS PARADE IN OBSERVATION OF DEFENCE DAY
No Pre-War Colorful Uniforms, and Fierce Uhlans Headless Also Missing From Show

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—Thousands of Berliners, including crowds of school children released from their studies for the occasion, saw the remnants of the once impressive and colorful German army goosestep through its first autumn parade held since the war.

The parade was in the nature of a German "defence day" and was coincident with the end of the Baltic manoeuvres of Germany's tiny war fleet and a war game between the red and blue armies which has been going on in the vicinity of Klotzendorf.

Terrific gusts of rain drenched the watchers and must have affected their enthusiasm, for when the twenty or twenty-five thousand sombre-clad soldiers defiled past General von Seeckt, only the school children cheered. Perhaps the elder spectators were thinking of the pre-war autumn manoeuvres when the Kaiser proudly watched tens of thousands of his crack troops march by and always returned to Berlin at the head of the massed regimental flags, convinced that the German army was the best in the world. This time there were no gay uniforms with gold braidings. The fierce headless of the Uhlans cavalry was not in line. The red uniforms sported by other mounted regiments were also gone. Instead, a really excellent, though small, army paced by in regulation campaign uniforms, each soldier bearing a cowhide knapsack and full marching gear. Young Germany cheered when camouflaged armored tanks rumbled along in the line of march, and again as each regimental band swung out to play its own outfit past the reviewing stand. The new held pieces permitted to the German army by the Treaty of Versailles and the machine gun again brought cheers from the crowd, but not once did the older watchers seem to be thrilled by the sight of the dwarfed army of the Fatherland.

BRITAIN TO TRY OUT IRON-PLATE HOUSES

Sheffield Firm Offers to Demonstrate That Four Men Can Build Two Dwellings in Week

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Following the recently announced scheme of Captain W. E. Burnaby, M. P., for building concrete houses in three days, comes the offer of another plan for constructing houses of cast iron plates as an alternative to the plan for building steel buildings. This suggestion has been made by James A. Potter, of Sheffield. It is claimed that the total cost of two semi-detached houses—exclusive of land and drainage—would not exceed £250, and that this figure is based on actual quotations from firms ready to undertake the work. Rotherham Corporation has offered land for the experimental erection of two houses of this type, and the work will be started at once if funds can be obtained, says The Daily News.

The plans which have been prepared are for semi-detached dwellings. Each would have front and back ground-floor rooms 12 feet by 12 feet by 9 feet and 12 feet by 15 feet by 9 feet, respectively. There would be two bedrooms, bathroom and attic. The walls would be built of standard size cast iron plates bolted to steel frames. The outside could be stuccoed, and inside there could be either plaster walls, wood panelling or asbestos sheets. It is estimated that the actual erection—apart from the finishing processes—could be done by unskilled labor, under the supervision of one skilled erector, at the rate of one pair of houses a week for each four men employed. The News holds out a supposititious boom in the metal trade on account of these houses, were they to become popular. "The weight of metal in two houses would be 15 tons. Therefore to build 50,000 houses under this scheme 1,250,000 tons of iron would be required. This would give full employment in all the foundries of the country and the blast furnaces now lying idle would have to be re-lighted."

BRITISH LABOR DESERTS SOVIET

Attempt to Link Workers' Organizations in Old Country With Red Internationale Meets With Failure

RADICAL FACTION IS UTTERLY DEFEATED

English Bolsheviks Is Quite Incapable of Being a Bolshevik at All, Says Conservative Morning Post

(Harold E. Scarborough, in The New York Herald Tribune.)

LONDON.—It may come as a surprise to Americans to learn that after congratulating Premier MacDonald on the signing of the Anglo-Russian Treaty the British Trades Union Congress has refused flatly to consider the question of linking the British labor movement with the Moscow Internationale.

The apparent paradox is only a superficial one, however, for the decision taken by the congress meeting at Hull this week merely reaffirms similar verdicts given at every such conference since 1920, when the labor movement in this country very nearly split to the foundations on precisely this issue.

The key to the seeming inconsistency in inviting Russian fraternal delegates to the conference, and then condemning by a large majority the system which the visitors represent is best found perhaps in a remark made Wednesday by The London Morning Post, an extreme Tory organ: "The hideous thing about the British Bolsheviks is that he is utterly incapable of being a Bolshevik. Even George Lansbury is better known for his kind heart than for his proletarian truculence."

Labor Opposed Communism
This sarcastic fling of The Post, in addition to being witty, has the merit of being true. Organized British labor is quite convinced of the necessity of diplomatic relations with Moscow, and is equally firmly convinced that communism is the Soviet brand has no place in this country. There exists in the Labor group a part of the extreme Left Wing, which, quite possible, because it has been so seldom consulted during the MacDonald administration, is grown extremely vocal.

This group is receiving publicity out of all proportion with its real influence, because a handful of its members happened to be successful in their intervention with the Labor Government when it seemed that the Russian treaty conference had broken down.

It requires a gathering such as the Trades Union Congress to show the gradations of the British labor movement in their true perspective. The delegates at this week's conference represent 4,500,000 trade unionists; yet when on Tuesday the motion came up urging the American labor international, with which British unionism is now affiliated, to get in closer touch with Russia, the Communists in the conference could not muster sufficient adherents to make a ballot necessary after a viva voce vote had turned down the resolution.

This is all the more remarkable since the president and the general council of the congress had decided leanings toward a rapprochement with Moscow. The result of the conference provided a clear corroboration of the theory held by keen American observers here—that at heart the

Mrs. Nalder and Canon Stocken to Speak at Missionary Meeting Tomorrow

A special rally and mission service is to be held on Sunday afternoon at the Reformed Episcopal Church in honor of Miss Muriel Harman, for many years an active and earnest worker in the Sunday school, who is leaving on Tuesday for Toronto and later for Central Africa to work in the mission field there. The service will begin at 2:45 and short addresses are to be given by Mrs. Nalder, an associate of the late Pundit Ramulal, the Indian convert and scholar who did so much to improve the position of women in her own country, and the Rev. Canon Stocken, who spent such a great part of his life among the Blackfoot Indians engaged in mission work. As this is to be Miss Harman's last Sunday at the school friends are urged to attend.

MANY CHINESE TAKEN IN RAID

Seventy-Eight Alleged Gamblers Were Arrested by the Police Last Night in Fan Tan Alley Joint

PATROL MAKES ELEVEN TRIPS TO CARRY ALL

Whistles Blown, Lights Go Out and Steel Doors Slammed as Chief Leads Attack by Ladder

STEEL doors, hurriedly slammed when "lookout men" gave the alarm, failed to stop a police raid led by Police Chief John Fry on the Dai Fat Club, second floor, east side of Fan Tan Alley, about 9:30 o'clock last night.

The police squad, consisting of Chief John Fry, Sergeant Boulton, and Constables Bishop, Ritch and Pook, carried with them a short ladder, and when they found the heavy metal doors closed, they hoisted one end of the ladder to a window sill, and the trick was done.

Sou Kin Yuen, said to be the keeper of the place, and seventy-seven Chinese men found in the rooms, were taken. Sou Kin Yuen was later released on bail of $200, and his fellow-countrymen were given their liberty on bail of $10 each. They will appear for trial on Monday morning, the keeper on a charge of conducting a common gambling house, and the seventy-seven alleged players with being frequenters of such an institution.

When the police squad made its sudden appearance in the crowded little alley in Victoria's Chinatown, connecting Comorant and Fingard Streets, whistles blew, bells rang, and electric lights were snapped out. The Chief led his men at a run to the Fan Tan Alley entrance to the Dai Fat Club, but the steel door, with which the opening is equipped, slammed shut in the face of the police. The ladder was placed in position, and Sergeant Boulton gained an entrance through the window before the opening could be blocked and the "pinch" was made. Eleven trips were made by the patrol wagon in conveying the men arrested to the Fingard Street station. Several tables containing Chinese lottery equipment and fan tan outfits were found in the club quarters, the police stated, and a large amount of it was seized and taken to the station to be used as material evidence against the accused.

FORMER VICTORIAN GETS APPOINTMENT

MR. H. R. MACKENZIE IS FEDERAL INSPECTOR OF BANK

Was Manager of Local Branch of B.B.N.A. and Held in Highest Respect in Dominion

VANCOUVER, Sept. 13.—The Ottawa correspondent of The Province says: "It is understood here that the cabinet council, Thursday, decided upon the appointment of H. R. Mackenzie, of Montreal, to the position of Federal Government Inspector of banks, under the dominion of the Bank Act passed last session. The decision of the Government to create the post of government inspector of banks comes as the culmination of the agitation which followed the Home Bank crash. A public demand was voiced for more direct and efficient supervision of chartered banks by the Government and to this demand the Government has given recognition. From all parts of the Dominion the demand was made for a more efficient supervision of the banks, and the Government has responded by the appointment of Mr. Mackenzie to the post of government inspector of banks, and the actual value of securities listed as assets and reserves."

Mr. H. R. Mackenzie, who is the first incumbent of the new office, is one of the outstanding bankers in the Dominion. He is well known in this city, as well as throughout British Columbia, for in addition to periodic visits here since he became general manager of the Bank of British North America in 1912, he was manager of the Victoria branch of that bank in 1908, having been succeeded here by Mr. David Dole. Since 1920 he has been general manager of the Royal Trust Company. Mr. Mackenzie is held in the highest esteem by his colleagues of the Bank of Montreal, which institution he joined as assistant general manager when it absorbed the Bank of British North America in 1914. He is a son of the late Archdeacon Mackenzie, of Brantford, who was one of the most popular Anglican clergies in Ontario.

FIND MAY SOLVE SMITH MURDER

Blood-Stained Cloth Found in Baker House Furnace Gives Vancouver Police New Clue—Arrests Are Pending

MYSTERY MAY TAKE SENSATIONAL TURN

Discovery May Be Significant as Identification of Leopold's Spectacles in Finding Slayers of Franks Boy

VANCOUVER, Sept. 13.—A few pieces of cloth stained with blood, found in the furnace of the Baker home, Shaughnessy Heights, may furnish the missing link in the chain of evidence that will convict someone of the murder of Janet Smith.

The discovery has given the police a new clue, regarded of tremendous importance, and it was reported late tonight that the Janet Smith case, which has already created interest almost unsurpassed in the Province's annals of crime, might be expected to take within the next few hours a new and sensational turn.

Public interest in the mystery has been fanned anew by the find, and the belief that the jury's finding—murder by a person or persons unknown—would represent the final episode has been dispelled.

The discovery of the bloodstained cloth may, according to police, be just as important in the solution of the Janet Smith mystery as was the finding of the spectacles of Nathan Leopold, Jr., in the apprehension of the slayers of little Robert Franks in Chicago.

Today's developments were reminiscent of the Millard murder of some years ago, when portions of a burned body, clothing of the victim were found in the furnace of the Millard home on Pen-

ENGINEER DERIDES NOOTKA CRITICISM

MONUMENT ACCESSIBLE TO ALL, SAYS INFORM AND AGED

Original Site Selected by the Indian Agent Happily Being Washed Away by the Sea

If the Vancouver-Quadra monument at Nootka had been placed on the spot chosen by the Indian Department, it would have been washed away by the sea within a year unless large sums of money were spent to protect it, Mr. J. P. Forde, district engineer for the Dominion Department of Public Works, said last night in reply to Indian Commissioner W. E. Ditchburn, who lauded a statement yesterday declaring that his department could not be criticized for the location of the memorial.

"It is not by any means inaccessible, as it can be easily reached by any ordinary able-bodied person," said Mr. Forde, who selected the site on which the monument stands and who attended to the erection of it. "It could be made accessible to any but cripples or centenarians," Mr. Forde said. The reasons for the selection of the site were first, because it is close to the site of the old Spanish fort at Friendly Cove and commands a magnificent view over the ocean and the straits between the islands of Vancouver and Quadra.

"In fact, at very little expense, it could be made accessible to any but cripples or centenarians," Mr. Forde said. The reasons for the selection of the site were first, because it is close to the site of the old Spanish fort at Friendly Cove and commands a magnificent view over the ocean and the straits between the islands of Vancouver and Quadra.

Military Trumvirate Now Grooms in Chile

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 13.—The "governing junta," in reality a military trumvirate which now rules Chile, does not propose to lay down its power until it has given the country a brand new constitution under which to make a fresh political start.

Child, Dragged 300 Yards by Cow, Is Dashed to Death

WINNIPEG, Sept. 13.—Dragged 300 yards by a cow, John Manichewski, the ten-year-old son of a C. P. R. section foreman, was dashed to death. The youngster had gone out to fetch the cow and had tied the rope around his waist. Suddenly the animal dashed away, throwing the boy to the ground and dragging him over the rails of the street car tracks. When help came life was extinct.

APPEALS AGAINST LIFE SENTENCE FOR ARSON

Calgary Man Granted Leave to Re-argue Case on Three Convictions Recorded Against Him

CALGARY, Sept. 13.—On Saturday Mr. Justice Stuart granted leave to appeal against the three sentences of life imprisonment, seven years and seven years, respectively, pronounced against John Francis Gallagher by the Hon. Justice Harvey. Gallagher was convicted of arson in burning his shack at Carbon, for which he was given a life sentence. He also was sentenced to seven years on each of two charges of making false affidavits in connection with his claim for fire insurance on the burned shack. Gallagher appealed and asks a new trial on the ground that the judge misdirected the jury, refused to admit evidence tendered for the defence. These will be argued on Monday before five judges of the appellate division.

"Have Nothing to Say"
PARIS, Sept. 13.—The plan for funding of the French war-time debt to the United States, prepared by Edward H. Hurley, member of the world war debt court, has been received with absolute silence so far, and even the Foreign Office declares: "We have nothing to say."

SECURITIES CONVENTION OPEN TO NON-MEMBERS

Polish Delegates Stress Fears of Republic Owing to Geographical Position Between Two Great States

GENEVA, Sept. 13.—Differences of opinion characterized the meeting today of the sub-committee of the League of Nations assembly designated to draft a project of security and disarmament, either in substitution for, or amendment to the famous pact of mutual assistance which now has been before the League for three years.

The question of security is definitely linked in all minds with that of disarmament, and the delegates are experiencing considerable difficulty in drawing up any plan of security without taking into account the assembly's views on disarmament.

The French won the day; that is, that any convention relating to arbitration and security would be distinct and separate, though it would be clearly understood that when the powers signed this convention they pledged themselves to take part in a disarmament conference.

Dr. Eduard Benes, of Czechoslovakia, was appointed to prepare the text of a convention as a basis for further discussions. Great Britain, France, Spain, Sweden, Norway and Czechoslovakia participated in the debate.

Defence Day Levy Prevents Recurrence of Confusion Evident in War Preparations

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—General Pershing passed to the retired list of the army today, satisfied that the mission he set for himself when he turned his face homeward from France—establishment of a national defence system to safeguard the nation in future against any such confusion and turmoil of improvised preparation as it knew in 1917—was well on the road to accomplishment.

Zeppelin's Flight to America Is Postponed

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 13.—The transatlantic flight of the dirigible ZR-3 has been postponed until late in September or early in October. ## Battle Between Northern Armies Is Now Imminent

Manchurian War Lord at Head of 100,000 Men Ready to Take Field Against Chili Forces of Same Number, Including 20,000 Christians Under General Fung Yuh Siang

SOLDIERS BAPTIZED AND MARCH OFF SINGING HYMNS

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord, can send 100,000 troops into Chili without risking loss of control of Manchuria unless he is severely defeated in the field, it is estimated in Peking, according to a dispatch from Reuter's correspondent there.

The Chili forces will also number about 100,000, including 20,000 Christians under General Fung Yuh Siang, who is earnestly preparing for war. The recent visit to Peking of one of General Fung's new brigades, which arrived with old guns, rifles and other equipment, and their return to Tung Chow the same day, aroused local speculation until it was learned that the troops' weapons were exchanged for new ones. The men were baptized and the new weapons solemnly blessed, after which the brigade marched off singing hymns. These soldiers have been trained under Spartan methods and their discipline and efficiency is of the highest order.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FEELS CONFIDENT

Promises Audience What He Will Do When He Becomes President of United States in March

TOPEKA, Sept. 13.—With an apparently mounting confidence, John W. Davis carried his fight for the presidency across the Western plains today through Nebraska and Kansas in a series of addresses, beginning before breakfast at Kearney, Neb. In a driving rain and ending tonight here, in the capital of the Sunflower State.

When the Democratic standard-bearer began his drive through this territory a week ago, he was content to make his promises on the basis of "if" or "should" he become president. But today he came chief executive next March, he would use every endeavor of heart and mind to furnish a government of honesty, of courage and of justice.

LADYSMITH FAIR DRAWS THROUGHS

ASSOCIATION DOES WELL DESPITE HANDICAPS

Parade of Provincial Government Held to Affect Quality of Annual Exhibition

LADYSMITH, Sept. 13.—The annual Fall fair of the Ladysmith Agricultural Society, which opened Wednesday, attracted large crowds from the city and surrounding districts. The exhibits of cut flowers were especially good. Great credit is due to the management for its untiring efforts in keeping this before the public as they have done, especially as the present Government has cut the appropriation made in former years to such an extent that it has been very hard to furnish prize money enough for all exhibits as advertised in the society's list of events. It is hoped here that the Department of Agriculture will see its way clear to support such fairs as the local one in a more deserving manner.

PLEA FOR RECONSIDERATION

Considering its far-reaching significance, in ways even beyond the question of actual transportation facilities, we hope the B. C. Electric Railway Company will reconsider its decision to discontinue the Saanich interurban line. This is obviously a matter in which the Chamber of Commerce should have interest itself and see if any representations can be made to the company which will induce it to change its mind. The closing down of the interurban would undoubtedly have an adverse effect on the investment of capital in this quarter of the Province. The line as such may not pay, but it is complementary to a system that is paying. We believe that a schedule could be worked out that would make it possible to continue the interurban, which, as we have said before, has proved a substantial factor in the development of the Saanich Peninsula.

The decision of the B. C. Electric Railway Company has very naturally aroused protests from several quarters. It has brought home to the realization, namely, that the people mainly concerned have not given the interurban adequate support. One of our stumbling blocks to progress has been lack of co-operative effort and that is illustrated in the fact which now threatens the interurban. The point we wish to make is this: that the closing down of this road is going to have a very distasteful effect. It is going to cause a deterioration in property values in Saanich. It is going to militate against the investment of capital in this locality. It will undoubtedly tend to cause a feeling of pessimism about the future. These are conditions to be avoided. The B. C. Electric Railway Company has a very large investment in British Columbia. It has been enterprising, and there are very few instances where its initiative has not been justified by subsequent events. We believe that it is only a question of a very short time before the interurban will become self-supporting, provided the co-operation of the traveling public is secured, as it most probably would be now that people have been brought face to face with the consequences of lack of such co-operation. The business best, but in the interests of the locality and its residents we would ask it to give the interurban a trial of an additional six months, and we express the hope that this suggestion will receive the support of the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations interested in the progress of the community.

NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY

The course of the League of Nations has been bound to provide shoals and rocks even in its moral efforts to provide safeguards for international peace. Britain, for one nation, has maintained her sovereignty, or, in other words, her right of interpretation where sea law is concerned. Britain might well have been expected to take this attitude. She is the greatest of maritime nations and the nation which still has the dominating position in sea power. Her Empire is world-wide and methods for its defence cannot be submitted to the arbitrary decision of any league of nations. It is true that technically the authority of the Geneva court may be weakened by the attitude taken by Britain, but the justice of that attitude has been recognized by acquiescence in the reservations affecting the compulsory arbitration clause.

What has happened indicates that there must be a certain amount of elasticity in the functioning of the League of Nations. The danger of that body lies in its decisions involving too great an infringement of national sovereignty. It is exactly because of the danger of such infringement that the United States has refused to become a member of the court, and it is within the bounds of possibility that the course of history will prove the wisdom of her attitude. The League of Nations has a substantial moral authority. It is when it supplements this by a physical authority that troubles will ensue. It may be said that until it has such physical authority many of its decisions will be nugatory, but that is untrue because it could possess the power of economic pressure, which is such a tremendous factor wherever hostilities threaten. The fact of the exercise of physical pressure tends to destroy the main conception of the League, which is the promotion of universal peace. Any decision regarding such pressure is open to doubt so long as so many nations remain outside the scope of the Geneva court. A league of nations that is to function successfully on all occasions must include in its membership all the chief powers of the world, as well as the lesser ones in the present League of Nations.

State, Germany, and Russia are conspicuous by their absence, and, so far as the greatest of these three powers is concerned, the probability is that it will never throw its lot with the world peace court. So long as one Great Power remains outside the aegis of the Geneva court the nations who make up the League must put forward reservations affecting their attitude in certain contingencies.

NORTH OKANAGAN

The Provincial election in North Okanagan should provide a strenuous contest. It is a matter of satisfaction that a straight Conservative candidate should have been selected to contest the seat with Dr. K. C. MacDonald. He will have the support of both the Conservative and 'Provincial Parties. The issue is clear, whereas in the Nelson by-election, which resulted in a substantial victory for Premier Oliver, it was obscure from the standpoint of the Conservatives, inasmuch as they were not sure of the political complexion of the opposition candidate. In North Okanagan the test is a straightforward one, and if the Government wins there, even with the prestige of a Cabinet Minister as its candidate, it will have every cause for gratification. It is not clear at the moment that the Government will concentrate such efforts in the latest by-election as it did in the case of Nelson, for the reason that there have been heart-burnings within the Cabinet over the circumstances which led to the choice of Dr. MacDonald as Provincial Secretary.

The North Okanagan contest is the first test of the Conservative Party under the leadership of Mr. R. H. Pooley. It is really, as well, the first definite test of public opinion in a straight party contest since the general election. Mr. Pooley has left for North Okanagan to lend his support to Mr. A. O. Cochrane, the Conservative candidate, and the latter will also receive platform aid from D. S. F. Tolmie. Predictions as to the outcome remain somewhat obscure. The element of uncertainty always enters into a by-election where one of the candidates is a newly-appointed Cabinet Minister in a Government which is apparently secure in its tenure of power. That is the Liberal's strongest claim to success. No doubt hopes and inducements will be held out to the voters of North Okanagan as has been done in previous by-elections. The residents of that constituency are, however, in many respects, different to those of Nelson and may not succumb to blandishments and promises. Dr. MacDonald's personality is one element in the contest and it is one of which he will have to make substantial use. He will not have the active support of the Premier, as the latter will be absent from the Province.

UNEMPLOYMENT

Mr. Robb, the Acting Federal Minister of Finance, attributes unemployment to people crowding into the cities while farmers actually lack laborers. The theory is worthless unless there is a remedy, and Mr. Robb and the Government to which he belongs have none. The distribution of our citizenship as between rural and urban centres ought to be a matter of concern to any Government, yet we hear little or nothing on the subject save platitudes. Premier Oliver of this Province has alluded before now to the attraction of the "white lights" of populated centres, yet he has so far failed to evolve any settlement policy which will redress the balance. If there was a proper distribution of our inhabitants there should be no unemployment problem in a country of such rich resources, but the trouble seems to be that the pioneering stock no longer exists and, therefore, if there is to be a remedy for present conditions, the Government must find ways and means for making the agricultural industry more attractive.

Mr. Robb framed his last budget particularly for the farmers and the dwellers in rural districts, but it does not seem to have functioned as he expected, or else he would not now have to complain that people are flocking to the cities and creating an unemployment problem. Mr. Robb must not forget that his budget, whatever its effects on the farming community, has created unemployment in the cities and what the Government directly causes that authority should directly cure. The Toronto Mail and Empire, in commenting on the recent unemployment conference at Ottawa, says:

Hard as Mr. Robb and his fellow Ministers have made the lot of the workers in the cities, it would appear from what he says that they have made still harder the lot of the workers in the rural districts, and have driven these in large numbers and in desperation to the cities in which are the hundreds of factories that have been obliged to close down because of the King Government's destructive tariff policy. The Robb remark is no less than a damning confession of the Government's great sin against the people, who are being driven from pillar to post in search of work, who are moving from the rural districts to the centres of unemployment in the cities, and who from there are being pushed on to the United States. Worse than the threatened red rust to the Western wheat crop is the actual blight the King Government is to this country.

New Chinese Premier

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

The shooting season has arrived and the sound of the exploding shell is heard throughout the land. Death is stalking the wild creatures of the fields and the woods. There was a time when we looked forward to the shooting season as the most pleasant season of the year. There was a time when, like "The Old Un," we oiled up the old gun and exercised the old setter in anticipation of the "days of real sport."

But time brings changes, alters circumstances, and occasionally performs miracles. In our case a miracle was wrought about ten years ago. At that time and in the time which succeeded it we read so much about following guns and cracking rifles, so much about slaughter and sudden death, so much about the mangling and mutilation of human beings, that the lust for and pleasure in killing anything ended within us.

But there is some pleasure still left for us, and unfortunately the opening of the shooting season does not promote or enhance that pleasure. We like to watch the pheasants and the quail feeding in the fields or stealing stealthily across the open spaces from covert to covert. It is a delight to us to observe the solicitude of the cock and hen quail for the welfare and the safety of their great broods of chicks. No human fathers or mothers are more tender in their care of offspring, more vigilant in their guardianship against dangers which lurk in the path of innocence and inexperience, than the male and female quail.

The cock pheasant is beautiful to behold when his gaudy plumage shimmers in the sun; but he is entirely devoid of family affection. In that respect he is worse than an infidel. He may be courtly in his manners when his heart is inclined to intercourse with his womenkind, but the responsibilities of paternity sit lightly upon his back of many colors. He is the Harold Skimpole of the bird community.

Nevertheless the cock pheasant's manners have been bequeathed to him by a long line of aristocratic and fighting ancestors. He is not to blame for them, and he is not worthy of condemnation and death because of them. He is a very pleasant feature of the landscapes around Victoria. He does look beautiful in life whatever his vices. In death he is not beautiful—no even impressive. How can he be when his coat of many colors is torn with shot and discolored with his own life blood?

As we have said, we no longer derive pleasure from the death of any living thing, but the pleasure of beholding with some measure of delight the ways and the manners of many of the living things that have their being in the neighborhood of Victoria has not been denied us. The environs of the city are sanctuary, and nothing may be killed therein by sportsmen. That is a wise provision, and it will be a source of great pleasure to a multiple of people in the years to come, when the natural charms of the most charming of all the cities on this continent become known to the world.

Let there should be any misunderstanding of what we have said, may we be permitted to wish the sportsmen who have gone forth to the chase a very pleasant time. May they have all the success their hearts can desire, within the limits prescribed by the Game Act; and may they derive great physical benefit from their exercises in the woods and mountains. We, too, have passed through the fires of great anticipation, and therefore know just how they feel about it. For us the opening of the shooting season was once considered the great event of the year.

The Prime Minister of Albania has told the members of the Assembly of the League of Nations what he thinks of them, and in a measure just what we think of them. He says they are simply a pompous, portentous-bunch of bubble blowers. The Minister did not employ those precise words in expressing his sentiments, but there is no doubt of what he meant. Passing pious resolutions may be a pleasant pastime, but who has ever heard of anything practical being accomplished by passing resolutions?

As it happens, the Premier of Albania possibly is in a better position to pass judgment on the deliverances of the League than any of the other delegates. He lives right in the heart of the district which provided Germany with an excuse for beginning the late war, and probably will give some other nation what appears to be a valid excuse for beginning another war. He knows all about the temperaments and the ambitions of his own people, and all about the temperaments and ambitions of the neighbors of his own people. That is why the belief of the Prime Minister of Great Britain that he can lay the foundations of a structure that will insure perpetual peace in the world is quite pathetic. The dispositions of nations and of men cannot be changed by passing resolutions. If the spirit, or the temperament, or whatever you may care to call it, of the Anglo-Saxon race could be inoculated in the blood of all the other races of the earth, then of course the circumstances would be entirely different and the prospects of another war.

Mr. Lloyd George has hurled a brick into the camp of the British Labor Party, we are told. Many missiles have been hurled at the head of the British Labor Government also, but Mr.

Lloyd George and some of the other political leaders over there appear to have no strength at all in their good right arms. Either that or the defensive armor of the Laborites is impenetrable.

Canada's Story Day by Day

SEPTEMBER 14
One of the finest panoramic views in the world is the scene from the promenade at Quebec, which is built over the walls of the old Fort St. Louis. Travelers from all the world are forced to exclaim upon the exquisite beauty of the country watered by the St. Lawrence, which sweeps majestically by at the foot of the cliff. From time immemorial the cliffs have sheltered a town. When Cartier visited Canada for the first time in 1534, he induced two of the Indians to return with him to France. So amazed were they with the wonders of France and so impressed by their tales, that Donnacona, their great chief, on their return, that Cartier was invited to visit their village. The friendship offered to them by Donnacona was not without its result, so accordingly, Cartier and three of his young officers prepared to go to the Indian village. The visit took place on the day in 1535. The four Frenchmen decked themselves in the best costumes their wardrobes could provide, and approached the village of Stadacona. The Indian women in their eagerness to see the white men, had induced two of the Indians to haul the boat ashore. They took them through a forest trail to the cliff top, the first Europeans to see the famous panorama. The stones of the cliff were full of mica and false diamonds, naming the cliff Cape Diamond. On a subsequent visit Cartier filled his ship with a cargo of stones from the cliff, thinking he had a rich fortune in gems. Cartier repaid Donnacona's hospitality by kidnapping him in the following Spring and carrying him to France.

SEPTEMBER 15
On Jacques Cartier's second visit to the new world he was prepared to winter in the land. He was so eager to explore. He hoped by spending the Winter season on the St. Lawrence to become acquainted with the Indians, to learn their language and their ways and perhaps to learn from them something of the lands which lay to westward. His little company travelled in three ships: La Grande Hermine, La Petite Hermine and L'Emerillon, the first being the flagship of the fleet. They sailed from Cartier's home port, St. Malo, France, in May, and spent the Summer exploring the Gulf. On this day in September, 1535, Cartier selected a spot in which to safely harbor his vessels for the Winter. It was a sheltered place in the St. Charles River, now the St. Charles, protected from storms. It was a long, hard Winter, and not before Spring arrived, and Cartier was forced to abandon La Petite Hermine for lack of men to sail her. Three centuries passed, when, in 1843, Mr. Joseph Hanel, city surveyor, in the quietest of the Historical Society of that city to the timbers of an old vessel, partly submerged in the clay banks of the St. Charles River. It had been the prey of pickers, who had chopped bits of the wood away for fire. A serious investigation disclosed that it was the old Petite Hermine, Cartier's abandoned ship, the hundred and seven years previously.

NOTED EDITOR IS VISITOR IN CITY

CHIEF OF TORONTO GLOBE ON HOLIDAY JAUNT

Wields Powerful Influence in Public Affairs—Is Impressed With Growth of City

Enjoying his first real holiday since becoming editor-in-chief of The Toronto Globe several years ago, Mr. Stewart Lyon, veteran Canadian journalist, was a guest at the Empress Hotel yesterday prior to leaving today for California.

He declares that the changes in Victoria since he was here fifteen years ago are extraordinary and is greatly impressed by the growth of the city and the development of the lumber industry on the island.

Powerful Writer

Mr. Stewart Lyon came into the newspaper world with no great capacity for rhetoric, no extraordinary gift for impassioned appeal, no unusual lucidity or brilliancy. He came from a workshop where for years he had had the opportunity of brooding over the things he observed about him, and where the impulse to write was bottled up in him until the accumulation became a sort of reservoir of power and feeling. As a reporter, as an editor, as a news editor, there was not much scope for the exercise of that feeling, but as compiler of the editorial page of a pulsant newspaper, the powers he had held in leash for years were given scope.

Those who know Mr. Lyon at close range, who have worked for years beside him, or beneath him on his paper, hold him in deep affection. Those who have heard his impatient exclamations rattle a peremptory signal on the pneumatic tube as a signal for more copy wanted, or his impatient exclamations rattle a peremptory signal on the pneumatic tube as a signal for more copy wanted, or his impatient exclamations rattle a peremptory signal on the pneumatic tube as a signal for more copy wanted.

THREATENS EAST WITH VENGEANCE OF WEST

SUPPORTERS OF HUDSON BAY RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION SUGGEST LIKELY RESULTS OF OPPOSITION'S ACTIVITIES

WINNIPEG, Sept. 13.—If Eastern "interests" continue to show serious opposition to the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway, the words of a statement made here by a member of the On-to-Bay Association executive, "It is time we in the West limited our campaign in building Toronto's widow's veil, and millions voted to Vancouver for her harbor."

The statement said the association expected Premier King to make "a most favorable pronouncement covering the attitude of his Government" on the matter on the occasion of his Western tour. The association is carrying on an educational campaign in Western Canada, and has been greatly encouraged by the reported statements of the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Federal Minister of Agriculture, who recently inspected the completed and uncompleted portions of the railway.

INQUEST ON DROWNED SWIMMER TOMORROW

Dr. E. C. Hart, coroner, has ordered an inquest to be held at 11 o'clock Monday morning in the coroner's court at the Victoria Police Station in connection with the death by drowning of the late Mr. Vincent Hicks, aged 25, son of Rev. J. P. Hicks, 417 Drayton street, Victoria, whose body was recovered from a deep pool in the Sooke River early yesterday morning.

Notice to Breeders of Livestock

Mr. Erick Bowman, the discoverer of The Bowman Remedy, claims that in treating 70,000 cattle in the United States, the results have been successful in 98 per cent of the cases treated.

Are your dairy cows and heifers causing you trouble? Are you obtaining results in calves and milk that satisfy you? Do your cows (according to your knowledge of their capacity) produce as much milk as they should—or are you marking time and feeding a number of boarders that should be sent to the butcher?

These are matters that can be put right. Delays are fatal. Why not consult

MUST DECIDE GUILT BEFORE JOINING BODY

GERMANS MAINTAIN QUESTION OF WHO CAUSED WAR MUST HAVE PRECEDENCE TO MEMBERSHIP

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—An authoritative statement issued in the German press says emphatically that since Germany cannot enter the League of Nations until the war guilt question is solved. Notwithstanding numerous opportunities during the London conference, the statement continues, no foreign statesman raised the question of Germany's admittance, which was purely a matter of expediency. Before Germany's empty chair is occupied, says the statement, the covenant must be altered more favorably towards the Germans, and Germany must not be required to ask for any selective seat, but must be allocated a permanent membership.

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—Spare those tears! It is announced that since the war the state of Prussia has paid the former Kaiser and members of his family about $5,000,000 for upkeep. This news, which was made public by a special committee which for five years has been investigating the ex-Kaiser's finances in order to determine what Prussia should pay him, has created a sensation throughout Germany.

Engineers estimate that approximately 1,500,000 horsepower may be produced by geysers in Geysers Canyon, California.

Onwego Bible Class—The last one of the most successful of the Summer season socials of the Onwego Young Men's Bible Class of First Presbyterian Church took place Friday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. E. Gough entertained the class at their home on Highview Street. After the adjournment of the short business session a sing-song, led by the four-piece Onwego orchestra, and games were much enjoyed. Delicious refreshments were also served by the hostess. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the kind host and hostess for throwing open their home for the enjoyment of the class, and the hope was expressed that it would not be long before the members again found opportunity to taste of their hospitality.

To Repeat Lecture—Dean Quinlan has acceded to a popular request to repeat his lecture on "Recent Impressions of England," which he will deliver again on Thursday evening next in Memorial Hall at 8 o'clock. When the lecture was announced last week, several hundred people were unable to secure seats in the new building. Apart from general interest in the subject and the well-known ability of the lecturer, one of the objects of the lecture is to assist in the reduction of a loan incurred in furnishing the Memorial Hall building. Subscriptions to the building fund, which when completed will be sufficient to cover its cost, were inadequate to pay for the furniture required for the auditorium, classrooms and recreation hall. The main hall has been fitted with four hundred seats of a comfortable type, and is proving to be an excellent hall for lecture purposes. No charge of admission will be made to the lecture on Thursday night, but a collection will be taken at the end towards the furnishing fund.

Fire Insurance Rates
In Vancouver Increase

VANCOUVER, Sept. 13.—Nothing will prevent the ten per cent increase in fire insurance rates going into effect, John L. Noble, secretary of the British Columbia Fire Underwriters' Association, announced, following a conference between the governing body of underwriters and three members of the Vancouver City Council. "The underwriters have nothing to offer in the way of an increase in the fire department," said Mr. Noble. "As a result the underwriters have no alternative but to carry out their announced intention of increasing the rates ten per cent on September 15."

For Feet That Tire From Walking

—The hands are strong, capable and untiring because they have freedom to work and to move. Your feet will be comfortable and tireless, too, if you change from ordinary stiff arched footwear to the freedom of the flexible arch Cantilever Shoe. Walking becomes a true pleasure in Cantilevers; they give welcome comfort to men and women who must be on their feet a great deal. The graceful lines of the

Cantilever Shoe for Women

are patterned from the lines of the foot. The shoe is carefully lasted to follow the mould of the underfoot and lend restful support to the arch. And the arch of a Cantilever Shoe is flexible. It allows the muscles to flex and contract with every step, to function freely as Nature intended. This exercise strengthens the foot muscles as you walk so that they support the small bones of the foot in a strong, springy arch. The moderate, well set heels of the Cantilever Shoe encourage correct posture and distribute the weight without strain on the arches. The combination of moderate heel and natural outline in the Cantilever Shoe allows the foot to step firmly and gracefully without cramping the toes or binding the muscles anywhere. We are the sole agents for Victoria.

The marriage vows were spoken under a large wedding bell of white roses. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a handsome suit of grey gabardine, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of uphelia roses. Miss Peggy McLeith, of Vancouver, was the only bridesmaid, smartly gowned in a fawn suit and fawn felt hat. ## Big Prices Feature the Racing at Willows Track

Louvain Proves Longest Shot by Paying $44.30 on Nose, $11.35 Place and $6.15 Show—Little Buck Surprises With $26.45 for Place—Good Crowd Sees Opening of Final Meet of Season

LOUVAIN, winner of the fifth race, paying $44.30 on the nose, was the longest shot of the afternoon, yesterday, at the Willows, when the last week of horse racing in the city and Province for the year opened. A large crowd witnessed the splendid card of seven races, which was started off promptly at 2:15 o'clock.

Good prices were paid by the ponies yesterday, and the better of the money on the successful ponies were well rewarded for their fine pickings. The second highest price of the matinee event was $26.45, paid by Little Buck, which finished second in the fourth race. Willowbrook proved a surprise in winning the third event, and paid its backers with $20.45 on the nose. Good sums were also paid by Jack Fairman, Cafeteria, Carrie Moore and Medford Boy, all of whom were winners of races.

Cafeteria romped home with a safe victory in the opening event and paid the unexpected liberal figure of $10.75 on the nose. The favorite, Pueblo, with Neal up, led the field for three furlongs, but then fell back and even failed to secure a place. The money, Neg was runner up on Pueblo as the ponies first passed the grandstand, but Cafeteria, which was running third, beat both these thoroughbreds for the laurels. Neg finished second, while North Shore, a long shot, surprised by coming in third and paying $7.80 show money.

Peg O gave Carrie Moore an awful scare in the second race, but the latter horse succeeded in maintaining the lead that she established early in the contest. The distance was six and one-half furlongs, and the two leading horses showed the form. Neg won paid $9.80 straight. Peg O came in second, while Simlikameen figured in the show coin.

In Doubt All the Way

The third race was hotly contested and in doubt all the way. Hatten on got away to a slight lead, but dropped this before much ground was covered. Zarella piloted Willowbrook to a pretty win, and the long shot rewarded with $20.45 on the nose, $5.15 place and $3.50 show. The hot favorite, Pat Mabrey, had to be content with the middle berth, and Hatten on showed the form. Willowbrook was the longest shot, but paid $20.45 on the nose, $5.15 place and $3.50 show. From the outset the race belonged to Jack Fairman, and this five-year-old brown gelding didn't display any evidence of having been poisoned by drinking iodine, as Vancouver papers indicated a day or two ago. Fairman was in the form, and left his competitors behind. He rewarded with $11.35 on the nose, $6.15 place and $3.50 show. Willowbrook was the longest shot, but paid $20.45 on the nose, $5.15 place and $3.50 show.

After leading for nearly six furlongs Jack Fairman led the lead in the sixth race to $19.45, which romped home and paid $4.75 and $2.90 for first, second and third respectively. Jack Fairman, splendidly mounted by young Melver, the seven-year-old gelding, came in second, rewarding its backers with $6.80 for place and $3.75 show. Gainer brought Robert L. Owen in

GUNNERS' SPORTS DAY IS SUCCESS

RODD HILL IS SCENE OF THE ANNUAL EVENT

Over Two Hundred People Enjoyed the Sports—Mrs. Wright Presents Prizes

Over 200 people enjoyed the rays of sunshine cast by Old Sol yesterday at Rodd Hill on the occasion of the annual sports day of the Royal Canadian Artillery. Sporting events totalling twenty-one in number were carried out without a single hitch in the proceedings. Novelty races held all away with no less than seven events, amongst which was a ladies' nail-driving contest. This event was perhaps the most spectacular from a spectators' point of view, when the ladies showed how they were capable of handling a hammer. The competitors had to drive two six-inch spikes into a heavy piece of lumber, the party completing this task first winning the prize.

One event in which everyone seemed to enter was the luncheon, and a jolly good lunch it was. It was a happy crowd that sat on the benches and the grass and made merry at what proved to be one of the most successful meals of the year. At the conclusion of the sports events the prizes were presented by Mrs. Wright, wife of Major Wright, Officer-in-Chief of 5 Battery, R.C.A. (C.A.).

The complete results were: Kicking football—1. Trumpeter Bischoff; 2. Lance-Sergeant Grimes; 3. Lance-Sergeant Grimes; 4. Lance-Sergeant Grimes; 5. Gunner McGrath; 6. Gunner McGrath; 7. ## Polo Won by America By Overwhelming Score

Sixteen Goals to Five Is Record-Breaking Total in First Game of International Series at New York—Stevenson Is Thrown and Sustains Concussion of Brain—Louis Lacey Saves Britishers From Complete Rout

WESTBURY, N.Y., Sept. 13.—America began the defence of the International Challenge Cup today with a smashing one-sided victory over Great Britain in the first match of the series for this historic emblem of polo supremacy. A colorful crowd of 35,000 that included the Prince of Wales and a host of other notable guests, saw the Yankees overwhelm the invaders by the record-breaking score of 16 to 5. Only a sparkling rally in the last two periods, in which the British scored four goals, chiefly through the individual brilliancy of their Anglo-Argentine back, Louis Lacey, saved the challengers from complete rout.

A Record Total

The score rolled up by the Americans, with Tommy Hitchcock and Malcolm Stevenson leading the attack, was the highest that has ever been recorded in the 38 years the challenge trophy has been in competition. Their winning margin has been exceeded only once. That was in the second game of the first series in 1886, when the British were victorious by 14 to 3.

With her new big four more than measuring up to the great traditions of its famous predecessor, America never seemed more supreme on the international field than today. As a result, only the most startling kind of an upset can prevent the Americans from dashing to another triumph next Tuesday and clinch the possession of the challenge cup once more. Regardless of the outcome of the next game, however, a third will be contested, probably next Saturday.

Stevenson Hurt

The American triumph, however, was costly. In the final period Stevenson, the newest link in the big four, who had been a bulwark on both attack and defence, was thrown heavily as his pony, Agulla, stumbled in a charge down the field. He struck head first and lay inert on the turf. After being helped from the field an examination showed he was suffering from a slight concussion.

son of the brain and it was announced he would be unable to play in the remaining games.

Despite the heavy rainfall of the past week the turf looked smooth and seemed firm.

The Prince of Wales walked unexpectedly on the field a few minutes before game time. He was accompanied by a party of friends and attendants, but would have gone by almost unnoticed by the crowd if a small army of cameramen had not spotted him and rushed their cameras into action. The royal guest of honor was ushered into a flower and flag bedecked box in stands which were nearly filled by a colorful gathering, including not a few debutantes who seemed more interested in the Prince than in the sport itself. The band played the national anthems of the two countries in honor of the Prince's arrival.

The First Goal

The British scored the first goal after a tangle in which the Americans were penalized. Immediately afterward Tommy Hitchcock drove the ball half the length of the field for the Americans' first goal. Lacey made a free shot for the British team. Hitchcock also scored a second goal for the American team, aided by interference by Webb. Score at end of first chukker: Great Britain 1, America 2.

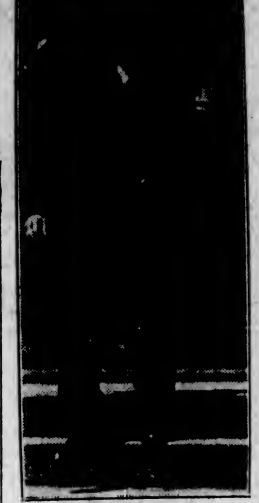

Americans got their third goal in a scrimmage after Lacey had taken the ball the entire length of the field only to have it snatched from between the goal posts by Webb, who later made a goal. Score at end of second chukker: Great Britain 1, America 3.

Hitchcock then scored a goal on a penalty, following a foul by Lacey. Stevenson scored the fifth goal for America following a free stroke given Milburn for a foul by Hurdell. Webb made the sixth goal for the Americans, and Hitchcock made a beautiful run down the field to make the seventh for the Americans. Score at end of third chukker: Great Britain 1, America 7.

Final: America 16, Great Britain 5.

Will Face Test Case

ABE ORPEN

ABE ORPEN

HORSE racing promoter, is head of the new Long Branch race track, situated on the outskirts of Toronto. The charter under which this track is being operated was originally issued for athletic purposes and the operation of the race course was sanctioned by the Federal authorities without consulting the Attorney-General Ontario, according to Hon. W. F. Nickle, K.C. In previous test cases against race track charters, the Provincial Government has lost out.

Stevenson made the eighth goal for the Americans after 45 seconds of play in the fourth chukker. Stevenson scored No. 3 for his team. Superiority of hitting by members of the American team was very evident. Hitchcock scored No. 10 for America. Play at the end of the fourth chukker had become a monotonous succession of goals by the American team. Score at end of fourth chukker: Great Britain 1, America 10.

No Excuses

When Captain Louis Lacey, the back and captain of the British polo team, was seen after the game at Meadowbrook Club today he had no excuses to make for the defeat of the invaders at the hands of the Americans.

At the same time the time Devereaux Milburn's team, which he characterized as a machine.

"The American polo team was a high-geared machine," said Capt. Lacey, "and that tells the whole story. Our more loosely knit organization could not compete against a machine."

LEAGUE BASEBALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The West sacrificed itself on the altar of the East today in the National League Marathon for pennant honors. The Washington Senators twisted the tail of the Tigers, while the New York Yankees lamed the White Sox in an impressive manner in the most important interleague game of the season.

Brooklyn, on the very threshold of the National League pennant yesterday, stubbed its toe against an infuriated flock of Reds today and dropped back to a full game behind the Giants. At the same time the Giants had little trouble overwhelming a weak defence set up by the Cards. The Pirates likewise rambled along the winning way, kicking the Braves viciously in their frantic endeavor to overtake the two leaders.

The Senators invaded the lair of the Tigers and, with Walter Johnson on the mound, subdued the pennant-mad Bengals, 4 to 4. This is a series which means much to Cobb's Athletics, and another mauling like today's will mean almost sure curtains for the Tigers.

The Yanks held a field day in Chicago, winning the lopsided count of 16 to 1. Ruth hitting out his 44th home run of the season in this game. The Dodgers got a tough break against the Reds, losing the decision 4 to 3 only after ten terrific innings had been played. The Giants easily trimmed the Cardinals 12 to 2, while the Pirates pummeled the Braves 7 to 6.

The standing of the three leaders in each league follows:

Tales of a Wayside Tee

By GRANTLAND RICE

It has always been a source of much embarrassment to many who have played other games that a stationary golf ball should be harder to time than a moving object such as cricket, baseball or tennis.

Yet this happens to be the truth. A stationary golf ball calls for much more intricate timing than a swiftly moving baseball or tennis ball. And for various reasons.

In the first place, a moving baseball or cricket ball or flying tennis ball helps to time the blow. The bat or racket, whether can see at about what speed the ball is coming up and he acts instinctively to meet that speed. The approaching missile sends its direct message straight ahead. In the second place, it is much easier to look at a moving object than it is at a stationary one. The moving object catches and holds attention. Whereas in the stationary object the main interest is on beyond.

In timing a blow at a stationary object, the entire burden is upon the hitter. He has no moving object to help guide him, to help adjust his pace. There is the golf ball on the tee or the turf waiting patiently to be hit. It will remain there indefinitely until struck. It is going to fly at bat or racket and bound away, before he has time to catch the eye and hold it. It has purely inanimate, and before it leaves in the right way it must be hit in the right way. There is a surface of twelve inches to a racket. But there is barely more than an inch and a half to the central face of a golf club.

Timing is difficult in golf because of the perversity of the challenge of that still, inanimate object waiting to be whalloped. In games of action one becomes naturally relaxed. One doesn't have much time to think of how a thing is done. He must act immediately and instinctively. There is nothing to bring about relaxation in golf, and lack of relaxation is the cause of a vast amount of sorrow and trouble. There is time, as the ball waits, to think of bunkers on ahead, of lakes and ponds and woodland, of wrist action and pivoting and other vital affairs which are quite likely to distract attention from the main job, i.e., hitting the ball.

INDOOR BASEBALL

Remnants Defeat Esquimalt Nine by 10-4 Score in First Game of Knock-Out Series

Esquimalt's opportunity in the indoor baseball knockout series has come and gone, but with no thanks to the Remnants. The latter team handed the dockyarders the k.o. yesterday at the Victoria Grounds in the first game of the series by a 10-4 score.

The dockyarders found it difficult to field a team and, in order to play the game, they had to use one or two players of another team. The winners took the lead in the start and were never overtaken. What is perhaps a record for foul balls was made yesterday in a game when Simmons, first baseman for the dockers, knocked no less than eighteen consecutive fouls.

Redgrave and Francis, the battery for the Remnants, proved a terrible stumbling block to the opposing batters and were in no little way responsible for the victory of their team. For the dockyarders Simmons at first

Developments at Port Hardy Will Open Up Island

Big Lumber and Mining Outfits Developing Northern District—New $20,000 Wharf and Hardy Bay-Coal Harbor Road Nearing Completion—Timber Company Putting in $1,000,000 Outfit

UNION STEAMSHIP COMPANY WILL DEVELOP HARDY BAY

NOW that the creosote piling for the approach and for the wharf has all been driven and the superstructure got well under way, it is expected that the big dock at Hardy Bay, up in the north of Vancouver Island, will be finished during this fall. Mr. John McCoy, supervisor of the work for the contractors, The Greenlee Construction Company, forecasts that he will have the structure in readiness for steamers, big and little, in the coastwise service, no later than October 15. The wharf is one of the best on the coast and is well built throughout, all submerged timbers being creosoted, and the piling based in concrete.

Big Driver Busy

The pile-driver engaged on the work is the largest in the Province and is the pile in place under the weight of a two and a half ton hammer. The men employed, although living on a scow nearby, are surrounded by all the luxuries of city life, with hot and cold water and the best of food, cooked by Mrs. Frank Paterson, chef-in-chief.

The decking of the dock and approach will be of four-inch material, and a spacious warehouse will be constructed of iron, so as to endure any condition. The work was recently inspected and approved by Mr. J. P. Ford, district engineer, in company with Mr. K. M. Cameron, chief engineer for the Federal Public Works Department.

Highway Progress

The grading of the Coal Harbor-Hardy Bay Highway is well under way and will be completed by the close of this month. This contract is under the supervision of Mr. A. Robertson, who has two large camps with an efficient staff. The manner in which the undertaking is being expedited reflects the years of experience of Messrs. Robertson Bros., the contractors, in this kind of work. Road construction in this section of the island is not easy, as the country is rough and mountainous. The completion of this highway is of vital interest to the development of this tremendously rich district. The present activities are infinitesimal to the changes which will take place on the opening of the highway and the completion of docking facilities. It is claimed by men who are familiar with the country.

It is the intention of the Coast Copper Company, which is a subsidiary of the Consolidated & Smelting Company of Canada, Limited, who have been developing their holding near Elk Lake, to construct a railroad from this property to the East Coast of Vancouver Island. The potential wealth of Quatsino copper and silver lead is beyond calculation, and great results are expected from the district. The Coast Copper Company, for the past seven years, have been operating steadily and have a wonderful body of ore mapped out.

Pulp Mill Busy

The Whalen Pulp & Paper Mills, Ltd., which are located at Port Alice, on the southeast arm of Quatsino Island, are operating to capacity, and have a small army of men engaged. It is the intention of the company to install a power plant now that they have secured the rights to the lakes adjacent to Port Alice. This project will necessitate an expenditure of over $1,000,000. The opening of the highway is of vital importance to the Whalen interests, who have an investment of over $4,000,000 at this point.

Whalena are now treating 90 tons of sulphite pulp and cutting 1,200,000 feet of lumber daily at Port Alice.

Logging Work Grows

The Nimpkish Timber Company, which is regarded as the largest logging concern in British Columbia, is constructing a mill at Beaver Cove. This plant will be one of the most modern on the Pacific Coast, with a capacity second to few mills in the province, and will represent an investment of over $1,000,000.

The payroll of its logging operations alone is between $50,000 and $55,000 monthly. It holds sufficient timber in the district of Nimpkish Lake to cover a period of 75 years continuous cutting. These are but a few of the activities which abound in the northern portion of Vancouver Island.

Coastwise steamers serving this part of the coast are taxed to capacity most of the year. At this season accommodation is at a premium. The Canadian Government Merchant Marine also have plans for the development of this port.

This is the Biggest Pile-Driver in British Columbia. It is Owned by The Greenlee Company, and is Now Engaged on the New Wharf at Hardy Bay.

their sailings. The recent announcement of the Union Steamship Company to add three modern vessels to its present splendid service, partly bespeaks the business growth of this northern country.

With the commissioning of the three new coastwise steamships that have been ordered by the Union Steamship Company, Port Hardy will be further developed, as the ore shipments and equipment for lumber camps, pulp and paper mills and the mining camps will be able to be handled with much better facilities.

Not only is it the intention of the Union Steamship Company to develop Port Hardy, but also the C.P.R. The Canadian Government Merchant Marine also have plans for the development of this port.

NOMIUS DECLARED REGULAR VISITOR

Odorous Beetle Is Found Every Summer at Points Between Cobble Hill and Nanaimo

LADYSMITH, Sept. 13.—Residents of Ladysmith, while not laying any claim to special distinction on this account, are well posted on the finer points of nomia pyrausta, who has been much in the news lately by reason of the facility with which he can clear a room of human beings.

Nomia, better known here as "stink bug," has been an annual visitor here for the past four years, generally arriving in June and staying during the hot, dry spell until the end of August.

He has on several occasions emptied the local movie house, and has even been known to invade the sacred Council Chamber during a meeting of city fathers, much to the disgust of those present.

It is believed that the "stink bug" is quite common at many points between Cobble Hill and Nanaimo. Amateur entomologists here are keenly interested in him and would like to hear from other parts of the island where he may have been detected.

HOSPITAL REPORT

GANGES HARBOR, Sept. 13.—The report of the Gulf Islands Hospital for August is as follows: Number of patients, 23; number of nursing days, 167; medical cases, 6; surgical cases, 8; obstetric cases, 5; infants, 4; operations, 5.

Donations were received from Mrs. Purdy, potatoes, lamb, plums; Mr. Cecil Abbott, 5 lbs. Malin's best tea; Mrs. Barrow, broilers; Mr. Akerman, potatoes, beans, peaches, tomatoes, pears, berries, chicken; Mr. E. Collins, 2 jars honey and honey in comb; Mrs. Gilbert Mount, salt salmon; Mrs. Dean, apples, berries; Mrs. Wm. Mount, fresh salmon; Mrs. Lowther, chickens; Mr. Hele, apples; Mrs. Borradale, pumpkin, berries, jam, papers; Mr. McPherson, salmon; Mrs. P. Beech, pears, apples; Mrs. Rogers, fish; Mr. L. Cropper, eggs; A. Friend, ice cream, cucumbers; Mrs. Hedger, apples and plums; Mr. L. Reddie, large salmon; Mrs. J. Akerman, $5 cash for linen; Mr. Wright, vegetables; Mrs. James, magazines. Several other donations of flowers, fruit and magazines for patients were received with thanks by the matron, Miss Lovering and staff.

SAANICH NEWS

SAANICH, Sept. 13.—The card party given under the auspices of the West Saanich Women's Institute, on Wednesday evening, was fairly well patronized, the guests showing keen interest in the opening of the Winter series. The following were the prize winners: First, Mrs. George Sluggitt, Miss C. Wright, Father Schewlan and Mr. A. Guy; second, Miss Gladys Guy, Mrs. A. Guy, Mr. A. Jeune and Mr. S. Fox; consolation, Miss Hogan, Mrs. T. Haddon, Mr. R. J. Freeland and Mr. Buckle.

The members of the West Saanich Women's Institute entertained a large number of guests at a dance in the Institute Hall on Friday evening. Holt's orchestra supplied excellent music and a midnight supper was served. Mrs. W. O. Wallace gave a generous donation of home-made candy, and the proceeds from the sale of this helped to swell the funds for the evening by a considerable amount.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

NANAIMO, Sept. 13.—Chris. Hetherington, of South Wellington, who was arrested several days ago charged with assault with intent to do grievous bodily harm on Mr. Geo. Taylor, at South Wellington, yesterday appeared before Judge Barker and was committed for trial at the Fall Assizes. Hetherington was taken over to New Westminster yesterday afternoon to await trial.

COLWOOD INSTITUTE

COLWOOD, Sept. 13.—A well-attended meeting of the Colwood Women's Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. E. Frost presided. Plans for laying water to the cemetery and provision for better care of the burial ground were discussed. Mrs. H. Parkes read an instructive and interesting paper on education. Misses H. and E. Kelly were hostesses for the afternoon.

SIDNEY SOCIAL CLUB

SIDNEY, Sept. 13.—The Sidney Social Club held their second card party of the season on Wednesday night in Mathews Hall, with five tables of military 500. The prize winners were Mrs. A. Wassener and Messrs. G. Cochran, G. Hill and E. N. MacAuley. Mrs. T. Harrison and Mrs. MacAuley were the hostesses for the evening.

The officers for the coming year are: Mr. G. Cochran, president; Mrs. A. Critchley, vice-president; Mr. R. N. MacAuley, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. A. Wassener and Mr. B. McKay are also on the directorate. In the future the playing will commence at 8:30 o'clock sharp.

SAANICH IS SECOND

SAANICH, Sept. 13.—Residents of Saanich who contributed of their time and products to make up the Saanich exhibit for the Victoria exhibition feel proud of the success attained at the Provincial Exhibition in New Westminster. The Saanich exhibit was awarded second prize, and Langley, the winner of the first prize, was only a few points ahead. This is just another proof that the Saanich Peninsula can produce fruits, grains and vegetables that will compare favorably with the produce of any other district in British Columbia, while the finished products, such as jams, jellies, butter and cheese turned out by the women of Saanich will hold their own in any competition or market.

SAYS EMPRESS HOTEL MUST BE ENLARGED

Tourist Business Will Necessitate Expansion in Five Years' Time Says Passenger Manager

Extension of the Empress Hotel within five years, as a result of the tremendous growth of summer travel to Victoria, was predicted yesterday by Mr. C. E. Usher, general passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Usher was in the city yesterday with Mr. A. Allen, general manager of the C.P.R. hotel system.

Mr. Usher declared that the time is coming when the Empress Hotel will be unable to accommodate all the people who wish to play there during the months of the tourist season. The hotel, he pointed out, has already been enlarged twice in a few years. But even with its facilities thus augmented, it would be unable to provide for the number of tourists that may be expected five years hence.

"There are many factors," said Mr. Usher, "which justify confidence in a large travel in 1925. The movement to Europe in the present year will be diverted to this part of the continent, and as the Presidential campaign in the States will have been ended, Americans will be traveling in greater numbers. Our new hotel at Lake Louise, the Amusement Centre here, the new coastwise steamers, all these factors will contribute to the enhanced business in 1925, of which Victoria will get its full share."

Mr. Usher intimated that the trans-Pacific passenger business of the company is expanding in a satisfactory fashion. He remarked that the next round-the-world cruise of the Empress of Canada would be worthy of the company in every respect.

MAY BUILD SIDEWALK ON NORTH QUADRA ST.

Saanich Council Will Call for Tenders for Construction of Either Cinder or Wooden Walk

The Saanich Council on Friday night decided to call for alternative tenders for the construction of wooden or cinder sidewalk on North Quadra Street from the North Dairy School to Tolmie Avenue.

The Saanich Liberal-Conservative Association wrote the council, deploring the recent traffic accident on Quadra Street at Lake Hill, and urging that a sidewalk be built along that road. The organization believed that such a sidewalk was necessary for the protection of pedestrians on this much utilized highway.

Reeve Macneil said that it was easy enough to put down a sidewalk, but the cost of constructing same must be borne. He thought that the only way in which the cost of a sidewalk could be paid for was by local improvement.

Councillor Kirkham regarded North Quadra Street as the most dangerous part of the municipality, and while he said he didn't know what the solution of the problem was, he favored the building of a sidewalk from North Dairy School to Cloverdale.

The speaker referred to the recent accident on North Quadra Street, and said that there might be another some time. Steps to safeguard pedestrians should be taken, and he thought the council might request the Provincial Government to render financial assistance in connection with the proposal.

The resolution instructing Municipal Clerk R. H. P. Sewell to call for tenders for the building of this sidewalk was then carried by unanimous vote.

HAS HAD LONG TASK

Returning Officer of Vancouver in Provincial Election Is Still Faced With Duties

Mr. W. D. Balfour, returning officer for Vancouver City Electoral District at the recent provincial election, was in the city yesterday. He returned to Vancouver in the afternoon.

Mr. Balfour's duties as returning officer are still unfinished. While the recount of the ballots cast for candidates is completed, and the chance of a recount before a judge precluded owing to the fact that more than fifty votes divide the lowest on the elected list and his nearest competitor among the defeated ones, the task of counting the absentee votes is yet to be carried out by him.

He will enter upon this count at once.

Booking Heavy on Aorangi Due Here Next February 11

World's Largest Motor Liner Will Replace Makura on Canadian-Australasian Run—Fairfield Sulzer Engines Installed—Are Most Advanced Type of Engine in the World

INAUGURATING RUN FROM VICTORIA TO AUSTRALIA

ADVISED by the local representative of the Canadian-Australasian line state that bookings have already been received for the trip to Australia from England aboard the Union-Steamship Company's new motor liner Aorangi. There are many who wish to make the trip to this coast by way of the Panama Canal, but at the same time do not wish to go out of their way to get home, after spending several months in the Old Country, on vacation.

The Aorangi will sail from Victoria for the Antipodes on February 11, replacing the H.M.S. Makura, which is to be shifted to the San Francisco service.

In the Aorangi is installed the world's largest and most advanced type of Diesel engine. As the picture shows the engines are much smaller than the steam engines in other liners and allows more passenger space.

Sulzer Engines
An advantage of the application of the internal-combustion engine to ship propulsion is strikingly illustrated by the fact that Aorangi's bunkers contain sufficient oil fuel to carry her over the round voyage from Victoria to Sydney, New South Wales, and back, a total distance of 18,000 nautical miles. The main propelling machinery is of the Fairfield Sulzer type, there being four distinct sets of 6-cylinder engines having cylinder diameters 27 1/2 in. by 33 in. stroke. These engines develop each about 2,500 h.p. at full load and are designed to give the ship a sea speed of about 18 knots. The engines themselves are interesting in that although based upon Sulzer design, they contain one or two departures from normal Sulzer practice.

Specially stiffened framing has been arranged, particularly in the columns and bedplates, the bearing surfaces have been increased to reduce pressure on these parts. An alteration has also been made in the soleplate with a view to securing more rigid attachment to the ship's structure, a flat base being arranged which will permit of direct attachment to the tank top. The doubler bottom of the ship in way of propelling machinery has been made specially deep and strengthened with a view to distributing the load and stresses due to propulsion.

Scavenging
Usual Sulzer practice for cylinder scavenging, as is well known, consists of supplying scavenger air through a double row of scavenger ports, the lower row being uncontrolled, while the supply of scavenger air passing through the upper row of scavenger ports is controlled by rotary valves, which ensure a certain amount of supercharging at the beginning of the compression stroke after the exhaust ports are closed. In the engine now under consideration, these valves have been superceded by groups of multiple disc valves fitted in the scavenging trunk. These admit air through a control port as soon as the compression pressure in the cylinders exceeds the scavenger air pressure, which latter is about 1.75 lbs. per square inch. The control position is at cylinder top level, but situated on each engine at the forward and above the injection air compressors. The four engines are installed in the ship are parallel in one engine room with their cylinders on one athwartship line. Thus it will be seen that one pair of engines is usually accessible for the control of one man. Scavenging is carried out, not by pumps on the main engine, but by separate rotary blowers, motor driven, supplied by Brown, Hoyle & Co. Each of these blowers is capable of supplying the scavenging air necessary for two engines. There will be two blowers in operation at any time, the third being for standby purposes.

Engines Parallel
The main engines, as has been mentioned, are arranged in parallel in one engine room, while the principal auxiliaries are to be placed in a separate compartment. Salt water is used for both piston and jacket cooling, and a slight modification occurs also in the piston cooling arrangements, the piston crown being drowned under all conditions of running instead of depending on the usual jet system, which, when the speed of the engine is reduced below a certain limit does not act effectively owing to gravitational forces overcoming the inertia forces of the water.

It is said in China, suicide is often committed by eating a cup full of salt.

SS. DORIC FROM MONTREAL
DAYLIGHT, SEPTEMBER 22

Passengers for the White Star Line steamer Doric, sailing from Montreal at dawn, Saturday, September 27, should leave on the Canadian National Railways Continental Limited, 9:50 p.m. from Vancouver, Sunday, September 21.

This train carries all-steel standard and tourist sleeping and dining cars, drawing room, compartment, library, observation car with radio, and range through to Montreal, arriving 8:55 a.m., September 28. Baggage may be checked through to steamer from Victoria.

As steamer sails at daybreak, passengers embark during the evening of September 28, thus eliminating hotel expense in Montreal. Reservations for both steamer and train may be made at Canadian National Railways, City Ticket Office, 911 Government Street.

STEAMSHIP LINES HIT BY ALIEN ACT

Exclusion Bill Reduces Eastbound Sailings—Over 14,000 Steerage Carried Last Year

TOKYO, Sept. 12.—Effects of the Japanese exclusion clause of the new American Immigration Act are already felt adversely by Japanese steamship companies operating trans-Pacific services, which are now carrying only a small fraction of their former steerage passenger lists. Steerage accommodations of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, Toyo Kisen Kaisha and Osaka Shosen Kaisha trans-Pacific liners formerly were almost altogether taken up by Japanese immigrants or Japanese residents of America. The new law has practically ended travel of this class. The N.Y.K.'s Kaga Maru, on a recent voyage from Seattle, carried only one steerage passenger.

SALVAGING GERMAN WARSHIPS COSTLY

First of German Warships Sunk in Scapa Flow Following Armistice Has Been Raised

SCAPA FLOW, Sept. 12.—The first ship of Germany's war-time navy, which was sent to the bottom of the sea here by her officers on June 21, 1919, has been raised, and will be consigned to an equally ignominious end on the scrap-iron heap. A firm of London engineers has completed the salvage of the vessel—the destroyer V-70—after a year's work and many unsuccessful attempts to float her.

The V-70 was a big ship of the 80 class, which had sunk in 20 fathoms of water in the centre of the Flow.

PIONEER SKIPPER DIES IN VANCOUVER

Operated Steamers on Arrow Lakes Many Years Ago—Old-Timer Attended the Funeral

VANCOUVER, Sept. 12.—Captain Robert Sanderson, pioneer pilot, steamboat builder and skipper of the Columbia River and Arrow Lakes, died here Wednesday, aged 75. Captain Sanderson first ran the Columbia River-Arrow Lakes in 1885, then discovering Halcyon Hot Springs, he helped to build the first bridge across the Columbia that year at Revelstoke. He also assisted in constructing the first trail into what is now Nelson, and with J. Fred Hunter, of that city, and William Cowan, Revelstoke, built the steamer Dispatch, the first on the Columbia since 1886, and the nucleus of the present C. P. R. inland water service. His built the first hotel at Halcyon, and his last request was to be buried there. The funeral took place at Halcyon on Friday afternoon. Old-timers from all over Arrow Lakes attended, including three steamboat masters. The burial service was conducted by Rev. H. S. Payne, of Victoria.

FIND MAY SOLVE SMITH MURDER

drill Street, Vancouver, came to light today in connection with the murder of Janet Smith in the Baker home on Osler Avenue, Vancouver. An arrest is expected shortly.

For the first time since the murder a real search of the Shagheens Heights residence was made by a number of police officials, assisted by men assigned to the plain clothes branch of criminal work in Vancouver. Inch by inch the ground was covered, every portion of the basement where the shooting occurred being closely scrutinized by the trained eyes of the investigators.

Examine Furnace
Outside of the fact that a mark on the wall some seven feet ten inches from the floor was found to have been due to some cause other than the impact of a bullet, the search proved barren of results until one of the party, remembering the Millard case of a year ago, opened the furnace door and raked out the ashes. Then came to light what the police believe to be the first real clue in the tragedy, for among the dead embers, the searchers found portions of a corset, which the police believe belonged to the dead girl. It was badly charred but not destroyed.

A few moments later pieces of cloth, obviously portions of a woman's garments, stained with what is believed to have been blood of the murdered girl, came to view. A man's blood-stained handkerchief also was found. The blood stains will be subjected to chemical analysis.

These objects were carefully placed together and taken over by the Provincial police.

Search Continues
A further search of the contents of the furnace and of various parts of the Baker residence are being made, but with negative results so far.

Head offices of the police department were at once notified of the discovery and it is understood a startling denouement is imminent.

Just who is suspected of complicity in the murder and the attempted destruction of the tell-tale clues is not known, but it is understood an arrest will be made following consultation of officials of the police department, the city police acting in co-operation with officers of departments interested in solving the mystery of the murder.

Members of the household in which the death took place are being questioned by the police in their effort to clear up the mystery, the Attorney-General's Department has been informed.

Luck Comes Captain's Way; He Wins Fortune

How Sealing Skipper Jacobson Left Victoria With Only One Barrel of Beef Aboard the Minnie and Not a Penny in His Pocket, and Came Home With a New Schooner and a Haul of Skins Which Netted Him Thirty Thousand Dollars
(Old Sealing Tales by N. de Bertrand Lugin)

AFTER my trip in which I took the American lieutenant prisoner, I was pretty nearly stranded. I sold what skins I had and paid off my crew; reimbursed them for their boats and guns, and had just thirty-five dollars left to get a house and live on until the next season was over. I rented an old shed that had been used by some fishermen. It was close to the water, so close that I could tie up my schooner to one of the posts of the house. I made sure that no American was going to take her away from me. We lived in the shed, made it quite habitable. We were young then and could laugh at what would seem hardships now.

I borrowed fifty dollars from Captain Cox, and started work for him on the Sapphir, which needed a topmast and a jib-boom. I got "Handsome Bill," a young Swede, to help me at a dollar and a half a day. He was a fine looking chap and a good worker. He was so fast that when he fell in the water he got out before he was wet. He's captain now of the Bonella. Then Andy Bechtal, who was the owner of several sealers, hired me to make stanchions for the Pathfinder at fifteen dollars apiece. It wasn't long before I had some hundreds of dollars saved. About this time Gotman, a German, wanted me to buy a boat for him. He could not own a boat under the law, and I purchased the Alfred Adams and became the nominal owner of her, and I did a lot of work on her. Before long I began to feel I was getting rich. So I quit working for other people and began to refit the Minnie for the next trip.

Keeps House in Church
Early in June, 1890, I took my wife with me and started to Barkley Sound for an Indian crew. I bought the Catholic church, where I had a little shop and my wife kept house, and where we cached our skins. While there I built two sealing boats. The Indians were loathe to go out on account of bad weather, but I managed to sign on forty-two after a time, and with twenty-one canoes we started to work. We had good luck, worked out there for about three months, till we had around four hundred skins, and then I refitted for Bering Sea.

But my Indians had all become scared on account of the stories they had heard of American sealers and they ran away from me to Alberni or hid in the woods. And there I was, the sealing season on, and tied up without a crew. It was heart-breaking. Now just off Flattery there was an American schooner sealers and aboard her was the boss Indian and his men who had been with me on the Mountain Chief a couple of years before. They got word that I wanted a crew, and were anxious to come to me. But the American captain took mighty good care that they shouldn't get into communication with me. One day, however, the Indians went out to seal, and I just happened to meet them. It was very curious. They simply ran away and joined me with their canoes, and it was no time at all before we were off to Bering Sea. The best part of it was that they were willing to work at the old wage of $2 a skin, instead of $3, which was being paid at that time. They did not know that the pay had increased.

What "Drastic" Meant
By the time we were gone five weeks we had eleven hundred skins. But although I had no trouble with my Indian crew, there was a negro cook who hired with me as a hunter, whom I would have had to punish drastically if he hadn't got away, because he meant to murder me. He was a surly fellow, big and black, with a bony sort of way with him, but quick and clever. My cook was very much afraid of him, and the nigger didn't like the food he got. He insisted on extras when I wasn't around, and the cook dared not refuse. One fine morning off Kodiak Island I came out of my cabin and saw four eggs ready to be boiled. The cook explained that they were for the nigger. I put them back. We were short of eggs, and I left orders the nigger was to get the same food as the rest of us or go without. Well, the nigger came in to his breakfast and when he heard what I had done he ran into the cupboard, got the egg can and began throwing the eggs overboard. I heard him and I lost no time. There was only an inch board between my cabin and the galley. So I jumped on the nigger, and before he was through with him he was whiter than I am. From that day on he knew I was master. I think he thought I was easy up to that time. So he laid plans to get away.

It was beautiful weather, plenty of seals, and everything going merry as a wedding bell. One morning the nigger woke me up and said he'd like to start out sealing. "Go ahead," says I, "but get your breakfast first." About half an hour afterward the cook came in, in a great state of excitement, "the nigger's run away," he told me. "He's taken the Swede with him, and your rifle as well as his own, two shot guns and his clothes." Well, I don't suppose I called the cook the best names for not telling me before. But he was as much scared of the nigger as of me.

A Rowboat Pirate
I put six men in a boat and with shot guns. It was not very long before we began to overtake him. When he realized that we meant business, he hoisted the black flag on the end of an oar, and let us have the Winchester rifles as fast as he could load them. When the bullets began to hit the boats, my men wanted to go back. I was for chasing him up. I

I put six men in a boat and with shot guns. It was not very long before we began to overtake him. When he realized that we meant business, he hoisted the black flag on the end of an oar, and let us have the Winchester rifles as fast as he could load them. When the bullets began to hit the boats, my men wanted to go back. I was for chasing him up. I was so mad that I did not think of anything but getting the nigger. However, I gave way to my men and returned to the ship. It was just as well anyway. If I had got the nigger back he would have tried to kill the cook and me, too; and as it was, he did not take his skins with him, fifty of them. So we were that much to the good, although we were short-handed.

We met the Michief in Northeast Harbor and sent back our skins by her, and although the Indians had now found out about the increase in pay, I did not mind giving it to them from then on. We had done so much better than I had hoped for.

A Fine Cargo
But I had changed my ship's name to The Finland, and I had new papers. Besides, I had sent home all my skins. There was no excuse for making a seizure. They sailed away, and when they were safely gone I came out and we started sealing again. I got nearly 2,000 more skins, all my boat could carry. I could have had as many more, but I was short of salt, too, in fact, 250 skins rotted for lack of salt.

When we were in Unalak Pass I met the schooner E. B. Marvin, Captain McKeel. He had plenty of salt, and I tried to bargain with him for some. But he was sore over my big catch and we had a long row about it, until the weather began to look ominous.

"Captain," says I, "the storm will be on us if you don't hurry up and hand over," for the wind was blowing and the sea mounting. Finally I bought a ton of salt, and four bags were put in my own boat and six in a boat from McKeel.

The wind freshened. Pretty soon it was blowing a hundred miles an hour. The waves were so much for my small boat. She was swamped and the men washed overboard. By the time I had picked the men up in the other boat and got back to our schooner it was getting dark, and we could not make her. We drifted past. We thought our last minute had come. The water was washing into the boat and there was nothing for us to do but lie in the bottom. I never was in a small boat in a worse storm than that. Captain Magnusson was a good seaman. He took the sails down and the schooner drifted sideways. All in the dark the Indians got out lines that were kept up with bladders. They drifted down for half a mile, and we were able to lay hold of them. Then we drew alongside the schooner. But she rolled so heavy that the top of the rails went under the water, and the outrigger struck me a terrific blow and broke my jaw. Between us we managed to get the tackle fixed and we got ourselves and the boat aboard.

How to Mend a Jawbone
Then we had to turn back for Sandy Point for medicine and some tin and soup which was all I could eat. But my jaw was so troublesome that the mate and I patched it together with a bit of wire, using a brace and bit to bore through the bone.

At Sandy Point was the Mary Ellen, just returned from Bering Sea with six hundred skins. Alec McLean had put her ashore, taken the skins, ordered the crew off and sold the schooner and outfit to the storekeeper there. Well, I bought the schooner from the storekeeper for four thousand and five hundred, guns and boats and all. I kept the same crew on her to bring her home, with my mate in charge.

But bad weather followed us. We ran into a hurricane. The Mary Ellen, the Minnie and the Penelope had left Sandy Point at the same time, and we were all in the storm together. We sailed on the same tack, and when the wind shifted true from southeast to southwest, all the schooners acted exactly the same, and were thrown on their beam ends. The Mary Ellen lost three boats from the lee side. The Penelope lost three boats, and the Minnie's false keel broke off. It struck so heavy I thought the schooner was sinking. The mast was in the water. I was at the wheel. But that little ship came up so easy that we did not lose a canoe, and there wasn't a drop of water in the cabin.

The Minnie, the Mary Ellen and the Penelope reached Victoria within half an hour of each other after one thousand miles of sailing.

That was one of my lucky trips. I came home with two schooners and nearly three thousand skins. I sold them for $14,500 at Victoria.

So I did not need to live in a shed any more. I bought six lots and built and bought six houses out of that Summer's work, and cleared thirty thousand dollars."

Three Hundred Dollars Due Man Named Pottinger Who Went Overseas From Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Sept. 13.—Three hundred dollars is awaiting an uncovered man by the name of Pottinger. The sum was disclosed by Mr. A. C. Desbriay when, on behalf of the Royal Financial Corporation, he applied to Mr. Justice Morrison for confirmation of a reduction in share capital, which was granted.

He explained that the company's books show it owed some years ago $390 to one, Pottinger, for commissions earned. The obligation has become outlawed by time, but the company is willing to pay if Pottinger can be found. Information indicated he

Be Sure of Children's Health

ARE your children healthy? Are they strong and vigorous? Or, are they frail and delicate—pale, under-developed? These latter signs are indications of malnutrition—a condition that exists in one out of every three children in the schools of our nation. Such children are starving for want of elements necessary for health—elements found in greater proportion in good bread—in Shelly's Bread—than in any other single food. Truly, good bread is a wonderful food, yet few eat enough of it.

But, there are many grades of bread, and to best serve your family's health you should select a bread containing the health giving properties in the right proportions. You will find them in Shelly's—a loaf of unsurpassable quality. Select your bread wisely for "There's a difference in bread." Don't say "bread," say Shelly's

A WINNER

Not only a favourite, but a winner every time!

In the race of life it's "odds on" the man who knows how to keep his youth. Keep that, and you maintain the spirit and energy that will give you the lead in all your enterprises.

You can keep your youth if you can keep your health. And you can keep both if you adopt the salutary Kruschen habit. No severe training—no dieting—just the simple tasteless pinch of Kruschen Salts dropped every morning into the breakfast cup of coffee or tea.

Each tiny dose of Kruschen is a combination of the six salts required to keep the system clean, the blood stream pure. Gently but surely all clogging impurities are removed. The ill effects of an indoor life, overwork, worry, errors of diet and so forth vanish, giving way to an exhilarating sense of bodily fitness and cheery energy.

You owe it to yourself to start the Kruschen habit at once. Kruschen costs from three to sixteen times less per dose than "fizzy" drinks and is much more effective. Begin to take that little daily dimethyl now, and give yourself another chance in life.

Tasteless in Coffee or Tea

Put as much in your breakfast cup as will fill a 10 cent place. It's the little daily dimethyl that does it!

A Flower of Many Names

The pansy has of late years given place in many gardens to taller and more showy flowers. There are fashions among gardeners as well as among ladies.

Yet the pansy has been loved in England for centuries and many of its old names have come down to us. Among these are:

"Cull-me," "Cuddle-me-to you,"

"Kiss-me," "Kiss-me-love," "Kiss-me-over-the-garden-gate," "Kiss-me-John-at-the-garden-gate," "Kiss-me-quick," "Jump-up-and-kiss-me," "Meet-her-in-the-entry-kiss-her-in-the-buttery," "Three-faces-under-a-hood," "Pinkney-John," "Heart's-base," and "Love-in-idleness," the name by which it was known and twice used by Shakespeare.

"Yet marked I where the bolt of Cupid fell."

It fell upon a little western flower,—Before, milk-white; now purple with love's wound—And maidens call it Love-in-idleness."

"But see, while idly I stood looking on, I found the effect of Love-in-idleness."

"The Taming of the Shrew," Act I, Sc. 1.

It is interesting to note that Shakespeare himself invented an additional name for the pansy, "Cupid's flower."

"Diana bud o'er Cupid's flower. Hath such free and blessed power."

A Midsummer Night's Dream," Act IV, Sc. 1.

In every garden there should be room for a bed of pansies. If carefully tended they will yield many blossoms for little folks to gather.

CARDINAL HAS FAITH IN WORLD

BELGIAN GIVES REASONS FOR HIS HOPE

If All Nations Agree to Submit to Same Moral Authority, Peace May Be Maintained

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Cardinal Mercier, Archbishop of Malines, Belgium, whose denunciation of Germany during the invasion of his country at the beginning of the war attracted universal attention, has written a letter to George L. Duval, of this city, in which he gives his hopes for the future of the world from the moral point of view.

"The world at this hour," writes the eminent prelate, "is a great invalid. All eyes are turned to the physicians, all lips anxiously asking: Is there hope of recovery? Have you a remedy—the remedy?" The physicians have no concrete answer, or rather, they give diverse answers all at once. The more the consultations and remedies multiply, the more we realize that we are at a standstill.

"Optimist or pessimist, which shall it be? From a hypothetical consideration of the situation, the pessimist, there is something to justify and explain either tendency, but, in my humble judgment, under the broader view which the decisive optimism must prevail. Be confident in spite of all, were my words to my fellow citizens at one of the darkest hours of our history, how close to disaster and despair conditions may be, let every one keep his head erect and his heart steady, because discouragement has never begotten energy, and energy alone breeds triumph."

"O, ye young men, compatriots, men of the people and representatives of the people, whether of Belgium or of other countries, do ye wish to help your brothers, the allies of yesterday, in the struggle for peace, made for ten years to attain peace? Then be men of energy. Should some vacillate or yield, be ye, the controlling majority, at all events steady. And I know that both nations and individuals have undergone a great change: self-seeking, the thirst for pleasure, the lust for money, have often overcome self-denial and devotion to the common weal, while political partnership and class strife have impeded unity of action and have rendered the commonwealth asunder. In this, however, I recognize the effects of nerve collapse due to the hyperstrain of prolonged war. A few more swines, and the pendulum will return to the vertical. Here in Belgium and in France, there is no doubt that the rising generation gives promise of an abundant reserve of national energy, faith and discipline. Respect for and love of authority are growing, clearing the air, spreading currents of confidence, casting seeds of peace."

The Cure

"If all countries agreed to submit to one and the same moral authority, it would be possible to keep the peace. But should one of them deny this moral authority, seek alliances to build up, up its power, and over others, the peril of war must inevitably ensue."

"The notorious 'internationale' dreamt of by Socialism or Communism, is really a universal and permanent organization for war: the very antithesis of peace."

"Bolshevism, the last end of social dissolution, is radically atheistic. Anti-bolshevism, the restoration of order, can only be built upon God."

Strategy Wins Autograph From Rudyard Kipling

BURWASH, Eng., Sept. 13.—"It is not the only letter which is frequently silent in England; 'W' also is often lost, especially in proper names, as in Burwash, which is pronounced Burash, the last end of social dissolution."

Knowledge of how to pronounce the name of this town recently won an enterprising woman an autograph of Rudyard Kipling, the most celebrated resident of Burwash. Failing to get an audience with Kipling, the woman wrote a parody on one of his poems and mailed it to the poet. In the parody she rhymed words with Burwash which showed she knew how to pronounce the name correctly, and Kipling was so surprised that he mailed her a letter of thanks.

The psychology of the German mind baffles able diplomats and eminent alienists. After a signed admission of her responsibility for the war as recorded in the Treaty of Versailles, she now contemplates repudiating her guilt.

Tom's Tale Of Woe

I GOT on the train with Tom B. one morning last February. He had a bad cold and he said the doctor was coming at noon to see young Harry, who had a croupy cold.

Tom volunteered the information that his furnace had broken down the night before, and he had been up all night with the repair man. "We fixed up the old thing to last another winter or two," said he.

Now, Tom has an automobile, a radio set, a player piano and other luxuries. He spends money freely. He turns in a car after two or three years' service and gets a new one. But, curiously, he has dodged, year after year, the expense of replacing an old, worn-out furnace with a new one.

I asked him about his coal bill. I know his house, and it was easily 40% too much.

I told him that the expenditure of a sum, equal to the cost of upkeep on his car for one year, would insure him against all that sort of foolishness, trouble and expense and give him a Gurney Hot Water Heating System worth while.

I told him about the Gurney Economiser device that saves fuel. About the easy-to-shake grates. About the overhanging walls of the fire-pot designed to catch the heat. I thought I had Tom sold, but now it's early Fall and Tom is still "putting off."

How about it, Tom? How about Mrs. Tom and the children?

How about you, reader? Are you procrastinating, too?

How about a little ACTION?

Mail us the coupon and start something.

Yours for action,

FANS IMPRESSED BY ROY'S STYLE

BAYLEY'S OPPONENT SHOWS REAL AGGRESSIVENESS

Challenge Has Long String of Knockouts to His Credit—Is Dangerous Contender for Title

Alec Roy, who meets Bayley in a 10-round bout next Thursday evening, is gaining new friends daily who are very much impressed by his aggressive boxing-in type of fighting. In his workouts Roy has demonstrated that he is rugged and packs an unusually heavy wallop in either hand. His supporters claim that he will be able to take Bayley's punches without any trouble, and will keep wading into the champion until he succeeds in landing a knockout blow. All of Roy's sparring partners are verging on the heavyweight class and at times he has let them hit him without trying to defend himself and, although several of them are noted for their heavy punching ability, they have not even been able to daze him in the slightest.

A Good Record

Roy, who was born in Scotland, was raised in Victoria and started boxing here as an amateur, where he built up an enviable record for himself in his contests against local boys. In 1916 he went overseas, with the 11th C.M.R. and gained lots of experience by sparring with Tommy Roberts, Hector McDonald, Tommy Moore and the other well-known boxers who belonged to that battalion. On his return to Canada in 1918 he went up to Prince Rupert, and since that time has engaged in several important flat encounters and has won all of his fights, excepting one, with a knockout. He is confident in his mind that he has the ability to beat Bayley and thinks that he will be able to win within six or seven rounds.

No Stalling

It is his intention to force the fight right from the top of the contest as he figures that his advantage of at least ten years in age over the champion should favor him in a slashing, tearing-in kind of fight that should slow up Bayley, who is not as young as he used to be. Roy will continue his training at Pitt's Billiard Parlors, corner Yates and Douglas Street, every evening until Wednesday, when he will lay off and rest for the fight the following night.

LADYSMITH WINS OPENING GAME

DEFEATS NANAIMO DAVENPORTS
BY THREE TO NIL

Upper Island Football League Gets Under Way—One Man Hurt and Two Sent Off

LADYSMITH, Sept. 13.—Before a small crowd today, Ladysmith won from Nanaimo Davenport in the first home game of the Upper Island Football League, the score being 3 to 0. The play was rugged, both teams being decidedly off color, which, with the poor condition of the playing field, was not in favor of good football.

Hindmarsh, of the Davenport, was injured in a collision with Appleby, of Ladysmith, in the first half, and was carried off with a sprained ankle. Burn and Zaccarelli, for the visitors, and Davies and Douglas were the pick of the two teams. Davies scored once in each half, and Rafter added another fifteen minutes before time. Lewis, of the home team, and Perry, of Nanaimo, were sent off for mixing it in centre field.

DAVIS CUP TENNIS

AMERICAN TEAM WINS WITH CLEAN SWEEP

Tilden Drops But Four Games in Three-Set Victory Over Wood—Richardson Beats Patterson

GERMANTOWN CRICKET CLUB, Philadelphia, Sept. 13.—America's supremacy in the lawn tennis world was clearly demonstrated today when the United States team made a clean sweep of the five-game series for the Davis Cup against the Australians.

With three victories already in hand, through two singles triumphs on Thursday and a conquest in doubles yesterday, William T. Tilden II and Vincent Richardson today swept their Australian rivals off the court in the closing singles matches in straight sets.

It was the fifth successive triumph for the United States since 1920, when the American team went to Australia and brought back the international trophy.

Tilden, national champion, unbeaten in the Davis Cup play in five years, defeated Pat O'Hara Wood in the first match today by scores of 6-2, 6-1, 6-1.

Richardson, the youthful New Yorker, playing in Davis Cup singles this year the first time, gained a sensational victory over Gerald Patterson, the Australian captain, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

Ten thousand persons saw the final matches played under ideal weather conditions. The day was as warm as midsummer and the wind, which had annoyed the players for two days, was absent.

Tilden gained his victory with the utmost ease. O'Hara Wood never was able to extend the American champion, whose brilliant array of shots always held him in subjection.

Richardson was faced with the task of defeating the Australian star, who, striving to bring at least one victory to the invaders, fought with all the resource and strength at his command.

FORESTERS WIN SOCCER

NANAIMO, Sept. 13.—In a soccer game played last evening the Foresters defeated the Public School by a six to nil score. Lack of combination and training on the part of the latter was partly the cause of the result, while the Foresters played a scientific game.

ZULU CONVERTS LIKE MONOGAMY

Chief Had Ten to Thirty Wives
In Unregenerate Days, But Two or Three Are Quite Enough Now

WORK OF MISSIONARIES HELPS NATIVE WOMEN

Salvation Army Officer Says
Zulu Is Natural Gentleman, Terrible in Battle, But Never a Traitor or Sneak

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Two to three wives—and in many cases one—will suffice a modern Zulu in Africa who formerly had from fifteen to twenty-five wives, according to Colonel J. Allister Smith, of the Salvation Army, who has spent thirty years in missionary work among the polygamous tribes of the Dark Continent. Colonel Smith is known as the "Livingstone of the Salvation Army." Discussing conditions among the Zulus, when he arrived in New York several days ago, Colonel Smith said:

"Polygamy was one of the most perplexing problems we encountered. We found that practically every Zulu had from ten to twenty-five wives, and sometimes more, depending upon his wealth. It was their natural state of existence and they saw no evil in it. Some of the more zealous missionaries argued that as soon as a Zulu professed conversion he should be obliged to put away all his wives except one, and begin immediately to live a monogamous life. But we of the Salvation Army disagreed. We knew as well as any one else that polygamy is not consistent with Christian principle, but neither could we see any Christianity in saving the soul of one man at the expense of ten or twenty women who had borne him children and who were absolutely dependent upon him for food and shelter. So we acknowledged the converted Zulu as a Christian despite his many wives and despite the criticisms that were sometimes leveled against us for so doing.

A compromise on polygamy. The only stipulation we imposed was that after conversion he should acquire no more wives. Also we ruled that no Zulu with more than one wife should apply for citizenship among the native forces. The policy of compromise produced gratifying results. It brought into the fold many fine, industrious Zulus who had really grasped the Christian doctrine, but who would have recoiled from it if we had attempted to apply the hard and fast rule regarding the native forces. In another circumstance that is aiding in the correction of the problem is the cessation of warfare among the converted tribes. The Zulus who had really grasped the ideal of peace, with the result that in thirty years intertribal warfare has been greatly minimized. It used to be that many of the men were killed off the women formed a large dependent surplus. As warfare has ceased there have been more men and women, with the result that a Zulu who several years ago might have had fifteen wives now has only two or three, while many are fully and happily reconciled to the principle of monogamy.

"If Christianity had done nothing else in Africa it should be credited with the emancipation of the native women. It used to be that the man had only two functions in life—to fight and woo his wives. The women not only bore his children, but worked in his fields and performed all other manual labor in the kraal, or enclosure, in which each family lived. One of the first things we taught the converted was that women should not be regarded as a common laborer; that, as the mother of his children, she should be respected and relieved of the burdensome toll that had been expected of her.

Rees Good Qualities in Zulus. "It was very gratifying to see how readily the average Zulu accepted this idea. They saw the point quickly and were willing to act upon it. Contrary to the general impression, I might almost describe the Zulu as a gentleman. That is, he possesses many gentlemanly qualities. Although in his original state he was warlike and fierce in battle, he was never treacherous, never a 'sneak,' never disposed to take advantage of anyone not his equal. So we found him astonishingly capable of appreciation and understanding some of the finer tenets of Christian ethics."

Colonel Smith said that the Salvation Army, in educating the natives, had followed its own and the fundamental idea of the system being to improve the convert in his own arts and talents rather than try to impose upon him an entirely new civilization.

"The African native is very much a child of nature," he said. "If he is not handled discreetly after his conversion he is likely to lose some of his own inherent good qualities and take on a form of 'savagery' in its stead. Therefore in the schools that we have established throughout the continent we improve the people in their own language, and give them special courses in modern agriculture, supplying them with ploughs and other modern implements with which many of them are still unfamiliar. Our officers go into the fields and teach them how to use these things. Also we encourage them to their religious studying in their own language. Thus we try to make of every convert a good African, not a mediocre Englishman or American. We teach the English language only to exceptionally promising men and women whom we select to be teachers and officers."

JAPANESE SHOW THRIFT

TOKIO, Sept. 13.—Nearly 20,000,000 persons, approximately half the population of Japan, have savings deposits with the Japanese postoffice, which encourages thrift by means of an extensive deposit and transfer system. The total of these deposits at the end of July was 1,132,848,177 yen.

Telephone System Of Japan Gradually Taking Shape Again

TOKIO, Sept. 13.—Slowly the work is progressing of restoring the Japanese telephone service which was paralyzed by the earthquake of last September, but probably it will be some time in 1925 before the damage is fully repaired. The total damage to the system in the city of Tokio alone is estimated at $75,000,000.

For four days after the disaster not a telephone was in operation in Tokio or Yokohama. In January, nearly five months later, there were but 18,000 telephones for a population now estimated at 2,500,000, while in Yokohama, whose population was reduced to 232,000, only 500 telephones had been restored.

Of the sixteen central offices at Tokio which were destroyed by fire, six are being rebuilt on their former sites and will be completed this Fall. The other ten exchanges must await the land readjustment and will not be ready until 1925. To accommodate business firms in Yokohama, the Government Department of Communications has granted the first permit ever issued in Japan for a privately owned telephone exchange. A group of 120 business firms opened a private exchange in February with eighteen telephone operators and six inspectors. The license was granted for three years.

OCEAN RECORDS BROKEN AGAIN

MAURETANIA SETS TWO MARKS FOR ATLANTIC CROSSING

Racing of Crack Liners, Banned Since War, Begins Once More on Crowded Sea Lanes

Once more the Atlantic lanes have become the course of speeding liners. A year or two before the World War the steamship companies, out of deference to their passengers, put a ban on any attempt to create new records. Somehow transatlantic travelers had been led to believe that so-called racing between ocean greyhounds was not conducive to safety, and, moreover, the steamship lines had become more interested in size than in speed. But now the desire for speed, so manifest on land, has again extended to the sea, with the result that the Cunard liner Mauretania has hung up two records for the run between Cherbourg and New York within the space of three weeks.

On August 14 the Mauretania arrived in New York from Cherbourg—a distance of 3,093 miles—in five days and three hours and twenty minutes. On August 26 she arrived at Cherbourg, having covered the course in five days, one hour and forty-nine minutes, with an average speed of 24.25 knots. The previous record was held by the White Star liner Majestic—five days, five hours and twenty-one minutes.

Hundred Years of Steam. Another record held by the Mauretania covers the shorter course between New York and Queenstown. The liner made the distance in four days ten hours and forty-one minutes in 1910. She was then a coal burner, now she burns oil.

It is a little more than a hundred years since the first vessel propelled by steam crossed the ocean. She was a side-wheeler of 250 tons, the Savannah. She cleared from Savannah, Ga., on May 24, 1818, and docked at Liverpool twenty-six days later. The Savannah carried sails. In fact, sails were not wholly dispensed with on steamers until about thirty years ago.

The first Cunard liner made the trip from England to New York in 1840, requiring fourteen days eight hours. She was named the Britannia, and ruled the waves undisputedly for years, when the Great Western crept into first place with a record of ten days ten hours and fifteen minutes.

Other records follow:

Year	Steamer	Days	Hrs.	Min.
1841	Pacific	9	19	25
1846	Peria	9	1	45
1846	Scotia	8	2	48
1849	City of Brussels	7	22	3
1872	Baltic	7	20	9
1875	City of Berlin	7	15	48
1882	Alaska	6	18	37
1888	Britannia	6	1	55
1891	Majestic	5	19	8
1894	Lucania	5	7	23

These figures refer to the course between New York and Queenstown. It should be added that the Majestic captured the record of the existing vessel bearing that name.

In 1905 the ill-fated Lusitania made the run between Queenstown and New York in four days fifteen hours. This vessel was a sister ship of the Mauretania. Both vessels were built for speed, but the Mauretania usually managed to beat her sister.

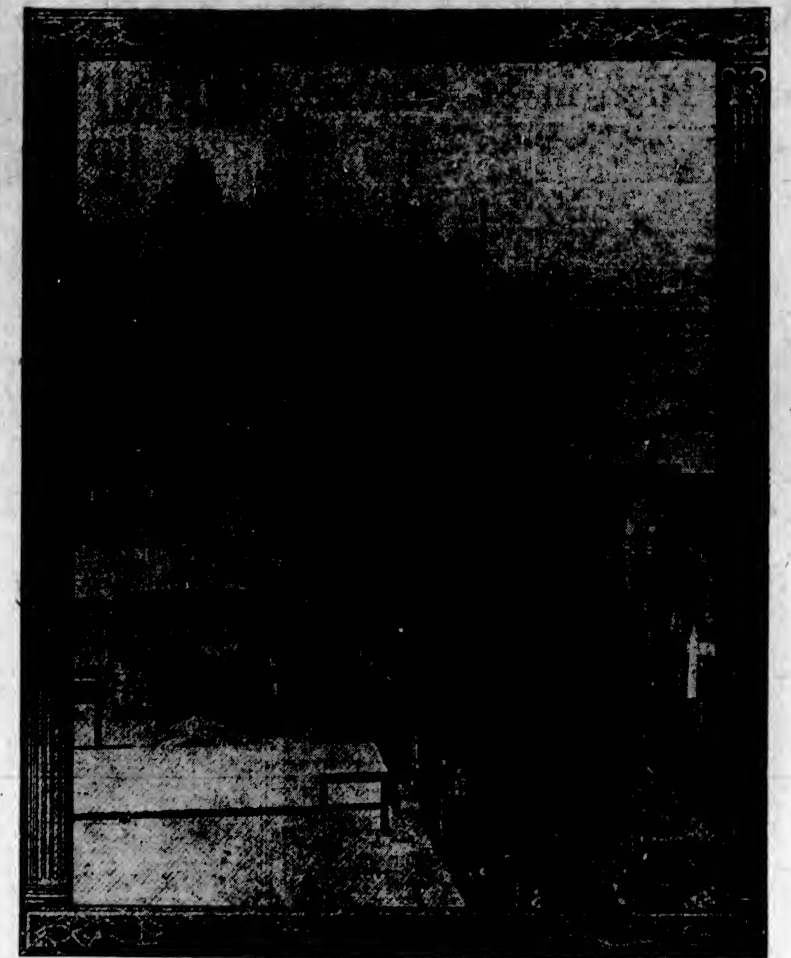

Mauretania Beats Leviathan. There were days when clipper ships could make better time than the steamers. Twelve days is the record of the fastest clipper ship on the trip from New York to Ireland. This was made by the Dreadnought in June of 1859.

Leviathan, pride of the American merchant marine, held the west-bound record from Cherbourg before the Mauretania captured it. The Leviathan's time was five days seven hours and twenty minutes. The great American vessel may possess reserve speed that will enable her to regain her laurels when conditions are right. A seaman who knows the Leviathan well says she has temperament and a stubborn disposition, but he has faith in her engine and expects the liner to show greater speed.

SCOTCH BEETS FOR SUGAR. GLASGOW, Sept. 13.—The first of a chain of factories to attract sugar from Scotch-grown sugar beets has been opened a few miles north of Nottingham. The chain will extend from Kent through Nottinghamshire and into Perthshire, the district in which sugar beet growing has been widely developed since the war. Other factories will be erected as soon as the beet production can be guaranteed.

Plato received his name because of the breadth of his shoulders.

The Ginza, Tokio's Principal Shopping Street, as It Looks Today, One Year After the Earthquake Which Destroyed Japan's Capital

King's Public House, At Sign of Feathers Is Model Hostelry

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Among the little known of the multifarious activities of King George is that he is the landlord of a fully licensed "public house" that as a saloon keeper, his Majesty is a model for his fellow-publanders throughout the kingdom.

His establishment, the Feathers Hotel, in Deringham, Norfolk, is not exactly a hotel, but neither is it one of the swinging-door drink emporiums such as many Americans remember. The house is a small, comfortable, and the local managers receive no profit on alcoholic sales. They are encouraged to sell food and non-alcoholic drinks, and their provision for luncheon and tea in bright rooms distinct from the bar is a feature that is gradually removing the grievances of the motorists in England that only the beer and cheese of the countryside is available during tours.

Blue-Eyed Hero Is Myth Says Scurrilous Report

Caesar and Napoleon Had Blue Eyes, But What of That When Poor Law Officers Assert That Nine Out of Ten Wife Deserters and Criminals Have Them Too?—And to Bolster Up the Wretched Libel, They Seek to Place Don Juan in That Category

A SHARP blow has just been delivered at the blue-eyed hero myth. Blue eyes, it appears, and not the dark, magnetic ones, accompanied by the sinister smile and faultless teeth of the old melodrama, are characteristics of the world's greatest villains, as well as of sailors, engineers and explorers.

According to a Mr. Lumsden, for seventeen years "relieving officer" in Leeds, one of the great English manufacturing cities, 99 per cent of the wife deserters are blue-eyed. "The call of adventure," he says, "sounds so loudly to them that it induces them to break up their home-ties. And now all kinds of people are coming out with facts and figures to show that blue eyes are the stamp of the adventurer. Still more disconcerting is the announcement by a famous criminologist that the majority of convicted criminals have blue eyes. Probably still the spirit of adventure calling! And it is significant that the observation was not confined to English criminals, the English being predominantly a blue-eyed race, for such Latin and Slav delinquents as Landru and Rasputin had blue eyes.

Blue-Eyed Caesar.

Napoleon, perhaps the greatest adventurer the world has ever seen, had blue eyes, though he came from the South, and so had the greatest of the Caesars. And so the blue-eyed heritage, though it apparently has its dangers, is not all bad. Indeed, blue eyes have usually predominated among those rulers who could be described by lady novelists as "masters of men," while racialists, though the blue-eyed nations are in a minority, yet they have control of the earth. It was the Nordic races—the blue-eyed Norwegians, Danes, Saxons and Hollanders—who explored new seas and countries, though the dark-eyed Spaniards and Portuguese were famous sailors and adventurers.

How Different It Was When the Animals Went in Two by Two

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—The arrival here recently of 400 animals for the Berlin Zoo, seriously seelack from the long voyage from Abyssinia, has spurred German scientists to try to find a remedy from preventing valuable animals from suffering from the same illness which keeps so many travelers off the ocean.

Dr. Heck, head of the Berlin Zoo, and his assistants are working day and night to get the animals back on their land legs. Monkeys, leopards, porcupines and even tropical birds suffered severely as the result of a bad storm which the vessel encountered in the Mediterranean.

The vessel put in at Marseilles and the animals were brought to Berlin by train to save them further discomfort. Most of these rare animals to the zoo came all the way from Addis Ababa, and, consequently, were travel worn before they entered the ship.

Tatjana, the bear cub which arrived from Moscow by airplane recently, did not suffer from air sickness, and presented a striking contrast with the bedraggled animal visitors just in from Africa. The bear cub had a Russian passport, properly filled in by Soviet officials, which gave her permission to remain away from home as long as she behaved herself and kept free from counter-revolutionary movements.

Japan Adopts Metric System of Measures

The metric system of measurement was adopted in Japan on July 1 under a law passed in 1911. For some time the Government has been conducting an educational campaign in order to popularize the system, and has given demonstrations in various cities. The universal use of metric units is not expected immediately, since it is realized that it will require considerable time to overcome the numerous difficulties.

Most of the Japanese people understand only the native units, and are inclined to observe old customs and habits. Furthermore, there are formidable physical and financial difficulties to overcome. The replacement of the present scales used by the Imperial Government Railways, for example, will mean the purchase of several thousand new scales at an expenditure of possibly 1,000,000 yen.

Shipping Wharves of Yokohama, After the Earthquake of Last Year.

Japanese Goddess of Mercy, is full of the spirit and body. Even Gods Submitted. But the graphic symbols of the tragic September day are still to be seen everywhere. The records of those brief moments are recorded on the streets, parks, and temples. In visiting Honjo, the east side of Tokio, the representative of the Home Department pointed out an open space where 35,000 persons of all ages were burned by the flames while seeking safety. It was a tortuous death they met in their flight. The poured rain of the disaster, the Japanese people are still in the middle of the place and the few silent faces around us, revived the great tragedy.

Lessons From Disaster. "Prosperous colonies," he said, "have all been divided up long ago. Korea does not bring us in much and we spend a good deal there. Our laborers are not as efficient as Americans. In fact, I know that the Japanese workers are 40 per cent less efficient than the Americans. The only thing left for us to do are to practice rigid economy in everything, exterminate graft and work hard."

The earthquake has perhaps been useful. We are all learning from it. The rich are learning from the earthquake because we have an old saying in Japan that earthquakes shake the money out of rich men's pockets. Especially will we be more than ever on the lookout against the corruption which had extended far and wide. But the earthquake has helped to make us more diligent and the nation is gradually realizing that only a revival of the spirit of saving and thrift will enable us to face the hardships which we still have to face."

JAPAN COUNTS 932 TITLES

TOKIO, Sept. 13.—The number of titled persons in Japan is now 932, according to figures just published by the Imperial Household Department. The lowest rank of the peerage, that of baron, leads with 411; then comes viscount with 327; counts, 191; marquises, 18; princes, 19. This list does not include princes of the imperial blood.

Yokohama and Tokio Rise New Cities From Ashes of Yesteryear

People of Japan's Capital, Now Living in Thousands of Iron Barracks, Plan Modern Buildings for Future—Public Parks and Markets to Be Provided—Yokohama Still in Ruins

RECONSTRUCTION BUREAU LAYS OUT SPLENDID STREETS

BY SABEL ZIMAND, in New York Times

A YEAR ago, on that awful midday of the first of September, 1923, two flourishing cities of Japan were reduced to ashes in a few hours. What took generations to build perished in less than a day. Yokohama, the greatest port of Japan; and Tokio, the intellectual, artistic and commercial center of the country, collapsed. The toll of life was heavy. More than a hundred thousand lives were lost and properties valued at several thousand million dollars were destroyed. In Tokio alone 400,000 houses crumbled to the ground or were burned by the vast fires following the quake, and about 2,000,000 people were left without shelter.

No time was lost in repairing the disaster. Machinery was immediately put to work not only to rebuild the destroyed cities but also to erect on their ashes more modern communities. At that time the Home Minister was Viscount Goto. He is a man of volcanic energy and one of the most liberal statesmen of the new plans and in six weeks was ready with a new building programme. His plans demanded a budget of $300,000,000, to be expended in five years. Other political leaders felt that Japan could not raise so much and the extraordinary session of the Diet held in December, 1923, reduced the budget to $133,000,000 and, in case the municipal governments were prepared to undertake a certain proportion of the street building, a further sum of $33,000,000 was provided. Since then the municipalities have indicated their willingness to handle the construction of certain streets.

Few permanent structures, however, have as yet been erected in Tokio. The construction of permanent buildings began only a few weeks ago. Yokohama is still in ruins. But the harbor is full of incoming and outgoing ships, and an excursion through the streets of both cities will show the visitor the rapid progress made in one year.

From the roof of the highest building of Tokio, where the Reconstruction Bureau has its headquarters, one sees solid masses of the tin roofs of barracks. Up to the middle of April of this year Tokio has erected 161,699 such buildings. The famous Broadway of Japan, called Ginza, is flourishing. The business and pleasure go on as in the days of old. The Asakusa Park, which is Japan's Coney Island, with the temple of the organization answers more questions daily than the busy information office of the New York Public Library. He is always very courteous and never fails to be of help. He explains to those who want to know about the future size of the streets, and the price the Government proposes to pay for condemned land, and what the fireproof zone of Tokio will be located, and gives information about licenses for permanent buildings and many other questions which deal with the complex apparatus of rebuilding the destroyed twin cities.

The adopted plan for reconstruction provides for the planning and construction of streets, additional public parks and markets. It also provides for the segregation of residential districts from commercial and industrial districts. Separate sections of the city are marked out for the industries, industries of a poisonous nature and commercial centers. All this is being done with a view to minimizing the possibility of future conflagrations.

Mr. Kanai explained how the rambling roads and narrow crooked lanes of Tokio will give place to broad, straight thoroughfares, varying from thirty-three to forty-four meters wide in the main section of the city. Six such new streets will supplement the present main thoroughfares. Besides this, one hundred and twenty-two other new streets, with a minimum width of eleven metres, are to be a part of the new city of Tokio. Heavy traffic will then be prohibited on the Ginza, and for that purpose will be reserved the new thoroughfare running parallel to the old Ginza. It is also planned to connect Tokio and Yokohama by way of a large canal, to be completed in 1930. The length of this canal is to be 17,000 meters, with a width of 200 meters.

The fireproof buildings are to be subsidized by the Government. It is the intention to reimburse the builder half the additional cost of erecting such a building. Factories will be absolutely prohibited in residential districts, and poisonous and dangerous industries will be segregated in certain other districts.

Many Parks Planned. The Government plans for condemned land at the rate of 90 per cent of its appraised value. Great attention is being given to providing more public parks and markets. Fifty-two small public parks and three large ones will be added to those in existence, and a chain of public markets will be constructed and maintained under municipal supervision.

The building of streets in the twin cities is supposed to be completed within five years. The preliminary work has been completed, and the work has been started. But it will take at least a decade before the two cities are completely reconstructed.

One circumstance which helps a speedy recovery is that Osaka, the great industrial center of Japan, was not touched by the disaster. The preliminary work has been completed, and the work has been started. But it will take at least a decade before the two cities are completely reconstructed. An enormous amount of reconstruction material has to be imported. From September 1 to the end of March of this year, the reconstruction material imported was valued at $220,845,000. This caused a drain on the gold reserves of the country, and explains in part the depreciation of the Japanese currency. Even today, in spite of the gradual improvement of the money market, the country is a long way from having emerged from its serious financial straits.

Sangi Muto, a captain of Japanese infantry, says that the only way to offset the great loss of the disaster and to put business on a secure footing lies in rigid economy and in free trade.

Lessons From Disaster. "Prosperous colonies," he said, "have all been divided up long ago. Korea does not bring us in much and we spend a good deal there. Our laborers are not as efficient as Americans. In fact, I know that the Japanese workers are 40 per cent less efficient than the Americans. The only thing left for us to do are to practice rigid economy in everything, exterminate graft and work hard."

The earthquake has perhaps been useful. We are all learning from it. The rich are learning from the earthquake because we have an old saying in Japan that earthquakes shake the money out of rich men's pockets. Especially will we be more than ever on the lookout against the corruption which had extended far and wide. But the earthquake has helped to make us more diligent and the nation is gradually realizing that only a revival of the spirit of saving and thrift will enable us to face the hardships which we still have to face."

Brakes Should Be Carefully Adjusted Every Few Months

An Automobile Out of Control, Owing to Useless Brakes, Is a Vicious Thing to Turn Loose on the Street—Installing Lining Just Right Is Quite an Important Job—Should Be Done by Mechanic.

THERE IS NO EXCUSE FOR HAVING BRAKES THAT DRAG

MANUFACTURERS of automobiles make very few, if any, bad brakes. But a lot of drivers often make bad brakes of good ones through misuse of this part of a motor car. And where there are no adequate braking facilities a number of persons are likely to perish.

If every community in the country had such a policy as has New York City through its Bureau of Safety, and would back it up strongly with public sentiment, the accidents due to improper brakes would be greatly reduced. It is the duty of this bureau's employees to inspect automobile brakes and see if they are capable of doing the work for which they are intended. It was found that about one car out of seven had at least one defective brake.

If these cars stopped at random on the streets of New York City are typical of the 13,000,000 automobiles that are cruising around in the United States it means that about 1,870,000 machines have brakes which need some attention in the interest of safety. It is to be hoped such a situation does not exist.

Driver Responsible

A motor car out of control is a vicious thing. The most important factors in governing control are the brakes. No owner has a moral right to take an automobile out on a public highway without being reasonably certain the brakes of his car are functioning properly. A few simple matters will assure the desired results.

In the first place, test the brakes when taking the car out. Do this by throwing out the clutch and applying the brakes. If they do not appear to be working effectively fix them, or fix them fixed before going much farther. The small trouble or expense of repairing your brakes will be less than a broken fender on your car, or smashed parts of someone else's car, that you may crash into because the brakes will not hold. It may mean fewer injuries in accidents.

Be sure there is a good type brake lining, also that it is properly installed. Some linings are too soft or too thick. They easily become matted and need constant adjustment. The best linings are woven, with plenty of asbestos and copper wire.

A good auto mechanic is usually required to install brake linings just right. It is necessary that the linings be properly stretched to avoid wrinkling. The rivets also must be properly sunk, so that the metal of the rivets will not score the brake drum and cause the brakes not to hold properly.

Squeaking Brakes

As to squeaking brakes, it can be said that they are a nuisance which can be avoided by proper adjustment. This annoyance can often be stopped by removing the wheels and roughening the brake lining with a file. It is also a good idea to wipe

1925 Buick Holds Slow-Speed Record Locked in High

Henry Schmell still holds the walking record between Milwaukee and Chicago; George Stokes, 69 years old, veteran pedestrian, is running up, and a 1925 Buick standard six is winner of a slow-speed high-gear run between the two cities, approximately 100 miles apart.

Stokes attempted to break the record and started August 9 at 2 o'clock. Twenty-four hours later he had covered eighty miles, illness forced him to give up and he proceeded to Chicago in an automobile.

With Stokes went the Buick, locked in high-gear. It averaged four miles an hour for the entire run. Job had nothing on the driver. Imagine driving a 1925 Buick at four miles an hour over perfectly paved highway. Also imagine walking eighty miles in twenty-four hours.

off the brake mechanism and oil it about once every 500 miles of driving.

On account of accident due to faulty adjustment or application of brakes, it should be a fixed habit in the life of every car owner to make a systematic brake inspection regularly. The loss of a copper pin, for example, may lead to serious accident. When a lock washer is used it is desirable to use a new one instead of putting the old one back.

There is no excuse for having brakes that drag, for dragging heats them up, wears them out unnecessarily and it absorbs a lot of the power of the engine. Brakes should not be too loose, for they will not act quickly enough to avoid danger. On the propeller shaft brake there is a nut on the brake band which can be adjusted to make the brakes just the proper tightness. The rod connecting the pedal to the brake can be turned either to the right or to the left to make it the right length for efficient use of the brake.

The United States government has collected $249,000,000 since 1917 in taxes for motor vehicles, and has paid out $264,000,000, or 45 per cent, of this, for federal and state highway funds.

NEW STUDEBAKERS ANNOUNCED TODAY

Jameson Motors, Limited, Have on Display the 1925 Models—Radical Changes Have Been Made

A sensational development in motor car design is announced today by Studebaker. The car, which is entirely unlike anything ever offered before, is a solution to the open-closed car problem which motorists have known since the "horseless carriage" first came into being.

The name of this revolutionary car, which goes on display today in the showrooms of Jameson Motors, Limited, local Studebaker distributors, is the Duplex Phaeton, and there is also Duplex Roadster, combining the outstanding advantages of present-type open cars with the snug comfort and all-weather protection of the closed car.

Today Studebaker announces fifteen completely new bodies with new radiators, fenders, lamps, seating comfort, finish, new colors in lacquer finish three highly improved engines, real balloon tires and Studebaker automatic hydraulic four-wheel brakes, which are optional.

Fifteen bodies are offered on three different chassis. The Studebaker Standard Six with 111-inch wheelbase; five-passenger, fifty h.p. engine, with six different bodies, including Duplex Phaeton, Coupe Roadster, Coupe Sedan and Berlina; the Studebaker Special Six, with 120-inch wheelbase, five passenger, sixty-five h.p. engine, with five different bodies, including Duplex Phaeton, Duplex Roadster, Victoria, Sedan and Berlina; the Studebaker Big Six, 127-inch wheel base, seven-passenger, with a seventy-five h.p. engine, four different bodies, including Duplex Phaeton, Coupe, Sedan and Berlina.

The bodies are absolutely new in design. The upper structure is shaped in pressed steel and covered with the finest waterproof fabric. The steel construction permits the use of another radical creation, the new roller enclosing curtains. The new Studebaker Duplex is an open car, a touch of the hand to the overlapping roller curtains and it is a snug weather-tight closed car within a few seconds.

Studebaker offers both two and four-wheel brakes. The four-wheel brakes have three exclusive Studebaker features. The braking pressure is furnished by hydraulic power automatically developed. A light touch to the braking pedal controls its great force like a touch to the throttle controls the power of the engine. The front wheels cannot lock. There are only two adjustments required, one at each rear wheel. The front brakes are permanently adjusted at the factory.

The three engines have been greatly improved, which result in more power, more quietness and smoothness and still better performance in every way.

Full size balloon tires on all models is standard equipment. Every part that functions with the tires has been specially designed for balloon tire equipment, steering gear, steering knuckles, axles and springs, and even the fenders.

This is the first far-reaching announcement to be made by this famous manufacturer of fine cars since 1915.

Studebaker, ever noteworthy for its innovations in motor car building, offered several revolutionary changes in automobiles in 1915. Then, in 1918, after a series of gradual refinements in its models, Studebaker gave to the world another entirely new model.

Now, in 1924, comes the third great cycle in Studebaker progress, which has maintained an important influence on the automobile industry as a whole, and on the benefits in which the public has shared.

While whispers in motor car circles for several months have connected the Studebaker Corporation with some unusual activity in the way of new types of cars, the statement given late yesterday afternoon was the first by the local distributor, and came as a big surprise.

This amazing new car is already in the process of quantity production at the huge plants at South Bend and Detroit.

NEW CHANDLER MODEL HAS BEAUTIFUL LINES

Since Advent of Traffic Transmission and Pike's Peak Motor, Sales Have Rapidly Climbed.

A brisk increase in sales and general interest is reported for both the popular Chandler and Cleveland lines in Victoria, as in other cities on the coast, where both cars have enjoyed a tremendous gain in popularity during the past season, according to Eve Brothers, local distributors.

Particularly since the advent of the famous traffic transmission in the Chandler, which with the already popular Pike's Peak motor, embody the latest in automobile engineering refinements, has the new Chandler received wide approval, for general performance and riding and driving comfort. It is also certain, Eve Brothers stated that the marvelous improvement incorporated in the design and construction of the new Chandler motor in the Cleveland Six, have done much to cement public appreciation of this new model.

Much credit for Cleveland Six popularity this season must be given the new "One Shot" lubrication system, through which this car is more distinctively identified, it being the only car to carry this extraordinary feature, Eve Brothers claim. This ingenious system, by which all twenty-three vital friction points in the chassis are lubricated by a simple thrust of one push rod on the foot board, has succeeded in attracting wide interest.

"OUT-DRIVING" LIGHTS OFTEN CAUSE TROUBLE

Now and then a motorist will find that he is doing something extremely dangerous. Sometimes he doesn't discover the truth until he has had a collision, which was the case of a certain motorist who recently learned that he was "out-driving" his headlights.

The point of this practice is that the driver constantly drives under the assumption that the safety revealed by the range of his headlights extends into that portion of his path which is not illuminated by the lights. If he can see with his headlights 200 feet ahead he drives as though he could see 800 simply because he reasons that if all's well up to 200 feet the chances are all's well up to 800 feet.

Usually the danger lies in the portion of the path which is outside the actual range of vision. The driver sees the danger the moment it appears within the range of vision, but as he has been traveling at a speed necessitating a 100-foot range he is powerless to avoid the danger.

"Out-driving" the headlights is one of the commonest hazards in motoring; yet few drivers realize that they are guilty of the practice. For instance, when they are blinded by the headlights of another car, instead of stopping or slowing down they proceed under the assumption that since nothing was in the way when vision was impaired nothing could be in the way. But a difference of a few seconds often proves the fallacy of this dangerous reasoning.

In New York city are 3,000 passenger car accidents, 3,600 motor truck accidents, and 2,000 taxi accidents in one year.

In its admiration of the good Maxwell's ability to outperform anything at anywhere near the price, the public should remember—

- 1st.—That no other car on the market, regardless of price, excels Maxwell strength and staunchness in proportion to weight and power.
- 2nd.—That at all vital points, metals and construction are the same as in cars that cost three to four times as much.
- 3rd.—That in its manufacture, no measures are too costly to protect the owner fully, in person and in pocket.

Those are the precise reasons why the good Maxwell—now under the supervision of Chrysler engineers—stands up and delivers its splendid service at such amazingly low cost.

Running Out of Gas Is Frequent Mishap

An Empty Gasoline Tank and a Shortage of Lubricating Oil Are Amongst the Common Troubles Which Befall the Forgetful Motorist—Before Starting Check Over and See That There Is Plenty of Gasoline, Oil and Water for the Trip.

A SURPRISING number of motor car troubles on the road are due to the most trifling causes. Curiously, foremost among them is lack of gasoline. The motor dies several miles from nowhere, you walk around to the tank in the rear, and you see to your disgust that the gauge registers empty. The experience is particularly annoying because it is such an obvious trouble and so easily avoided. Perhaps the safest rule is to know how far your car will go on a gallon, keeping track of both the gasoline gauge and the speedometer. When your tank registers less than one-quarter full, have it filled without delay. This is important, for if the gauge is inaccurate or there is a defect in the bottom of the tank, or if the car is not perfectly level, the amount of fuel in the tank may be considerably less than five gallons. To be on the safe side, the gasoline gauge should be inspected at least once a day and, often, on a long run.

Lack of oil in the engine is even more serious, and a safe rule is never to allow the oil level gauge to register less than half full, and even then it is a good plan to carry a gallon of oil in the car at all times. Here again it must be noted that when the gauge shows half full the oil reservoir may be only one-quarter full due to a defect in the gauge, to the parking of the car on a slope, or to the shape of the oil reservoir.

Look Out for Oil

If, however, the oil supply is allowed to get too low, remember that usually the oil pressure gauge on the instrument board will indicate less than normal pressure before any real harm occurs to the engine. Therefore when reduced pressure is noted, first look at the oil level gauge. If the level is low, fill the reservoir at the first opportunity, meanwhile driving the car slowly if the pressure is very low, but do not run the engine after a marked loss of power is observed.

Whether the oil reservoir is full or empty, never run the engine after the pressure gauge on the instrument board falls to register pressure. In some cases this trouble may be cured on the road by removing the external oil piping and blowing it clear, or by removing and cleaning the strainer. Otherwise the car should be towed unless it is possible to obtain several gallons of oil, in which case it is permissible to proceed at a moderate rate after pouring oil slowly into the running engine until it begins to smoke. Every ten miles or so add oil until the engine begins to smoke again. Failure to observe these directions may result in burned-out bearings, scored cylinders, and pistons, and many other serious troubles. Engine missing a stroke or explosion, is becoming rarer, year by year, but it still is one of the most common troubles. In most cases it is due to carbon deposit on the spark plug porcelain. After removing the offending plug, all carbon should be removed from the porcelain, the points should be adjusted to 1-32 inch and the plug put back unless the porcelain is cracked, in which case the plug should be discarded.

In examining fuses in generators or lighting circuits it is well to bear in mind that the wire within the fuse may burn at the end, where the defect cannot be seen. Thus a fuse may appear to be O.K., and yet be burned out. To guard against this possibility, when examining a fuse, twist the two ends slightly. If the wire within twists, the fuse is O.K.; but if the wire rotates without twisting, the fuse is burned out. (Copyright, 1924, by International Features Service, Inc.)

NEW MODELS BAD FOR DEALERS

The question of yearly models is one that has come up for more discussion this year than ever before. The late Spring in many parts of the country retarded sales, and many dealers have found themselves with a stock of 1924 models with the new 1925 models already announced.

"What constitutes a new model?" An article in a recent issue of Motor asks this question and asks, "Do hypodermic improvements help sell cars?" "Such a slight change as that of a hub cap," goes on the article, "which adds nothing to the value of the car, means that the dealer must double his stock in order to take care of his trade." The manufacturers are urged to take into account the position of the dealer as their various models are redesigned.

Because of good roads, tourist travel from the United States to Canada has tripled in the last three years. In 1921, the number of United States cars entering Canada was 617,637; in 1922, 966,329, and in 1923 the number reached 1,942,387.

USED CAR BECOMES A CRUCIAL FACTOR

Most New Car Sales Today Involve a Trade in Old Car—Old Cars Should Be Scrapped

More and more used cars are becoming a crucial factor that must be reckoned with by men engaged in the marketing of new automobiles. Manufacturers are also affected in that used cars are automobiles, and that, while they are in a class by themselves, as such they enter into direct competition with the new product. In view of existing conditions it looks as though factory production really will have to be regulated by used car market conditions, for distributors of new cars are dependent on the disposal of their exchanges to enable them to accept customer cars in part payment for the new models.

Fully 90 per cent of new car sales at large are made on this sort of an exchange or part payment basis. As a matter of fact, the business capital of many dealers at present is practically represented by unliquidated used cars carried in stock.

Trading a Necessity
For obvious reasons acceptance of old cars in part payment for new ones is an absolute necessity in the retailing of automobiles. Estimates of the proportion of used car sales made on an exchange basis run all the way from 80 to 95 per cent.

Some competent investigators even go so far as to state that every new car sale really requires the sale of thirteen used cars through many exchanges embracing the sale of more than one to the latter.

Many remedies have been suggested for the removal of the menace that the used car situation offers to the progress of the automobile building and selling business.

Scraping the really old cars as junk, retaining only unworkable parts for use in replacement, is one of the ideas advanced in fact it has been suggested that this scraping be made compulsory by law, it being argued that this would be a legitimate enactment for the good of a vast and highly important trade. As it is this junk is in most cases rebuilt or built up, and again put on the market in competition with new but really serviceable used cars.

A Used Car Bureau
It is hard to see, though, how the business policies of individual dealers can be controlled or a rule framed that will fit all of them. The business millennium not being yet at hand, it is probably almost too much to expect just yet that the solution of the problem can be had by an agreement among dealers that will be effective. It would seem, however, that some general co-operation will have to come some day. For the present, however, motor car manufacturers are sadly in need of help other than their factories or from some sort of a bureau in the way of suggestions as to fundamental policies, and as far as possible actual selling methods to be followed.

It is much to be regretted that no reliable statistics of used car sales are available, such as are regularly systematically compiled in the new car field. It would seem entirely practicable for local motor car trade associations to get this information each month confidentially from their members. Were these reports of dealers combined to the number of sales of each make without any statements of prices realized, it would not appear to be a difficult task to induce them to furnish this information, which in the form of totals would be of great value to new car dealers and their exchange department in making their business calculations through a study of the volume and trend of used car sales.

Although there are excellent accommodations for the recharging and servicing of batteries in the Manchester district, the use of magneto equipment is preferred. Consul Rosa E. Holiday reports: A large majority of the American cars in use here are fitted with batteries for starting, lighting and ignition, but American automobiles constitute only about 10 per cent of the total number of cars, while British and Continental makes employ magnetos for ignition, although batteries are provided for starting and lighting. Local agents for British cars see certain advantages in the use of batteries, but have not encouraged their adoption.

A new law has recently been enacted in France prohibiting the use of dazzling headlights on motor vehicles. The Bankers Trust Company of New York is advised in this connection by its French information service that according to the provisions of this new law every motor vehicle traveling at more than twelve miles an hour must have headlights throwing a beam at least 100 yards, but capable also of being instantly dimmed by the use of a dimming or dipping device. If the latter is used the light must be cut off at a height of four feet seven inches from the ground and the beam should have a length of twenty-five yards. Drivers must reduce speed when dimming.

MOUNT WILSON CLIMB RECORD AGAIN BROKEN

Ralph De Palma, Driving Chrysler "6," Makes Fast Time Up Steep Grade—Stock Car Used

Mount Wilson—a California peak not far from Los Angeles and known to Pacific Coast motorists as a hard and dangerous pull for any motor car—recently surrendered before a strictly stock Chrysler Six touring car piloted by Ralph De Palma, world famous racing driver, in the record time of 25 min. 41 sec. The ascent was made over Mt. Wilson toll road, a narrow, winding trail with a rise of more than 4,600 feet in the nine and a half miles of roadway from toll gate to toll gate. The run was particularly remarkable in view of the fact that the car was not stripped, but carried all fenders and was minus only the top half of the windshield. Even the muffler was not removed, and no cut out was used.

De Palma's only complaint at the finish of the run was over the fact that he had more power at his disposal than the rough condition of the road permitted him to use. With the exception of three short stretches where he dropped into low, second gear was used all the way up the mountain. At one point a speed of forty-four miles an hour was attained. The toll road management restricts cars to a seven mile per hour pace in regular travel. The Chrysler's record run was checked by four Los Angeles newspapermen, and was timed and handled in exactly the same fashion as have the previous record runs in the past. De Palma was started from the toll-house at the foot by one of the newspapermen, while the other three at the hotel at the summit listened to the starting word over the telephone as the signal to click three synchronized stop watches.

The time as shown by the three watches varied less than a second and the average of the three was taken as the time. De Palma made a before-sunrise climb, to avoid the blinding glare of the early sun. The Mt. Wilson road, due to the dry winter, is in by no means as good condition as when former runs were made, in the opinion of Manager Cory of the Mt. Wilson hotel. Notwithstanding this handicap, De Palma reached the top without other mishap than a slight dent on one rear fender where he scraped the mountain side on one run. The heat indicator on the Chrysler dash showed less than two hundred degrees at the finish, and water in the radiator had not boiled, and the radiator was as full as when the car started.

De Palma's mark not only set a new record for the mountain but likewise demolished the former non-stock record, held by a stripped car, specially prepared for the climb. The non-stock mark was 26 minutes and 54 seconds—more than a minute slower than the Chrysler's new record.

AUTO INDUSTRY IS ON FIRM FOOTING AGAIN

Makers Expect Demand To Justify Steady Output During Autumn Months—Finds Improved

DETROIT, Sept. 13.—With the majority of the new models announced and accounted for, Detroit motor plant makers are on a steady course, certain footing than they were earlier this summer. Although few production records will be smashed this fall, automobile makers here are looking forward to a steady conservative output that will measurably exceed the summer performance, though not nearly approaching the high mark set early in the Spring. Several of the small factories that have been partially closed for extended periods are back on full time. Many of the larger ones, notably Dodge and Hudson-Essex, are running at capacity.

Hudson's showing this year is one of the best in the district. The company is the first six cylinder manufacturer to reach the six figure mark

Service Work Is Now Standardized Through Factory Research Endeavor—Special Equipment

The automobile has become such a vital fixture in the business and family life of the country that its loss, even for a day, leaves the owner and his family with a feeling of helplessness. Under this plan performance of every ordinary maintenance operation on a car is completely standard and the price fixed. As a result the owner knows in advance just what is going to be done on his car and what it will cost.

Service experts studied each operation and fixed a minimum of time that should be charged at each Packard service station throughout the country under the standardized plan. Dealers and distributors in all parts of the country found that the minimum fixed was such that they would lose money on practically every operation. This resulted in the special tools and standardized technique by which the factory experts were able to do the work in the time fixed being adopted by practically all service stations.

Study at Factory

Service men from every part of the country are sent to the factory to study new methods of maintenance work as they are developed. Recently at a meeting of service men from every part of the country a new system of cleaning carbon and grinding valves was shown at the factory. It has so reduced the time necessary for this operation more or less common for all motor cars, to the point where the car need be out of service only a short time. A mechanic ordered to clean the carbon and grind valves on a car is given a cabinet that contains every article he possibly could need, including heavy oil-proof covers for fenders and seat cushions. From the time he starts not a minute is lost going about the shop hunting for tools as the need for their use arises. Many special tools are contained in the kit and they further reduce the time. Recently a factory expert completed the entire operation in three hours and sixteen minutes—believed to be a new record.

The use of batteries as a means of ignition on English-made automobiles was extremely rare until within the past year, but is now increasing, and there are several makes manufactured for this purpose in the Birmingham district and elsewhere in Great Britain. It is probable that the reason for this change is the large number of wireless receiving sets, which has created a demand for battery charging service. Service is rendered by garages, and appears to be efficient, but the absence of regular battery service stations discourages the wider use of batteries, and their installation is the one suggestion which presents itself for the improvement of conditions.

MANY VICTORIANS SEE THE NEW NASH MODELS

Hundreds View Latest Models Which Are on Display in the Showrooms of Hugg Motor Company

After six days' showing in Victoria, the interest in the new Nash models continues at a high pitch, hundreds of people having viewed the cars since the initial opening, September 1.

While the advanced or larger six is coming in for its share of the glory in this first display period, the chief centre of interest is in the special six which is the light six. This has been accounted for only in the fact that this is the first time that Nash engineers have ever attempted to enter the so-called light six field, and motor car enthusiasts are anxious to learn for themselves how they have worked out the various features of the new cars.

The two cars are alike in their essential points, though a close study discloses a few points of difference that separates them into the distinct fields, aside from price differences. The advanced six is larger throughout than the special six. The engine of both cars are of the overhead valve type, the advanced having greater piston displacement and heavier construction throughout. Both cars have the same design of four-wheel brakes. Because of greater body weight, the advanced six has a greater total braking surface.

Many interesting engineering achievements have been credited to Nash experts in both these cars. They are not confined solely to the engine and brakes, but are made part of practically every major unit of the new Nashes.

The local distributors here and their sales and service staffs have expressed genuine gratitude toward the motoring public of Victoria for the splendid manifestation of interest in the cars. They declare that unlimited numbers of those who have called at the Nash rooms have placed the 1925 cars many long steps ahead of anything Nash engineers have ever produced in the past.

HUPMOBILE WINS IN FUEL ECONOMY TEST

Takes Prize Offered by the Automobile Club of Latvia, Near Riga, According to Cable Just Received

DETROIT, Sept. 13.—Hupmobile, for the second consecutive year, won the competitive fuel economy test run prize offered by the Auto Club of Latvia, near Riga, according to cable advice to the Hupp Motor Car Corporation. The field this year comprised eighteen American and European cars of various sizes, weights and power.

From a system of comparative piston displacements and car weights, the club each year strikes a coefficient characterizing the fuel economy that should be obtained from each car. In other words, all cars are put on the same footing, regardless of size, weight or power. The club's desire is simply to ascertain which car operates with the greatest efficiency.

The Hupmobile won first prize, both for its own class and for all classes. Fiat was second, Chevrolet third, Peugeot fourth, Protos fifth, an open Fiat sixth and Heriet seventh.

Tait & McEae, local Oakland distributors, expect a shipment of the 1925 models within the next week or so. There are no radical changes in the new models. Balloon tires will be standard equipment.

H. A. Davis, Limited, McLaughlin-Buick distributor, announced yesterday that a day and night motor cycle trouble service would be inaugurated this week.

The citizen of today thinks his house is in order if the car is hitting on all cylinders.

Teacher—The Chinese travel in junk. Does anybody know what junk is. Willie Willie—Sure, Pa's flivver.

The 1925 Studebaker, which are on display today, will certainly cause a big sensation in motor circles. The new models have beautiful lines and are equipped with all the latest devices for the convenience of motorists.

Flubb—I believe all this talk about blaming the driver after every automobile accident is unfair. Dumb—When did you get a car?

Dismore Brothers, who recently opened a garage at 835 View Street, report that used car sales have been excellent. Their repair department has been exceedingly busy for some time overhauling cars for the long winter grind.

The test bench installed by Mr. Harry F. Davis, local distributor, has been causing considerable comment in motor circles. The new bench is the latest method for testing automobile starters and generators and is a big saving in time and labor.

The National Motor Company, Ltd., received a shipment of the week. The shipment consisted of Coupes and Tudor Sedans, all equipped with balloon tires.

Mr. Jack Cartier, local Gray and Gray-Dort distributor, left for Vancouver yesterday in a short business trip. Mr. Cartier intends bringing back one of the 1925 Grays, a shipment of which is expected to reach Vancouver today. The 1925 Gray is equipped with balloon tires and has a number of new features. The Gray Sedan, with 104-inch wheel base, is being featured for 1925. The Sedan is richly upholstered and said to be a beautiful car at a very low price.

A new record was established in exports of automobile vehicles from the United States during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, when only a few short of 200,000 cars, trucks and motorcycles were shipped to foreign countries. Even the banner year of 1919-20, when all previous records fell, was surpassed by the huge shipments of the 12-month period just closed.

Despite the increased customs duties imposed by Norway and Denmark, the import of passenger automobiles into the Scandinavian countries during the early months of 1924 considerably increased over the corresponding period of 1923.

Thirty-five cities in the United States reduced motor fatalities in 1923, according to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce as given widespread notice by the First News Service. Chicago, with 626 fatalities in 1922, cut this nearly 10 per cent. San Antonio, Tex., reduced its auto death toll from 24 in 1922 to 21 in 1923. Worcester, Mass., from 26 accidents to 12; Berkeley, Cal., 13 fatalities to but 6. Quincy, Ill., a city of 40,000 population, had but one death through an automobile accident in 1923.

The latest advice from the Red motor bus, which left New York July 23 on a trip to San Francisco, show that the big vehicle is making good time and keeping slightly ahead of the schedule set for the run. Large crowds have greeted the bus at every stopping point, and have inspected it with the greatest interest. The trip marks the first attempt of a fully-equipped passenger bus to make the trip from coast to coast, and transportation experts are watching its progress with keen interest because of the promise it holds out of answering the problem of inter-city passenger traffic where railroad and trolley communication are lacking.

A car is no better than its engine. Engineers during the past year have devoted more attention to the power plant than the unit has had in a long time. While the engineers are working on the engine that will "never wear out," there are a number of things that the service man can do, as an article in last month's Motor Points out. A great many experiments conducted by a variety of people working independently have shown that by far the most potent cause of piston and cylinder wear is lack of lubrication for the first five or ten minutes after the engine is started from cold. What is needed is a device means for supplying oil to the cylinders as rapidly as possible when the engine is cold—very much more rapidly than when it has been running for some time.

Audley Clayton, well known engineer in the automotive field, goes on to point out what has been done by various manufacturers to overcome this serious difficulty and what can be done by the local service station.

RAPID GROWTH IN MOTOR VEHICLES SHOWN IN ITALY.

A rapid growth in the use of motor vehicles in Italy is shown in figures of the United States Ministry of Finance, forwarded to the Department of Commerce by Commercial Attache H. MacLean at Rome. Passenger cars in use on June 1, 1924, totaled 61,915 as against 11,243 on the same date in 1911; trucks advanced from 182 to 11,122 in the same period; increase in the use of motorcycles is seen in the comparative figures of 7,513 in 1911 and 33,542 in 1924; in bicycles, from 330,651 in 1911 to 2,254,195 in 1924; and motor boats, from 104 in 1911 (date of first available figures) to 1,557 in 1924.

These figures appear very small when compared with those for the United States, the total number of passenger cars being only about one-fifth of the monthly production of American factories and the total number of trucks being also below such monthly production. However, a steady increase is shown, which in the case of passenger cars was most pronounced during 1923. For the first five months of 1924, which is as far as the figures extend, there was an increase of 4,554 or at the rate of about 11,000 for the year. The decrease shown in 1914-15 figures can only be explained by the fact that, owing to the financial crisis resulting from the outbreak of the war, many owners laid up their cars.

Since the first motor speed race at Indianapolis, in 1911, the maximum engine size has been reduced four times. The size of racing engines is forecast for the fourteen annual sweepstakes on May 29, 1925, when 914 inches will be the maximum piston displacement.

Owing to the high price of gasoline in a gallon in Berlin, Germany, fat chauffeurs are no longer favored. Short, slim chauffeurs, about the size and weight of jockeys, are most in demand. Small cars of the runabout type are popular, and a large driver would take up all the seating capacity, leaving no place for the owner himself.

A Southern Ohio rural church is literally going out into highways and byways and compelling them to come to the church. The action was taken by the homes of present and prospective members and likewise the cars owned by members. Each car owner has been charged with a free jitney leading to church and Sunday School. F. J. K. Linwood, who describes the experiment, states that the services are fully attended.

As many of the smaller cars are not equipped with gasoline gauges, their drivers have resorted to the expediency of using the speedometer as a substitute. Knowing the average number of miles they can get from a gallon of gas, they set back the trip odometer to zero each time that gasoline is purchased and have no further worries until the approximate distance represented by the number of gallons in the tank has been driven.

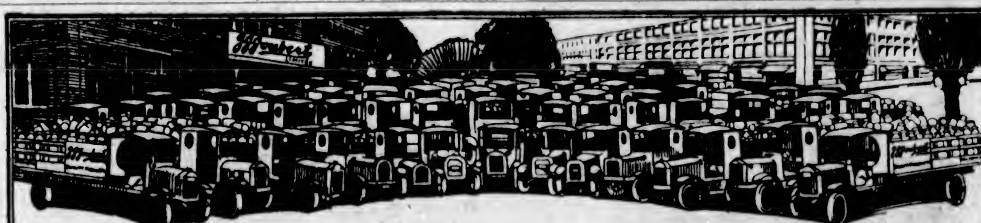

A defective metal float chamber of the carburetor can be tested by immersing it in a bowl of very hot water. If bubbles arise, it is a sure indication that there is gasoline in the chamber. Make the hole slightly larger, and also punch another very small hole on the edge of the float and shake out the gasoline. When it is empty drop a small spot of solder on holes, but be very careful not to use too much or the balance of the float will be upset. Be careful not to use very much heat or it will open up the seams in the float and ruin it. If the float is made of cork the probability is that it is water-logged. In that case dry it out in an oven with a very mild heat; then give two or three coats of shellac.

Big users of Oil know that Havoline is Power

ONE of Canada's greatest dairies, J. J. Joubert of Montreal, using a fleet of over forty trucks, have found Havoline Oil to be a real economy because of the greater power obtained, and now use it exclusively in all their cars.

A fine oil like Havoline will always give more power in the passenger car as well as the truck. With more power comes economy in gasoline. That's the combination you want.

Havoline is power at less cost.

If you want the economy and extra power of a proven good oil, drain your crank case and fill it with Havoline.

in the presence of a catalyst. About 77,000 cu. ft. of hydrogen and 24,000 cu. ft. of nitrogen are required per ton of ammonia, allowing for losses. The nitrogen is easily obtained by distilling liquefied air, and is a comparatively unimportant item of cost; but the cost of the hydrogen is a dominating factor, and the success of the whole business turns on the production of pure and cheap hydrogen. It is hoped to get the cost down to something like 2s. 6d. per 1,000 cu. ft., which means that the total cost of ammonium sulphate will work out at about 14 per ton. This is less than half the current price today, and the estimate appears at present rather optimistic. Yet the Haber process has proved so successful on a commercial scale, and its possibilities are so great that there seems little reason to doubt that the synthetic product, already a keen competitor, may soon dominate the world markets and control prices. The supply of the necessary raw materials, nitrogen and hydrogen, is practically unlimited, at least in regard to the nitrogen, of which there are 20,000,000 tons in the atmosphere over each square mile of the earth's surface. The hydrogen, for the production of which there are numerous processes, is chiefly obtained either from the water-gas of coke ovens, or from the electrolysis of water.—Engineering.

Automobile manufacturers in Germany have great affection for freak designs in cars. One of the latest monstrosities to appear on the streets of Berlin is a car with the engine in the rear, and so constructed that the front end of the car bears the appearance of the rear end of an ordinary car. The vehicle appears to be running the wrong end first.

One of the newest licence plate designs invented by R. C. Stewart, of Pittsburgh, Pa., is one of a series in which over 2,000,000 combinations of letters and figures can be used. The combinations will never have more than four characters, either of all letters, letters and figures combined, or figures only. The plate is circular in shape, made of glass, and can be easily read because of the placement of the characters and numerals in a very concise form.

15 New Studebakers

Including an entirely new type of car—the DUPLEX-PHAETON

Today Studebaker has made Automobile History and established standards of value and quality more fully and obviously than ever before.

TODAY Studebaker proves that beautiful, distinctive, stylish body lines can be originated by American body designers without following precedent or imitating or adapting what has been done before.

Today Studebaker proves that a practical and beautiful type of car can be made to combine the pleasure and performance of the open car and the comfort and protection of the closed car—and this without excessive price or compromised quality—a car "duplex" in open-car smartness and convenience and closed-car elegance and comfort—and at a price no higher than that of an open car!

Today Studebaker proves, in its new Standard Six Duplex model, that a six-cylinder car of fine quality, great power, plenty of room and impressive appearance can be made and marketed at a price of $1,895.

Today Studebaker proves in its new Special Six and its Big Six Duplex models that the ultimate in all the essential features of quality in five- and seven-passenger cars can be made and marketed at a price of $2,490 and $3,095 respectively.

And this is possible only because Studebaker cars are made in one of the most comprehensive industrial plants in this country, 70 per cent of which is new within the last six years.

Every modern method of manufacture and long experienced management are available for the production of Studebaker automobiles.

Today Studebaker proves that the highest grade closed car bodies—framed in selected hard woods, cushioned with the best cushion work, upholstered in fine mohair fabrics and fitted with expensive appointments—can be made and marketed on superlatively good chassis at moderate prices.

This is made possible by the new $10,000,000 Studebaker closed body plants. Studebaker designs and builds all of its closed bodies in one of the best equipped and most modern body plants in the industry.

The Three New Chassis

THE STUDEBAKER STANDARD SIX—113 in. wheelbase, 5-passenger. Engine, 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ x5 $\frac{1}{2}$ , 50 b.h.p.—with 6 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Duplex-Roadster, Coupe-Roadster, Coupe, Sedan, and Berline.

THE STUDEBAKER SPECIAL SIX—120 in. wheelbase, 5-passenger. Engine, 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ x5, 65 b.h.p.—with 5 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Duplex-Roadster, Victoria, Sedan, and Berline.

THE STUDEBAKER BIG SIX—127 in. wheelbase, 7-passenger. Engine, 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ x5, 75 b.h.p.—with 4 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Coupe, Sedan, and Berline.

The Ten New Closed Bodies

COMPLETELY NEW BODIES—each car a masterly expression of modern style, yet distinctly

Three completely new chassis! . . . 15 completely new bodies!
Completely new lines! . . . Marvelous new performance Completely new open-closed car!

Completely new radiators, new fenders, new lamps, new seating comfort, new finish, new colors in lacquer finish, three improved engines

Real balloon tires, not low-pressure cords. Sizes—21"x 5.25" to 20"x 7.30".

New Studebaker automatic hydraulic 4-wheel brakes—optional.

New values, never before equaled—even by Studebaker!

original in beautiful lines—individual, conservative, impressively elegant, but crisp enough in its departure from imitation to be entirely distinctive.

The Five New Duplex Bodies

(A new type of car originated by Studebaker to take the place of the open car)

SO ENTIRELY NEW and so different from any other body ever made before that a new name had to be created—the DUPLEX.

The upper structure is shaped in pressed steel and covered with the finest water-proof fabric. The steel construction permits the use of another radical Studebaker creation, the new roller enclosing curtains. There is the permanent beauty and durability of the steel top plus the instant convenience of the roller curtains.

Thus Studebaker engineers have solved the open-closed car problem.

The buyer who wants the airiness and practical convenience of the open car and who also wants the comfort, protection and beauty of the closed car can now get both in one car and at the price of an open car.

One moment the new Studebaker Duplex is a beautiful open car—a touch of the hand to the overlapping roller curtains and it is a snug weather-tight closed car.

Balloon Tires

Genuine and full size balloon tires on all models. Every part that functions with the tires has been specially designed for balloon tire equipment—steering gear, steering knuckles, spindles and springs, even the fenders.

New Lacquer Finish

The Standard Six closed bodies are beautifully finished in semi-glaze, satin lacquer. The hood and lower panels are in light gray, the upper panels in darker gray. Hairline parallel striping in oriental red. Burnished nickel radiators, jet black fenders, light golden finished, natural wood wheels and big balloon tires are contrasting touches.

The Standard Duplex Models are finished in glossy jet enamel—lasting, lustrous and wear-resisting.

The Special Six and the Big Six Duplex models are in soft satin lacquer with dark blue hoods and bodies striped in light blue and ivory. Here, too, the sparkle is added with burnished nickel radiators and light, natural wood wheels in contrast with jet black fenders and big, black balloon tires.

More Power

The universally famous Studebaker engine is more than ever a peer among power plants. The crankshaft is heavier. ALL surfaces are perfectly machined to exact dimensions and balance. The bearings are larger.

The engine is in unit with the clutch and transmission. There is a force feed lubrication system with clean, strained oil always in reserve. There are many changes and improvements which result in MORE POWER, MORE QUIETNESS and SMOOTHNESS and STILL BETTER PERFORMANCE in every way.

New Brakes

Larger, more powerful, simpler and much easier operated two-wheel brakes. An entirely new emergency brake is operated from the instrument board, instantly convenient to the driver's hand where it simplifies the control and frees the floor board from the old style lever. It acts on the propeller shaft. There is uniform pressure at each wheel—equalized through the rear axle.

The regular two-wheel Studebaker brakes with their simplicity, safety and great braking power are entirely adequate.

But Studebaker 4-Wheel Hydraulic Brakes (with disc wheels) can be furnished as optional equipment on all models at extra charge if desired.

Studebaker 4-Wheel Brakes have three exclusive features not found on any other system in this country.

1. Braking pressure is furnished by hydraulic power automatically developed. A light touch to the braking pedal controls its great force like a touch to the throttle controls the power of the engine. This feature will appeal instantly to women.

2. The front wheels cannot lock.

3. There are only two adjustments required—one at each rear wheel. The front brakes are permanently adjusted at the factory. The oil in the transmission is used to generate the hydraulic power; the action of the gears and the pump keep it in circulation; it cannot congeal or freeze. Braking power is always instantly ready—in winter as well as in summer!

New Ease of Operation

New Ease of Gear Shifting—New power in braking, a touch to the pedal exerts a giant's strength at the rear wheels—New clutch action, soft as velvet—A new steering gear and steering knuckles designed for balloon tires—A new grouping on the dash, including ALL the usual instruments plus a gasoline gauge that always works accurately.

Lighting Control Switches—all on the steering wheel—Instantly handy.

Automatic Spark Control—No manual attention required, so the lever is eliminated. Automatically governed to all speeds with the precision of machinery.

And the Details

The new cars are longer and lower to the ground. The line from the radiator to the rear is nearly straight. The wheelbase of all models is increased.

The fenders are much wider and deeper crowned to cover the width of the tires. They fit more closely over the wheels. The rear fenders are long and gracefully curved into the running boards.

The radiators are high and set low in the frames and convex curved just below the filler cap. The design is strikingly original and beautifully distinctive.

Entirely new head lamps and cowl parking lamps designed by Studebaker—artistically appropriate and in perfect keeping with the originality of the body and fender design.

Deeper, stiffer frames, more cross members; shorter, flatter springs for balloon tires. All bodies lower, all roomier, better and more comfortably cushioned. Seats are lower, backs and sides are higher.

Look Forward Into Next Year

The new Studebaker is here today! And no matter how sweeping your ideas of what a new model should be this car will satisfy you. It will thrill you with the very newness and originality of its beautiful lines!

You may not be in the market now, or even this year. But to see the new Studebaker is to look forward into next year—and the year after! SEE IT TODAY!

Worst Inundation in Thirty Years
Does Much Property Damage,
But No Lives Lost

SHERBROOKE, Que., Sept. 13.—Residents of Sherbrooke were obliged to navigate through streets in row-boats, and farmers and their families had to leave in available craft from second-story windows during a flood which inundated part of the St. Francis river valley on Wednesday evening and part of Thursday. No lives were lost and no other casualties were reported, although the damage to property is expected to run into thousands of dollars. The flood reached its peak Thursday morning and the waters began to subside in the afternoon and are now down seven feet. The inundation, the worst experienced in this section for thirty years, was caused by heavy rains during the past week.

Indians and Tuberculosis

Sir:—I would feel obliged if you will publish the following in reply to an article which appeared in your edition of the 15th of August, supposedly from your Sydney correspondent, alleging that the health of the Indians of the Spanish tribe was deplorable and reflecting against the Department of Indian Affairs for not giving this important matter the attention which was deemed by the correspondent to be necessary.

On August 21, I, in company with Dr. H. E. Young, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, went out to Spanish and Sidney and inspected the East Spanish reserve, which was the one particularly spoken of, after which I called upon Dr. G. N. Manning, of Sidney, who is substituting for Dr. Mestry Hoops, the Department's salaried physician, during his absence in England, to see if he was in any way responsible for the article above referred to, and he admitted that while he did not write the article himself he was responsible in giving the information to the correspondent.

During my interview with Dr. Manning I explained very fully what the Department had been doing for the Indians in British Columbia since they became a charge on the Dominion Government in 1871, at the time British Columbia entered the Union, taking pains to show him the increasing sums of money which have been spent for medical aid, relief, Indian education and aid to agriculture. He, however, contended that much better results would be accomplished if the Government established hospitals for all tubercular Indians and placed them in such institutions either with or without their consent. After it was pointed out to him that his proposal was nothing new, as my department had already numerous documents on file at Ottawa from various persons and organizations making like suggestions, but the carrying out of them was impossible at present owing to the vast expenditure it would involve, I finally concluded by informing him that he had allowed to be published a reflection on the Dominion Government's administration of Indian affairs which was not in any sense justified and he promised he would right the wrong he had done by writing an article to your journal. This, however, he has not so far done, and therefore I have no other course to pursue than to put the public in possession of the facts.

A number of old-time residents of the Spanish peninsula have both spoken and written to me with regard to the article referred to, and they have informed me that the statements made in the same are ridiculous in every respect. Indeed, they have said that the disease that such an article should have been allowed to appear in the press.

The conditions found on the East Spanish reserve so far as inhabitation are concerned were all that one could naturally expect to find on an Indian reserve. In fact they were a good deal better. Most of the Indians live in good clean houses and the fact that outside practically all of them there were large washings out on the lines would go to indicate that in the matter of personal cleanliness there was nothing to complain about. The premises, too, were generally in a clean and healthy condition. There are a few of the older Spanish Indians who still prefer to live in their old, large potlatch houses, which, as a matter of fact, owing to greater ventilation, are much more healthy than the smaller modern houses. In these large houses the Indians generally keep all their fishing paraphernalia, working tools, etc., and often such places might be found in a somewhat untidy condition. There is to be noticed in all Indian houses, both large and small, an odor which to the average white person is somewhat obnoxious, but this odor or untidiness cannot be termed a menace to health any more than the odor which one meets in entering any of the Oriental stores in Chinatown.

Particular stress was laid on the article above referred to with regard to the deaths of two Indian children "on the beach," which apparently intended those uninformed on the subject to believe that these children actually died out on the beach without receiving any medical attention and that officers of this department were negligent in carrying out their duties. This appeared to me to be an understanding way of sneaking at Dr. Hoops during his absence in England. I think, after the facts regarding these two cases are known by the public it will be in a position to judge how wide of the mark the balance of the statements were.

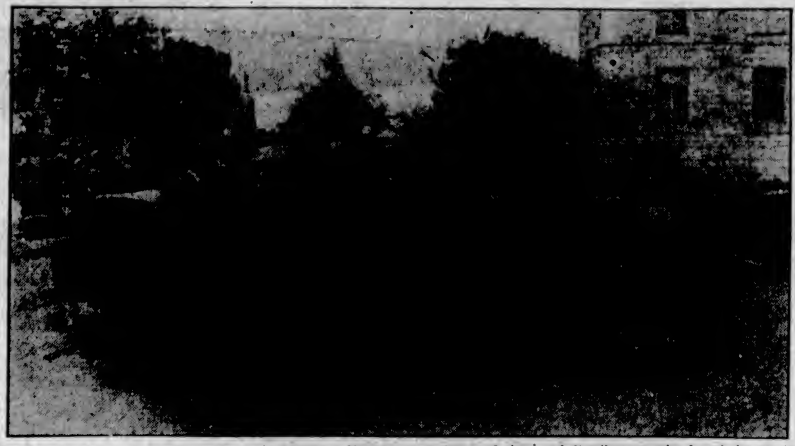

The first case was that of a child of Mrs. Louie Chisholm, with her second husband, were living in a tent near the Sidney park. The child, who was about twelve years of age, I understand was living in a separate tent, and had been under the treatment of Dr. Hoops for intestinal consumption. On the 21st of May last, Dr. Hoops reported the case to me, stating that he considered the child should be placed in the hospital and had instructed the parents two days before to have the child brought to St. Joseph's Hospital, Victoria, as it was impossible for him to do anything more for it in its then place of residence. The parents, however, neglected to bring the child in and I instructed an officer of my staff to proceed to Sidney and get the child and place it in hospital. This was at 11:20 a.m. and at 1:20 p.m. the child reached the hospital but unfortunately died a few days afterwards. The second case was that of the child of a quarter-breed Indian who has a good house on the East Spanish reserve, the parents of which are both educated and the father is fully capable of earning sufficient money to pay for the proper medical attention to his family. The child, however, was being treated by Dr. Manning and was placed in one of Victoria's hospitals but died shortly afterwards from tubercular meningitis.

If there were any degree of truth in the statements made in the article, one would naturally expect that the Indians of the Spanish bands, which in 1884 numbered 274, would be almost non-existent today, but the census taken this year shows that there are more Indians of this tribe today than there were forty years ago. To substantiate this statement, I am herewith giving you the tabulations for each ten year period starting at 1884, when, as I have above shown, the Indians numbered 274.

Province	Indian Population	No. of Deaths
Alberta	4,215	249
Br. Columbia	25,494	641
Manitoba	11,444	32
New Brunswick	1,444	26
Nova Scotia	2,444	32
Ontario	24,444	623
Quebec	13,200	200
Unkn.	10,444	237
P.E.I.	1,222	22

As against the above recorded 641 deaths among the Indians of British Columbia during the year 1923 there were 618 recorded births, thus making a decrease of only twenty-three in the Indian population of this province.

prominent Victorians in front of the Parliament Buildings last Wednesday afternoon. A Packard "6" Sport, stock car, was used for the trip and on its arrival here was inspected by Thomas Plimley, Limited, local Packard distributors, who found the car to be in perfect condition. Mr. Thomas Plimley and Salesmanager Patterson, of Thomas Plimley, Ltd., are in the centre background looking the Packard over after its long gruelling run.

Columbia runs very close to second place so far as low mortality among Indians is concerned being only 12 per cent behind the older Province of Ontario, which had a death rate of 2.36%, as against British Columbia's 2.49%.

When one remembers that it is now seventy-five years since the Hudson's Bay Company's charter was revoked and British Columbia and Vancouver Island became a self-governing colony, or in 1871 a Province of Canada, it will be realized that the Indians have only about seventy-five years of civilization behind them and the average state they were in in the olden days, and therefore it is too much to hope for that at this age and date they are in a sufficiently advanced condition to adopt the white man's standard of living in its entirety.

The low death rate in Quebec is no doubt due to the fact that the Indians of that Province, having many more years of civilization behind them than is the case in the other Provinces, had several generations of education, they have possibly learned to take better care of themselves and so ward off their susceptibility to the white plague.

Dr. Manning is of the opinion that the Dominion Government should forcibly take all tubercular Indians and place them in hospitals, segregating those in the advanced stages of the disease. While this sounds simple it must be remembered, however, there is no law in the Dominion of Canada dealing with the compulsory detention of those afflicted with tuberculosis among the white population and therefore it could hardly be expected that one would be put on the statute books which would apply to Indians alone. It is quite evident, too, the Doctor had not taken into consideration for a moment what the cost to the taxpayers of the Province would be if such an undertaking were put into operation.

Now, I may say that it is well known by the Department that a large percentage of the Indian population of Canada are affected more or less with tubercular troubles, and some physicians have gone so far as to say that at least 50% of them are so affected. But for the sake of argument we will say that there are 25%. As British Columbia has an Indian population of approximately 25,700 it would mean that 6,425 Indians would have to be placed in some sort of sanitariums. To institute such hospitals throughout the Province would cost not less than $1,000,000, after which would come the maintenance of the Indian patients, which at the extremely low figure of two dollars per day, would amount to $12,850 per day, or $4,645,000 per annum. These figures are so staggering that it is hardly necessary for me to say that such a suggestion as put forward by the Doctor was impossible of being carried out. This does not take into consideration the extra burden which would be placed on the Dominion Government for maintaining the members of Indian families from which bread winners had been removed.

The Department of Indian Affairs is conscious of the fact that Indians of the Province of British Columbia, as well as in all other Provinces of the Dominion are in as healthy condition as the white population. At the same time it is recognized that it is almost an impossibility to bring them up to this standard for many years yet until the Indians realize that they must take better care of themselves and their children. This can only be accomplished by education, and with this object in view, the Department has been concentrating its efforts to further educational facilities by establishing large residential schools for Indians alone, where they are educated, housed, clothed and fed. At these institutions of learning special studies are given in hygiene. The cost of Indian education since 1871 has totalled $4,321,353; for the fiscal year 1923-24 alone the cost was $582,850.

In the matter of medical attention to the Indians my Department pursues a policy of appointing physicians wherever it is possible to do so. On a number of reserves in districts where there are no physicians, nurses, field matrons are also appointed. These field matrons are supplied every quarter with drug supplies, and their duties are to treat what cases they can in this manner, visit the Indian homes regularly and teach the Indian women how to properly raise their children and to keep their homes in a sanitary condition.

During the year 1922-23 medical aid cost $29,820, but the total bill in this regard since 1871 has been $1,070,963. At present the Department has fifty-six salaried physicians on its payroll in this Province for part time services, the aggregate of the salaries paid being $39,580 per annum.

NEW STARS ARRIVE

The Atkinson Motor Co., Ltd., Victoria distributors of Star and Durant cars, received their first shipment of the 1925 Star cars last week. The Specials are now equipped with balloon tires, which add greatly to the appearance of the new car. The shipment received consisted of one Sedan, two Special tourings and two standard tourings, which are now on exhibition in the showrooms of the Atkinson Motor Company, 809 Yates Street.

b Besides which there is annually spent about $15,000 for vaccination and medical attention given by physicians to Indians belonging to hands other than those for which they are paid to treat under salary. When these facts have been absorbed by the reading public it surely will be one of a most critical mind who would have the temerity to say that so far as looking after the health of its charges the Dominion Government is not doing everything that is humanly possible outside of creating an expenditure as enormous that the public would consider it was in a position to stand. As to the future, I may say that it is expected that within the next few years the Department's programme of building residential schools will be completed, after which money which have been devoted for this purpose can be diverted into other channels, principally for medical attendance, and there is every likelihood that the system of appointing nurse-field matrons on reserves will be considerably extended, for it is felt that by the appointment of competent women who would have the interests of the Indians at heart, a great amount of good can be accomplished among the Indians resident on the reserves which would add very materially to the teaching given to the pupils in the residential schools.

The scourge of tuberculosis is indeed the hardest thing the Department has to combat in view of the fact that a great number of the older Indians will not properly take care of themselves or their children in this the early stage of their march towards civilization.

A betterment of the present conditions can be hoped for when the Indians have been brought to realization of the importance of better ventilation of their houses and improving their sanitary conditions. This can only be accomplished through education. The important teachings now being given to the pupils is noticeable today in many instances but it will be far more so observed after another generation of educated Indians have taken the place of those of today who, only to a limited extent, show the benefit of their schooling. A great number, in fact, practically all of the older Indians have no education and do not understand what is required of them to make themselves a more healthful race, and at the same time are resentful of being guided by a younger generation. Who there is no doubt but that tuberculosis has and is making considerable inroads among the Indians of Canada, yet it is a peculiar fact that my Department has only one case on record of any of its officials missionaries, school teachers or nurses who, I am almost inclined to believe, in closer contact with the Indians than any other persons, have become affected with or died from tuberculosis. The one case I refer to was that of a young lady in the employ of the Department who devoted much of her time to the care of old Indians, but I am almost inclined to believe that her lungs were weak in the first place and her close association with those affected with tuberculosis brought on consumption, from which she died.

Plays and Players

Fine Cast Supports Mary Pickford in Her New Photoplay

"Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" Is Latest Production by Popular Screen Star, Which Is Coming to the Dominion Theatre Tomorrow for a Week's Run—Anders Randolph, as Sir George Vernon, Plays Principal Male Role

WITHOUT exception the members of the cast of Mary Pickford's new and latest photoplay for United Artists Corporation, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," which comes Monday to the Dominion Theatre, constitutes an even greater aggregation of stage and screen stars than any list of players that ever supported her in any of her previous picture offerings.

Miss Pickford, in the role of Dorothy Vernon, is again the grown young woman. This character, however, is wholly different from that of the little street singer so exquisitely portrayed in "Rosita," the picture in which Miss Pickford first assumed a grown-up role.

The part of Sir John Manners, played by Allan Forrest, who recently worked in Jackie Coogan's "In the Palace of the King."

Anders Randolph, who appeared in "The Bright Shawl," takes the part of Sir George Vernon, and Marc McDermott, well known on stage and screen, makes an admirable Sir Malcolm Vernon, cousin of Dorothy, to whom she has been betrothed against her will.

Queen Elizabeth is interpreted by Clara Eames, well known in both this country and Europe for her brilliant work as England's famous queen.

Estelle Taylor, popular screen star, who has just finished with Cecil De Mille in "The Ten Commandments," was chosen as Queen Mary.

Mme. Carrie Daumery, widow of the famous violinist, Tausig, has the part of Lady Vernon, mother of Sir

Malcolm, and Lord Burley, Counsellor to Queen Elizabeth, is ably handled by Eric Mayne, who did notable work in "Susanne" and "The Light That Failed."

Lottie Pickford Forrest, sister of the star, and who has not been seen on the screen for more than two years, is cast as Jenny Faxton, maid and confidante of Dorothy Vernon, and the part of Peckins, servant and retainer of Sir John Manners, is played by Malcolm Waite.

In the role of the Earl of Rutland is Wilfred Lucas, while Courtenay Foote portrays the Earl of Leicester. Each of these two players has had extensive experience.

LONDON PAPER STRESSES THE JUDGE'S MORAL COURAGE

Chicago Judgment Accepted in Britain With Cynical Remarks on U.S. Criminal Justice

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Throughout the hearing in the Franks kidnapping and murder case at Chicago the British press regarded the reading public with columns of sensational descriptive stories, but few of the papers made editorial comment when Judge Caverly passed sentence on the culprits, Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr. The verdict, however, was the topic of conversations everywhere, many people accepting it as an opportunity to express cynical remarks upon American criminal court justice.

In a column editorial The Daily Telegraph says: "Whatever may be thought of the sentence imposed, it seems to us that moral courage was not wanting in the judge who pronounced it."

BEAUTY CORNERED TO MAKE THIS PLAY

"It Is the Law" at Pantages Offers All That Photoplay Fan Desires
—William Fox Production

Do you like your motion picture fare peppered with pretty girls? Many film fans do, and they are not among the men alone. Women—motion picture producers claim—enjoy seeing beautiful members of their own sex on the screen just as much as the men.

Local theatregoers who enjoy a lot of beautiful women with their drama have a feast coming their way when the William Fox special production, "It Is the Law," begins its engagement at the Pantages Theatre on Monday, according to all advance reports.

This picture, even though a heavy, thrilling melodrama play, is said to be studded with pretty women of all types—dashing blue-eyed blondes and bewitching brunettes. Heading the brunette division is Mimi Palmeri, a blue-eyed Latin beauty who plays the leading feminine role. Giving her a close run for honors is Helena D'Algy, another type of beauty. Then there is Dorothy Kingdon and Patricia O'Connor, whose pretty faces are well known.

The blonde contingent is led by Florence Dixon, playing an important part. The others of light hued brigades are De Sascia Moore, Bijou Fernandez and Nancy Newman, not to mention a half hundred others of both colors who appear in the big gambling house scenes.

Mr. William Tickle, leader of the orchestra at the Pantages Theatre, is keeping up his high standard of music, judging by the programme selected for Monday night's performance. Both the public and musical critics are unanimous in their praise. The management congratulates itself upon securing the services of Mr. P. Edmonds as soloist for Monday night. Mr. Edmonds is a gold medalist, having won the distinction two years in succession. The patrons of the theatre can therefore rest assured of a wonderful entertainment.

"THE MAN WHO CAME BACK" AT CAPITOL

Screen Version of John Fleming Wilson's Story Will Be Shown on Screen Here This Week

Another adaptation from a book and a stage play which scored marked success in both forms comes to the public this season in the William Fox screen version of "The Man Who Came Back," which opens a six-day run at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow. John Fleming Wilson wrote the novel which became a best seller. Immediately, Jules Eckert Goodman made it into a play which won Broadway and then the whole country. Now, Edmund Golding has written a scenario from which Emmett Flynn has directed a picture which promises to duplicate the success of the book and stage versions.

The story concerns the black-sheep son of a wealthy New Yorker. The youngster burns up Broadway, and when it becomes too hot for him, is sent to San Francisco by his father to work in a shipyard. In the Golden Gate City he is shanghaied and eventually lands in the Orient.

The fall and rise of Henry Potter, the reckless devil-may-care American, weaves itself into a narrative so romantic and full of action that it might have been originally written for the screen. Needless to say, he does rise. But not until he has experienced the sting of defeat and the degradation of the underdog. He also learns the extent of a woman's sacrifice. And in the end, Henry Potter turns out to be a first rater in the real sense of the phrase.

George O'Brien has the leading role as young Henry Potter. Representing the boy at the age of 4 years is Walter Wilkinson, and later, at 12 years, Brother Miller. The director has found juveniles with a striking resemblance to O'Brien, which adds to the realism of the picture.

Marcelle, the girl in the story, is Dorothy Mackaill, the exquisite little actress who played in "The Next Corner," "Twenty-One," with Richard Barthelmess, "His Children's Children" and again with Barthelmess in "The Fighting Blade." She also will be remembered as the star in "Mighty Lak a Rose."

SEATS GOING FAST FOR HINCKS REVUE

"Tonight's the Night" Looks Like Box Office Favorite—Tuneful Music and Clever Dancing

Commencing tomorrow and continuing for the week, with a matinee on Saturday for the little ones, the big Hincks production, "Tonight's the Night," will hold the boards at Victoria's premier theatre. Multitudes of patrons and well-wishers of the talented company, which have created such a favorable impression during the past nine months, are looking forward to the musical comedy treat which is in store for them, and the box office of the Royal is once again a veritable hive of industry. Whatever the lure of pictures might be there are still a large number of people to whom the human voice on the stage holds a very compelling attraction, and these will doubtless turn out in large numbers to witness the antics of such popular artists as Ernie Petch, Will Marshall, Reginald Hincks, Peggy Lewis, Roberta Balconi and a host of others. The show itself is of the funniest of the musical comedy type, with some of the latest New York song hits, interspersed amongst the best from the original score of this great London and New York success. Those who are particular as to their seats would be well advised to book early, as there has been a brisk sale for the past two days.

DRAMALOGUE TO BE GIVEN THIS MONTH HAS WIDE APPEAL

The fourth dramalogue season opens at the Empress Hotel on Monday, September 22, at 2:30 p.m., with a strong committee supporting Major Bullock-Webster. Tickets will be available this Monday and can be obtained from any of the following members of the committee: Mrs. Hugo Beaven, Mrs. T. S. Gore, Mrs. Harry Ross, or Captain Thorpe-Double, R.N.

It is expected that this year the dramalogues will have a wider appeal than even in the recent successful seasons. Less importance will be attached to the entertaining qualities of the subject matter and more attention given to the literary and intellectual value of the works chosen. Plays have been selected which every body wants to know about, but which few have the opportunity to come in touch with. When the fabric of two plays is closely interwoven, both will be dealt with if possible. For example, the reading of "Will Shakespeare," by Clemence Dane, calls for the consideration of Christopher Marlowe's "Tamburlaine." In some cases the theme, the content and the structure of a play will be discussed, and the technique analyzed.

At the first dramalogue, for which members only can be guaranteed seats, Thomas Hardy's much-discussed play, "The Famous Tragedy of the Queen of Cornwall," will be read, and the equally famous Wagner duet, founded on the same theme, will be given. Miss Marjorie Lane will recite.

A search light on one of the U. S. battleships has 500 million candle-power, visible 127 miles.

ENGLISH TOWNS SHOWN IN COLUMBIA FILM

"If Winter Comes" Is Screen Version of Last Season's Best Seller—Has Powerful Theme

When A. S. M. Hutchinson wrote "If Winter Comes" he contributed to the world of fiction the literary sensation of a decade. William Fox has produced the screen counterpart of this now famous novel which bids fair to become the most-talked-of photoplay of the season. It will be the feature picture at the Columbia Theatre for three days, commencing tomorrow.

Photographed in England, in the actual scenes pictured by the author, which have become so familiar to the average household, the photoplay is a fine, authentic achievement which has commanded the profuse commendation of Mr. Hutchinson himself.

In the cast supporting Mr. Percy Marmont and Miss Ann Forrest are Sidney Herbert as Twynning, Arthur Metcalf as Haggood, William Riley Hatch as Rev. Sebastian Fortune, Raymond Bloomer as Lord Tyburn, Walter Kolb as Harold Twynning, Margaret Fielding as Mabel, Leslie King as Humpo, Gladys Leslie as Elsie, Virginia Lee as Miss Winifred, George Peizer as Old Bright, Dorothy Allen as High Jinks, Eleanor Daniels as Low Jinks, James Ten Brook as the coroner, Eugene Woodward as Mrs. Perch, and Russell Sedgewick as Young Perch.

High River Watches for Rancher Prince's Coming

Cowpunchers, Herders and Neighbors of E. P. Ranch in Alberta Will Give Baron Renfrew Warm Welcome on His Arrival in Quiet Foothills From Noise and Clare of New York—Prince Is Esteemed in Cattle Country for Real Good Fellowship

By J. H. CAMPBELL

CALGARY, Sept. 13.—The gates of the E. P. Ranch, out in the Alberta foothills, where Edward, Prince of Wales, will soon shed the trappings of royalty, are swinging ajar awaiting the arrival of the ranch's young boss.

"Carlyle," said the Prince one day last year—Professor W. L. Carlyle is manager of the E. P. Ranch—"This has been the happiest day of my life."

Carlyle, a practical farmer, with twenty-five years' experience in big farm experimental stations all over the United States, was inclined to be sceptical.

"I mean it," the Prince insisted. "This is the first time in my life that I've felt like a real man. I've met all the neighbors and I like them. What's more, I think they like me, not because I'm a Prince, but because I'm one of the gang."

"That's why the Prince is coming back to Alberta this year," said the manager. "The E. P. Ranch is his only 'own' home—the one place in the world that is entirely his own, to do with as he will."

He calls it home.

Last Year's Visit

Last year's visit was an experiment—so successful and so satisfying that when it was found necessary to cancel his proposed trip to South Africa this year he put his own private desires forward (for prince can) and made arrangements for another visit this fall.

Last year he found that he was treated as Lord Renfrew, not as the Prince of Wales, heir to the throne of Great Britain, and the people of the West, never in awe of a title, found the real man beneath the cognomen.

The newspapers, with the kindest intentions, in the world, have maligned this young gentleman who is known as the Prince of Wales to the great mass of English-speaking people, and as "Eddie" to his intimates in Great Britain and to his many friends in Western Canada.

Mrs. Carlyle, wife of the E. P. Ranch's manager, tells of a side to the Prince's character that is not in keeping with the general impression absorbed by the public in the past.

What she has to say of him might shatter the roseate dreams of thousands of young maidens in Canada and the United States who have been writing "maah notes" to his Royal Highness ever since his first visit to Canada.

How They Regard Him

"The Prince isn't altogether the gay, care-free, laughing young fellow that people think," says Mrs. Carlyle. "He's a man of the world, with a wonderful grasp of world problems and politics. He knows a good deal more about the affairs of state than he does about dancing, and he's just as much at home when he's talking business as he appears to be when he's in a ballroom talking 'sweet nothings' to a debutante."

This ranch of the Prince's is something new to him and gives him a freedom that he never dreamed of before, but it's far from being a toy.

The Prince is eager to take a real part in the development and improvement of livestock in Canada, and some of the finest blooded stock that Britain can afford has been shipped to the E. P. Ranch, where the best strains are being constantly bred.

Throughout all the Canadian fairs livestock from the ranch has carried off a large proportion of the honors and awards.

And—the Prince is making money as a farmer and livestock breeder. The E. P. is no show place, into which a titled Briton is pouring money for the satisfaction of ownership. The ranch is not only paying its own way, but it is showing a good profit on the large sums originally invested.

One of the Gang

Popular fancy, both in America and Great Britain, is prone to picture a member of the royal family as a bejeweled puppet, playing with a sceptre and a crown. Should that personage be a reigning monarch, the public of the British Empire at least, is glad to accord him the respect that has always been given the occupant of a throne; but that same public is prone to regard a prince as somebody to be loved, cheered and admired, at the same time forgetting that beneath the surface the prince may be a regular person after all.

Another reason why the Prince of Wales likes the West. Out here, as he says, he's one of the gang. His Alberta neighbors read the newspaper stories about the great receptions he is given in the United States and Eastern Canada and realize how glad he's going to be to get out where the people think of him as a he-man rather than as a prince.

Last year, a young man who had just found his freedom and tasted perhaps for the first time, the joys of life as an ordinary human being, the Prince moved about as he liked, rode his own horses on his own ranch, that he's human," says Mrs. Carlyle. "Tourists whom we've shown over the ranch have come into his bedroom here and ninety-nine out of a hundred of them have sat on the bed there and said, 'Just imagine, this is where the Prince once slept!' Of course, I don't tell them that the bed he used is packed up in the attic," she added.

Last year the Prince's incognito was respected absolutely. This year the gates of the E. P. Ranch have been thrown open to thousands of visitors who have been eager to see "the wheels go round."

Somewhat, most of these visitors lost their awe of the royal rancher as a prince and gained a new respect for him as a man; for it is a new sort of individual who is revealed to the beholder by the surroundings of the E. P. and the information imparted by the ranch manager, Professor W. L. Carlyle.

No Reporters Need Apply

When the Prince arrives the sign will go up on the gates—"No reporters wanted." The Prince likes newspapermen and is glad to welcome them as friends, but they can't bring their notebooks or pencils on to the E. P. Ranch. He can't see why they should bother him any more than they would Bill Jones over on the next quarter section.

But there is always a welcome for the Prince's neighbors and friends. George Lane, who owns the big Bar-U Ranch, near the E. P., was late in getting around last year. In fact, he didn't pay a visit until just before the Prince was leaving for England.

"You're a hell of a neighbor," said the Prince when the gates—"Where've you been all this time?" One day they had a picnic on the E. P. It was an informal gathering of the Shorthorn Breeders' Association, of which the Prince is an active member. A reporter for a local paper who had slipped just a trifle and written some of the "bug" that is frequently a curse to the man in the public eye, was standing near the Prince when the latter invited a group of his friends into the house for a "morning" morning. "Don't bring that bird along," said the Prince.

Certainly the Prince is a human being.

Tree Still There

The Prince is learning to take hold of his own property, if occasion should ever arise, but he knows enough about farming now to defer to the judgment of his ranch manager if their views conflict when there is reason to believe that the Prince is in the wrong. Out in front of the ranch house is a leaning tree, almost dead, but bearing a prolific crop of leaves every summer.

The Prince didn't like it much. "Chop it down," he said.

But Professor Carlyle told him that the tree was a landmark in the country—had been there for hundreds of years. "You can't cut that down," he said.

The Prince crumpled a bit, but the tree is still there.

No reception is being planned for the Prince this year when he arrives. The people of Alberta know him too

This Is Leap Year; Princes Not Immune

Maah notes—thousands of them—are awaiting the Prince of Wales at the E. P. Ranch in Alberta.

Plain envelopes, fancy envelopes, blue ones, pink ones—they bear the postmarks from every State in the Union and from every Province in Canada.

Outpourings of the hearts of thousands of girls in all parts of the American continent.

They're piled up on the mantelpieces, they fill the chairs to overflowing, and they're stacked on the floors of the Prince's ranch home.

It is estimated that the girls have taken their pens in hand and have written more letters to the Prince of Wales than they have to any movie star since the film pictures became popular.

What's the answer?

With some lively bucking thrown in; fished and explored his 4,000 acre property, ran up to Calgary to play golf which, he felt like it, took a jaunt to Banff in the Rocky Mountains and danced and swam there to the delight of the debutantes and others, rushed back to the ranch, cut out with a mower, helped feed the silo, dug post holes.

No Idler's Day

Up at 5:30 o'clock in the morning and through a day's activities that would knock most athletic men cold; democratic to a degree that would stagger many self-styled Democrats on this side of the water—that's the Prince that the people of Alberta know.

Not the Prince of the illustrated papers and the young fashion plate whose every movement is recorded in columns of gush by "lady journalists."

"They just can't seem to believe well for that now. His train will probably pull into High River, his nearest station, some morning. Naturally there will be a lot of his friends down at the station to see him come in, but there won't be any cheering or flag-waving. If there was the Prince would be "sore."

Old Clothes' Time

He'll shake hands all round, just as he did last year when he was going away, hop into a car, and dash out to his ranch. Then he'll unpack all his old clothes, dig up the old buldog pipe that is his constant companion on the ranch, and go out to see how the place has been getting along since he saw it last.

There is nothing pretentious about the ranch house itself, although it's a good building as ranch houses go. There is no gilded furniture scattered about the comfortable living-room, or the low-ceilinged, raftered dining-room, but everything there stands for solid comfort.

Over in one corner of the room is a calendar issued by some local company, or perhaps the store where the Prince buys his groceries in High River. Stuck over the mantelpiece is a badly colored lithograph of the Prince himself, hacked out of some English periodical, with above it a picture of King George of Great Britain, the Prince's father.

The only expensive looking picture in the whole establishment is a reproduction of a painting of the Prince himself, and that is only stuck up there because it is the Prince's gift to Professor Carlyle.

A homey place, and a good place to live, reflecting the real character of the Prince himself.

ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY CREATES FELLOWSHIP

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The Council of the Zoological Society has instituted an Aquarium Research Fellowship, tenable for three years and of the annual value of £350, to be held at the new aquarium in Regent Park, which was opened to the public last April.

The intention of the council is that the new research fellow should work at the general conditions affecting aquatic life in artificial installations, and on the various problems that an aquarium presents. The various plants of the Regent's Park aquarium for circulation, aeration, filtration and heating have worked well, and the lighting arrangements have proved satisfactory, but aquarist management rests more on empirical knowledge than on any exact knowledge of cause and effect, and it is in order to try and remedy this condition that the new fellowship has been created.

COMMONS MEMBERS HUNT LOST STATUES

Three Pieces Illustrating British History, Exquisitely Carved in Ivory, Are Found

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The British House of Commons is engaged in a treasure quest. It is believed that somewhere there are to be found, perhaps on the Continent or in America, if not in this country, three ivory statues of the seventeenth century, which open and display beautifully carved scenes of stirring incidents in British history.

There have already been discovered two of Charles the First and one of Oliver Cromwell, which are now in the possession of the House; but the original set, it is thought, consisted of six. A fourth, in fact, has already been traced. It is a Mary Queen of Scots, the skirt opening back to reveal a carved scene of the death of Rizzio. Though it has been stated that it was bought for £50 in Mesan by an American some time ago, there is reason to believe that it is in this country, and that there is a prospect of the House having an opportunity to acquire it.

Of the subjects of the others of the set there is no very definite information, but so novel is the idea in the carving—the historic scene within the body of the figure—that members of the House who are devoting in their holidays a little time to the quest cannot fail to identify the little treasures if by some lucky chance they should come across them.

The first was found some six years ago by Sir Clive Morrison-Bell in a shop at Geneva. It was a Charles the First, standing in full Cavalier costume, with the left hand resting on the belt which holds the sword.

The whole of the body of the figure opens in the centre and reveals in three parts what is described on the tablet that rests in the thigh. "Dissolution du Parlement par Oliver Cromwell." The central scene, with its ten or a dozen little figures, depicts the moment when Cromwell is thundering "Take away that bauble."

In the left-hand panel are soldiers entering the House, and in the right-hand members being expelled. The head of Charles, like a rock above a climber, overhangs the opened scene.

Another Charles and an Oliver Cromwell with a scene of the Battle of Naseby have been presented more recently by Sir William Bull and W. R. Rea. They have not yet been shown, but will shortly be placed in glass cases with the first Charles in the library.

Imaginings and Vain Things

On Office Windows, Generally Considered, With a Discreet Glance, in Particular at Government Office Windows, On Newspaper Office Windows, and Why It Is That They Look Out on So Few "Front Page" Excitements; On the Man in the Street, and Why We Dislike All the People Who Never Hit Him With an Axe; And on More Inspiring Sights, as Seen From the Office Window on Saturday Mornings.

By P. C. R.

Office windows, generally considered, have very little to recommend them. They seem always to have, in some miraculous fashion, a south aspect when the weather is hot and a north when it is bleak and cold. They are as contrived that, gloomy as the prospect is within, it is little better without. They seem to be designed by a race of architects who have a born hatred for persons who work in offices. The windows of Government offices are different, of course; but that is no doubt because a great deal of important Government work can only be done by looking out of the window. Government servants seem to draw inspiration from the contemplation, through official windows, of the mere tax-paying herd outside. One of our cherished memories of days gone by is that of an old gentleman, in uniform, who used to stand at a window from ten to four every day and look out on the traffic of Whitehall. We used to think of him as The Law Looking Out of the Scottish Office. We remember that we used to suppose we were younger then.

but not more innocent than now—that the chief purpose of the Scottish Office was to provide windows for old gentlemen in uniform to look out of. Even now we can imagine no occupation more dreadful than looking out of the windows of the Scottish Office, except that of looking in at them. But we must not be led astray by vagrant thoughts of Scottish Offices and Government offices. There is enough Bolshevism in the world as it is.

Newspaper office windows have a great deal to answer for. No matter how often they are washed, they never seem to be clean; and no doubt that is the reason why newspaper men take such gloomy views of things. It is surprising, too, how seldom anything happens outside of a newspaper office which shakes a good "front page story." You would think, with Editors constantly passing in and out, that there would be more interesting murders done outside newspaper offices than anywhere else. It seems as if, when anybody undertakes to murder an Editor, he lures him away to some remote place, where no member of the subordinate staff ever has a chance to see it done. It is most disheartening. It is much the same with lesser crime. It is evident that criminals do not understand the value of publicity. If there were as much reportable crime committed just outside newspaper offices as there is unreportable crime inside, all a reporter would have to do would be to stand at his office window, and get enough good first-hand stories every day to fill the paper with local news. We remember, praising a friend of ours once, a man admirably fitted by nature to stand on one side of the street and watch a house burn down on the other. But we do not expect that quality for a similar praise as long as we are allowed to look out of the window of a newspaper office. If you come to think of it, did you ever hear of a fire opposite to a newspaper office? No, and you never will. We believe that the insurance companies offer half rates on buildings opposite to newspaper offices, and we can quite understand it.

For all that, we do not mean to say that there is not a good deal of looking out of newspaper office windows. You have heard of the Man in the Street, of course. He was a newspaper invention, and the sole patent rights in his manufacture and distribution are vested in the newspaper. He was not the original conception of a single man of genius. He was gradually evolved from the composite mind of many Editors. All Editors look out of their office windows. They are the only persons in a newspaper office who are allowed a window of their own to look out of. We have sometimes stood at the office windows, doing our best to look intelligent, in the hope that the Man in the Street might catch sight of us and mistake us for an Editor. It never works out that way. All that happens is that somebody or other—most likely a retired quartermaster-sergeant who used to try to borrow a rum ration from us in other days—catches sight of us, and comes in and tries to borrow five dollars. We sincerely hope it is not so expensive to be an Editor as it is to try and look like one at the office window.

But we were saying that all Editors look out of their windows. Generation after generation of them have done so. They have looked down upon the passing-by of all that countless host whose birth and death and striving under the sun must always be the raw material of the fascinating chronicle which is the newspaper. And these Editors of ours, essaying to interpret to himself the myriad-minded creature who passes by, have little by little evolved that incredible portent, that colossal superstition, the Man in the Street. O, patient and much-enduring reader, do not hug to your soul the cherished delusion that you have no part in this vast hallucination of the Editorial mind. You did not know it, but the Editor has marked you as you passed and looked up at that gloomy bastille in which the prisoners of hope who purvey your daily tidings are immured. He has marked you, and he has gone off and written an editorial on the Man in the Street, into which, somehow or other, he has managed to pack all the forebodings which the sight of you in your unconcern has naturally evoked in him.

We still cherish the hope that we shall ourselves look out of the office window some day and catch a glimpse of the Man in the Street. As we make up our mind to do so, we really think that he is an Editorial collection of fabulous creatures, but we should like to be persuaded of his existence. You know the picture that is drawn of him. He is the one man in this world with none of what Mr. Edmund Spenser used to call "the feeling of the sense" about him. The Man in the Street, as it would seem, is in a perpetual condition of not putting up with some sort of otherness from somebody or other. Things generally are bad enough everywhere, goodness only knows; but what would it be if it were not for the Man in the Street? He is the court of last resort about everything. Everybody else is perplexed about war and peace, taxation and retrenchment, high tariffs and unemployment, early closing and daylight saving, the weather, marriage, divorce, the Chicago murders, bobbed hair, the state of Europe, the high cost of rum rations, Premier MacDonald, Premier Oliver, Luis Firpo, the winner of the Newmarket Stakes, the proper stance at the nineteenth hole—everybody is worried about all these things. But not the Man in the Street. He knows about it all. He will stand no nonsense about any of it. If anybody proposes to do something about anything, the Man in the Street will see that something is done. O, yes, we should like to see the Man in the Street. We feel about him that if we could only meet him we should love him as a brother; only we should hate all the people who never hit him with an axe. But we have a feeling in our most intimate bones that we shall never see him. We have not the eye of faith. We shall leave the Man in the Street to the Editor.

From Monday to Friday we have no time for it, but we like to look out of the office window on Saturday mornings. It is a busy time in the street, but there is a sort of holiday air about its business. Mothers with their children are on their way to buy things for Sunday dinner—there is no time for mere shopping. The children have been promised an ice cream cone if they are good, and while they will only take a cursory approximation to that austere standard of goodness which mothers set up in the face of all experience, they will get their ice cream and know it, and their mothers know it. It is the weekly instalment of the immortal fairy story, in which only the good children get ice cream, and these domestic concerns are charged with anxieties beside which the state of Europe is only a triviality; and these pleasures have no currency about the office window. As seen from that vantage point, there is an appearance of relaxation in the lawful occasions of Saturday morning. There is a marked discretion in the observed enforcement of the parking regulations. We note that some of these motor cars which hedge the curbs have been there for more than their appointed hour. Who cares? Parking regulations are made for the days from Monday to Friday. The seventh day, despite the Christian dispensation, has still the myopic quality of its number in the order of days.

We hope there will be no agitation for the abolition of Saturday mornings. The office window had better be curtained in opacity, if we are not to be allowed to look out and doze on all this air and march of life. Who said that, Victoria was dull and quiet? There is a note of barbaric and martial music from the corner. The boy pipers are swinging round the turn of the street. They make a brave show in their new kilts. They are playing "Cock o' the North," and they play it well, and have the right swing of their young shoulders as they pass beneath us. Their pibroch fills all the street with its wild echoes and evokes memories of a sterner march; and we remember how the roads of Northern France saw the men of the Somme, and heard the strains of that stirring song of war, when the men of Canada, tramped down from the old Salient to the Battle of the Somme. We have taken our fling at the Scots and their pipes many a time, but it was all to dissemble our love. They are a gallant people, and they produced Hobbie Burns. We have been looking through the office window across the years, taken back by the sight and sound of the boy pipers with their brave show in the new kilts, and the martial swing of their young shoulders. They turn the far corner, and their music dies on the faint breeze of the morning. We turn away from the pageant of the street, and we try, but not altogether effectually, to put the day's work as a veil between us and those unbidden memories.

"Cascade"—THE BETTER BEER

Thirty-Five Years Ago

—When the new city of Vancouver was being built up over the ashes of the old—when industry in British Columbia was in its infancy—"Cascade Beer" was giving refreshment and vigor to citizen and settler. Today the brewing of "Cascade" is one of B.C.'s great industries—the most perfectly equipped brewery in the West is working day and night to supply the demand for pure, wholesome, refreshing beer. No effort is spared to produce the best beer possible—from choosing the grain and hops to bottling and sealing the matured product, every aid known to the science of brewing is made use of. Now we can say "Cascade Beer" is second to none in the Dominion—it is the BETTER BEER.

EXERCISES AT NORTH WARD SCHOOL HELD

Commencement exercises were held in North Ward School on Friday afternoon last at 1:30 o'clock. Mr. Naden, Deputy Minister of Lands, presented to Miss Ina Wallace a bronze medal, and to Master James Gibson a diploma for essays written on forest fire prevention. James Gibson was also presented with a $10 prize for his essay on his visit to the Victoria Steam Laundry.

Forty-four high school entrance certificates and a number of manual training and domestic science diplomas were presented to last year's entrance class. The senior girls' basketball cup was presented to last year's team. This was the third consecutive year in which this cup has been won by the girls of the school.

A very interesting and appropriate address to the pupils was given by the Rev. R. W. Hibbert, of Centennial Church. The singing of the pupils, led by Mr. Pollard, was much admired by all the visitors present. Before the singing of the National Anthem cheers were given by the pupils for Mr. Naden and Mr. Hibbert.

Home Bank Case
TORONTO, Sept. 13. — Already some of the exhibits at the Home Bank trial are becoming badly used up from the constant handling to which they have been subjected since the bank suspended, and at an informal session convened by Judge Coatsworth today it was suggested by the prosecuting counsel that a number of them should be photographed. To this the court offered no objection. That was the only subject discussed at today's session, which lasted only a few minutes.

REACH ACCORD ON SANCTIONS

Great Britain and France Arrive at Firm Understanding as to Backing League of Nations With Forces

DRAMATIC MOMENT WHEN DEADLOCK HALTS PARLEY

Treaty Provides Each Member Will Contribute Military or Economic Assistance to Enforce Decrees

GENEVA, Sept. 15.—A dramatic moment marked the negotiations today between Great Britain and France over the problem of sanctions, which are the basis of an agreement to outlaw war. The agreement was finally drafted in a preliminary form and will be submitted tomorrow to the delegates of the other powers. On two occasions the negotiations were threatened with disruption, but owing to the patience of both British and French delegates they were resumed after a temporary interruption and an accord was finally attained.

The difference was over the question of how to insert into the agreement some definite clause whereby military, naval and economic assistance could be definitely assured and more particularly the naval and economic assistance of Great Britain. The final draft does not mention Great Britain or any other power, but is in the nature of a pact of general and mutual assistance and makes clear that each member of the league will contribute any force at its disposition, either economic or military, for the general maintenance of peace.

It is understood that the day was saved by the assurance received by the French delegation that Great Britain would interpret the pact to Continued on Page 4

PRINCE TO PROLONG VISIT TO SYOSSET

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS POST-ONES DEPARTURE Presents Polo Pony to Miss Diana Guest, and Balance of Riding to Be Auctioned

SYOSSET, Sept. 15.—The Prince of Wales is having so much fun on his American holiday that he will prolong his stay on Long Island.

Although his departure for the "E. P." ranch in Alberta, Canada, was tentatively set for Thursday night, members of the royal party said today that the Prince might again change his mind and put in a few more days' play. He has had a little more peace lately for he has been more fortunate in dodging the curious crowds.

No announcement of his plans has come from his holiday home at the James A. Burden estate in the last day and night, except that the Prince would attend a small dinner party tonight at the home of Rodman Wanamaker, Oyster Bay.

The Prince has given "Ashby," one of his finest ponies, to Miss Diana Guest, daughter of the Right Hon. Frederick E. Guest, a polo player and member of the royal family. Captain Guest, whose home is at Hestly hills, married an American girl, "Ashby" formerly belonged to Lord Wimborne, Captain Guest's brother. It is announced that the Prince's remaining polo ponies will be sold at auction after the royal visitor has gone to Canada. His trip to South Africa next Spring and his intervening engagements will keep polo playing off the programme for a year or more, it was said.

The Prince of Wales today paid a visit to a point of American literary and industrial interest when he drove over to Garden City, looked at the editorial offices and works of Doubleday, Page & Company, publishers.

The Prince had known Walter Hines Page, the founder of the firm, when he was American ambassador to Great Britain, and "The Life and Letters of Walter Hines Page," published a year ago, was to the Prince one of the most interesting of contemporary books that he read, according to his secretary, Captain A. F. LaFolles.

Island Police Did Not Shoot to Kill Strikers

LILUO, Island of Kauai, T.H., Sept. 15.—Evidence that the Hawaiian police, who last Tuesday battled with Filipino plantation strikers, made no attempt to kill the Filipinos, has been found. County Attorney G. Kaukau declared today. After obtaining statements at the hospital here from Filipinos wounded in the melee, he said that the police in firing had "shot low" and not aimed to kill.

MORE WOUNDED AS SUN SHINES

Stream of Casualties at Shanghai Increases When Rain Ceases, and Fighting Is Resumed Outside City

MACHINE GUNS ACCOUNT FOR MANY INJURED

Firing Heard on Manchurian Border Indicates That Two Movements Against Peking Are Now Under Way

SHANGHAI, Sept. 15.—The armies of Chekiang and Kiangsu, west and south-west of this city, which held their fire during the few days of rain, were fighting with renewed intensity today. As a result the streams of wounded men returning from the front increased. Reports as to result do not agree, but the best information was that there was little change in the situation.

Shanghai was calmer, although the naval forces landed to protect foreigners and their interests have not relaxed their vigilance. Both sides are using machine guns, which accounts for the increased casualties. There has also been heavy fighting south of the railway, where the Chekiang headquarters claim, advances were made despite the fact that its men were caught by machine guns when attempting a flank movement which carried them to Anting, one of their objectives.

Messengers From Mukden SHANGHAI, Sept. 15.—Two messengers from Mukden, given out today by Secretary Loh of the Chekiang defence headquarters here, reported that firing began last night at Shan-hai-kuan, in Chihli Province at the Manchurian border, and in the Jehol district. In the heart of Chihli, 125 miles northwest of Shan-hai-kuan, and about 100 miles northeast of Peking. A second messenger reported the capture of Easayun, near Jehol.

These messengers, if confirmed, would indicate that Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian war lord, is moving his troops on Peking from two directions in his effort to overthrow the Government there.

Meanwhile the civil war about Shanghai, brought sharp fighting. According to a communique issued by Loh, the Chekiang forces allied with Chang Tso-lin in their opposition to the Peking Government, advanced from Kiating, thirty miles northwest of Shanghai, toward Tai-tang.

They also were said to have scored advances near Anting.

Major Operations

The major operations, however were west of Tai Lake, where the Chekiang artillery was turned on Yihing after the Chekiang commander had withheld fire in response to a petition of the townspeople and disclosed this was a ruse to enable the Kiangsu army to bring up reinforcements.

It was admitted the Chekiang troops suffered unimportant losses when Junko on Si Lake transporting them were subjected to a heavy fire.

A report from Kiangsu source said a flotilla of these Junkos had been sunk by artillery.

TIENHSIN, Sept. 15.—Despite Mukden reports of outpost fighting between Manchurian troops of Chang Tso-lin and Peking soldiers of Wu Pei-fu at Shan-hai-kuan and Hsien-feng-ho, it was stated here that no fighting had occurred. But, with many troops moving northwest, it is admitted the situation is critical.

Twelve full troop trains moved through here for the Manchurian border in twenty-four hours. Ordinary traffic is delayed half a day.

RELIGIOUS STRIFE GROWS ALARMING CLASHES BETWEEN HINDUS AND MUSLIMS MORE BITTER Recent Street Fight in India Reported One of Worst in History of the Country

DELHI, Sept. 15.—The religious animosity between Hindus and Muslims which has been growing for some time has now reached fever heat throughout India and there is the alarming possibility of its spreading over the Northwestern frontier, where the natives already are restless enough.

Disturbance occurred a few days ago at Laohat, which resulted in one of the worst Hindu-Muslim clashes in India's history. Ten Muslims were killed and twenty wounded in the clash, while ten Hindus were killed and eight wounded. Three policemen who intervened were wounded.

The trouble apparently was due to the circulation in Laohat of copies of a blasphemous poem aimed against the Muslims.

Four Prices Advanced LONDON, Sept. 15.—London flour millers today advanced the price of flour a shilling to 49s per sack of 250 pounds.

Seize German Ship With Arms And Munitions

DURBAN, South Africa, Sept. 15.—Customs authorities here are holding under armed guard the 1,400-ton steamer Nordmark, which sailed from Hamburg, in port of registry. One thousand rifles, a number of machine guns and a large quantity of ammunition, all undeclared on board the vessel, it is assumed by customs officials that the war material was destined for a Chinese port.

FALSE HOPE WILL NOT BUILD CANADA

FADRE CANON SCOTT CRITICIZES IMMIGRATION POLICY

Dr. Farthing Urges Government to Spend Its Money at Home and Save $400,000 Now Wasted

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—At a meeting of the Anglican Social Service Council here today, Canon F. G. Scott, Bishop of Quebec, a noted war-time padre, in opposition to the policy of immigration, declared: "We must admit Canada is today being carried on a big bluff. We cannot build a country on false hopes; we must get to rock bottom. There is no use saying we should bring Britishers out here to go on farms. They won't do it."

"They are doing it in my province," interrupted a member from Alberta. Dr. Farthing, Montreal, urged the adoption of a resolution calling on the Government to spend its money in Canada and hold Canadian citizens here rather than spend $400,000 in attempting to attract back to their homes Canadians who had crossed the line.

Declares Montreal Worst Crime Centre in Canada

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—Montreal is the worst crime centre in Canada, according to H. R. Dupuis, manager of the casualty department of an insurance company here, announcing the imminent further increase in the already high cost of burglary policies. He said burglary insurance is 25 per cent higher here than in Toronto. Dupuis said a number of companies had discontinued writing this class of risk.

Prince Comes Home to Keep Holiday in Canada

General Byng Will Board Royal Train to Welcome Heir to Imperial Crown, but That Will Be Only Official Event of Prince's Visit to His Western Ranch—Personal Qualities of Kindness and Tact Endear Him to Hearts of All Canadians

(By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—The Prince of Wales will return to Canada in a few days without flourish of trumpet. He asks no more pretentious delegation to welcome him than a little group of men who are in charge of his train. Somewhere in Ontario his old friend, the one time head of Canada's army and now Governor-General, will board the train to welcome the Prince of Wales back to Canada. Beyond that there will be no official events, and His Royal Highness will journey to Alberta as a private Canadian citizen on his way home.

In Canada the Prince is regarded with less of the wondering curiosity which met him in the United States this year. But to those who were privileged to meet him five years ago at that now famous tour which marked the beginning of his career as an "Ambassador of Empire," it will be very interesting to note what changes the last five years have wrought in him. For instance, does he still reach instinctively when he sits down to the table for that piece of bread which was reduced as the meal progressed into the smallest crumbs and surrounded his plate on all sides? Does he retain that uncanny facility for talking bridges to the engineer at his right, while he keeps up the conversation on stamp-collecting with another member of the party?

An Canadians Remember The Prince is probably better remembered by Canadians for such traits and for his conversational gift than for the many foundation stones he laid in that first memorable tour of the Dominion. The foundation stones will be for posterity, milestones of his journeying in Canada, but his contemporaries will remember better the thousand little acts of kindness, which under the circumstances he might have been readily forgiven for overlooking. In fact, he is probably remembered best by those who have witnessed the 1919 tour for some unconventional act or word which disconcerted officialdom and delighted the spectators. The present writer remembers an occasion when he added to the stiff-hatted group on the official platform an old lady who was struggling to keep her place near the front of the crowd outside the magic circle. He was not too preoccupied with his silver travel and the carefully worded greetings of the Mayor to notice that this old woman was being crushed between the police cordon in front and the pushing crowd behind. In the middle of the Mayor's speech, he suddenly thrust out a hand between a couple of people in the front row and drew the old lady out of the crowd into the free space behind him. He tempered the old lady's embarrassment with a smile and a pat on the shoulder. The smooth flow of the Mayor's speech was not interrupted but the incident left its effect on the spectators.

An Unconventional Prince On such a visit as the present one, there will be more opportunity for these little unconventional acts. He is still young enough to be hedged Continued on Page 4

PHILADELPHIANS RIOT OVER FACISTI

Welcome to Italian Flier Occasions Pitched Battle Between Supporters and Antagonists

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—Eight men were arrested tonight for riotous demonstrations over Lieutenant Antonio Locatelli, Italian aviator, who developed into a pitched battle between Facisti and anti-Facisti sympathizers.

Leaving the city hall where he was greeted by Mayor Kenrick, Lieutenant Locatelli was met with mingled shouts of "Viva Locatelli" and "Down with Locatelli and the Facisti," from the jammed sidewalks. The aviator was hurried to an automobile and taken to the Hotel Commodore where the Philadelphia Facisti Society had prepared a banquet. Before his arrival, the streets for two blocks in all directions were crowded with milling men and women. As his car drew up before the hotel the cries broke out again. Guards hurried Locatelli into the establishment, as the fight started and the disturbance became general. Reserves from a nearby police station were called out and dispersed the crowd.

Wild Ride Through Forest Fire Saves Fifty Men's Lives

Heroic Engineers of Two Logging Locomotives at Port Angeles Boldly Plunge Into Mile of Flame and Smoke to Rescue Party of Workers Supposed to Be Trapped

MAN OVERCOME ROLLS OFF BUT IS RESCUED ALMOST UNHURT

PORT ANGELES, Sept. 15.—With flames licking at the locomotives and cars, and with men blistered from heat and smoke, two Climax locomotives of the Snow Creek Logging Company ran through one mile of flames and smoke at full speed shortly after noon today, and fifty men, thought at first to be trapped, are safe at Blyn, twenty-five miles east of here. With a mile-wide fire licking at the track between them and safety, the two locomotives made a run for it. The "Two Spot," Engineer Elmer Ahola, with two logging trucks loaded with men, struck the fire first, closely followed by the "Four Spot," Engineer Fred Kachenheimer.

With handkerchiefs over their noses and eyes, the loggers, worn out by two nights of fire fighting, flattened themselves out on the engine tanks and logging trucks as the train plunged into the blaze.

Just as they finished the wild ride, Tommy O'Brien, a hook tender, overcome by smoke, rolled from the logging car with the train going twenty miles an hour. He suffered a bad cut in his head, but was not otherwise injured.

Arctic Explorer Reaches Sydney Homeward Bound SYDNEY, N. S. W., Sept. 15.—The schooner Bowdoin, with the explorer, Captain Donald B. MacMillan, and seven companions aboard, arrived in port safely tonight on the way back to the United States after a fifteen months' sojourn in the Arctic. The vessel was reported today as having encountered a severe storm off the coast.

WATER AT SOOKE AND JORDAN RIVER AT LOWEST LEVEL

The water in Sooke Lake has reached the lowest level on record, City Engineer Preston stated yesterday. The surface of the water is six feet below the top of the spillway as a result of the continued dry weather. There is little danger, however, of a shortage of water. If not another drop of rain should fall for a year there would still be sufficient water in the lake to meet the city's normal demand for that period of time, Mr. Preston said.

The B. C. Electric Railway may be forced to use steam power at the reserve station, Brentwood, instead of hydro-electric energy, owing to the reduced volume of water at Jordan River, it was learned yesterday, but such a development would not interfere with the efficiency of service in any way.

CHICAGO WELCOMES FLYING NAMESAKE

U.S. WORLD AVIATORS ARE ENTHUSIASTICALLY RECEIVED

Crowds Stand Barchheaded as Planes Alight, and City Tenders the Visitors Public Banquet

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—First of cities to greet her winged namesake, Chicago today took Lieutenant Lowell Smith and his world circling flier to her bosom, stood with bared head while the planes figuratively unraveled more of the red, white and blue thread they have spun around the globe, gave them great ovations as humble homage and tonight tendered them food and drink at a public banquet. From the moment Lieutenant Smith and his flagplane Chicago completed the hop from Dayton to Maywood airport at 12:55, daylight saving time, he, with his companion pilots, Lieutenant Erik Nelson, in the New Orleans, and Lieutenant Leigh Wade, in the Boston II, received all that the city could give them.

Tomorrow at 3 a.m., central time, they are scheduled to leave their way again to Omaha, an air distance of 440 miles.

To Represent President SEATTLE, Sept. 15.—President Calvin Coolidge has officially designated Major-General Charles G. Morton, Ninth Corps area commander, the Presidio, San Francisco, as his representative at the reception of the American Army globe-encircling aviators on the completion of their trip at Sand Point aviation field, north-east of here, the Seattle Chamber of Commerce announced on receipt of a letter from C. Bascom Slemm, secretary to the President.

NO CLUE FOUND IN JANET SMITH CASE

CLOTHING FOUND IN FURNACE TO BE SUBMITTED TO TESTS

In spite of $2,000 Reward Offered for Guilty One, Nothing New Has Developed

VANCOUVER, Sept. 15.—With a standing offer made by Attorney-General Manson of $2,000 for the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Janet Smith, maid at the Baker home, Shaughnessy Heights, who was found dead on July 28 last, the police are still without a definite clue to the tragedy. It was thought the reward might induce the Chinese gardener attached to the Baker home to come forward and tell what he might know. So far he has not done so. Police officials held another consultation today, but it is understood no arrest or drastic action is imminent.

Meanwhile, a Vancouver merchant deeply interested in the case has offered an additional reward for the solution of the crime, and this, it is believed, may still further be increased by the Scottish societies, which have been very active in the probe.

The remains of garments found in the furnace on Friday will be subjected to microscopic and chemical tests in order to discover whether they carry bloodstains.

The rumor that the girl was found dead in a party dress is dispelled by the fact that both inquests showed the body clothed in the ordinary denim garments worn by Miss Smith when at work.

FLAMING GASOLINE TERRIFIES PEOPLE

SHEET OF FIRE SPREADS OVER MONTEREY BAY

California City Threatened by Explosion of Huge Tank, But Tide Flows Menace Out to Sea

MONTEREY, Cal., Sept. 15.—At 4:10 o'clock this afternoon, a huge subterranean gasoline tank, in the heart of the area burned over in yesterday's fire, north of here, exploded, its blazing contents spreading over Monterey Bay and again threatening the town of Monterey.

The flaming gasoline spread over a circle roughly half a mile wide on the surface of the waters and burned up several fishing boats in its path as the tide bore it seaward. A crowd of fishermen manned the remaining boats and managed to navigate them to safety.

The sea of flame approached close to Monterey, and it was feared for a time that the town was doomed, as a brisk off-shore wind was blowing. Hundreds lined the shores, awed at the terrifying sight.

The tide bore the flaming sheet of gasoline seaward, however, and in half an hour after it began, it was burning itself out a half mile from shore. The tank, ripped open by the force of the explosion, continued to burn, but the field was clean swept of other inflammable property by yesterday's fire, and no spread of the flames was expected.

Whiskey Seller Fined SASKATON, Sept. 15.—Too many people were flocking into the Neutral Cafe here, so the police followed. They arrested Emma Hayes, colored waitress, who was doing a roaring trade with small glasses of whiskey at fifty cents a "shot." Emma was fined $100 and costs.

KIOTO, Japan, Sept. 15.—More than 25,000 farmers participated in a prayer ceremony held recently in Fushimi County, Kyoto, Prefecture, to pray to the ancient Shinto deities to send rain. Drought has been threatening the Western and Southern part of Japan with serious rice crop shortages this year. The drought is causing quarrels among farming communities in various parts of Southern Japan, where the water supply is inadequate. ## PROPOSE AIRCRAFT TO EXPLORE ARCTIC

COMMANDER OF U.S. CUTTER BEAR FAVORS ATTEMPT

Conditions in May and June Favorable in Area Between Cape Barrow and Pole

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—A possible aircraft expedition to explore the million unknown square miles between Point Barrow and the North Pole apparently would encounter the "most favorable" conditions in May and June, Captain Robert A. Bartlett, commander of the historic coastguard cutter Bear, said in a statement issued today by the National Geographic Society.

Capt. Bartlett, who was with Peary in his successful voyage to the Pole, and who accompanied Stefansson into the Arctic regions in the exploration ship Karluk, turned over to the society much data gathered last winter when the Bear, during a cruise to northern waters, was caught in an ice jam and drifted for 47 days through Bering Strait to the Arctic Ocean. Observations showed that wind velocities did not exceed eleven miles an hour, the captain said, adding: "There were no storms, the temperatures were moderate, the ice was broken up brightly, and all conditions seemed most favorable in May and June for the launching of aircraft exploration."

LANDS HIS CRIMINAL AFTER LENGTHY CHASE

French Detective Goes Half Way Round the World for Him and Finds Him in Annam Jungle

PARIS, Sept. 15.—This is the story of a Paris detective who travelled half way around the world for his quarry, and finally, in the dense jungle of Annam, threw aside his disguise and arrested his man, who is now doing three years in jail.

As related here, an antiquary named Mairaux was under the observation of the Paris police, suspected of being responsible for some recent thefts from French museums. It was thought he had designs on collections of antiquities in one of the French provinces, and as a matter of routine a detective was assigned to trail Mairaux and a companion, wherever they might go. The pair went to a seaport and there took passage on a steamer for Saigon, French Indo-China, and the detective went along on the same vessel. He did not even have time to buy a change of clothing, but made friends among the crew and borrowed what he needed.

At Saigon Mairaux and his friend posed as rich travelers anxious to see the country, while the detective slunked around in the background. He had, however, made known his mission to the local French authorities, and when Mairaux asked for guides to the remote districts of Annam, the detective was among the natives assigned, but cleverly disguised. The party ascended the region on Angkor, rich in holy relics and fine specimens of old Chinese art, and Mairaux and his companion bought freely. Also the detective, heeding conditions being favorable, to burglarize Annamite temples for particularly fine specimens.

The border of Siam was not far away, and the collectors, having decided to leave the country by that route, called up the native guides and dismissed them. Then the Paris detective had his day. The humble disguise was cast aside, the French policeman stepped out, and Mairaux and his friend were placed under arrest. The case was tried at Phnom-penh, Cochinchina, and Mairaux had no defence. It came out, during the trial, that his antiquities were destined for a New York antiquary, and were worth 1,000,000 francs.

BUMP CONSTABLES' CAR INTO DITCH

Would-Be Robbers Headed Off in Break for Liberty, But Successfully Dodge Police

COOKSVILLE, Ont., Sept. 15.—Two constables fired thirteen bullets Sunday morning at a car containing three men who had attempted to rob a local hardware store. The men beat a hasty retreat towards Toronto after W. J. Turner, a garage man across the street, who heard the men trying to enter the shop, rushed out with a revolver in his hand and ordered them to halt. The men ignored the command and made a break for their car and escaped in a hall of bullets. County constables who were immediately notified gave chase in their car and succeeded in getting ahead of the fugitives, but the robbers' car bumped the constables' car into the ditch. They continued their flight and are still uncaptured.

RAINY WEATHER RETARDS HARVEST

THRESHING HELD UP IN SECTIONS OF PRAIRIES

Southern Manitoba Crops About Three-Quarters Harvested—Warm Bright Sun Now Helps Work

WINNIPEG, Sept. 15.—A week of dull, wet weather suspended harvesting operations in many sections of the three Prairie Provinces, and the general situation today is about as it was last Monday. The skies now have cleared, however, and beneath a warm, bright sun the grain in stacks has a chance to dry out and the uncut fields an opportunity to ripen. If the fine weather continues cutting and threshing will be resumed in many sections not later than tomorrow.

With favorable conditions cutting should be almost completed in the southern sections by the end of this week. In the central and northern sections there are large areas where the grain still is very green, and several days of sunshine are necessary for ripening.

Southern Manitoba is about seventy-five per cent threshed, and is the farthest advanced of any part. Some threshing has been done in Southern Saskatchewan and Alberta, but it is not general. Cutting should be completed in Central Alberta in ten days, it is reported, but comparatively no threshing has been done yet.

Say School Curricula Should Be Practical

Success in Business Made by Many Without Educational Advantages, Say Centennial Church Speakers—Exodus of Native-Born and Employment of Foreigners Regarded as Significant Reflection on Economic Conditions Here

At the meeting held on Sunday afternoon in the Centennial Methodist Church some very interesting sidelights connected with the subject of school curricula were given by the speakers of the afternoon. The intention of those in charge of the meeting is to continue to hold these Sunday afternoon meetings throughout the winter, varying them somewhat so that lectures may be on the programme on some occasions and on other afternoons other forms of dealing with questions connected with the social and spiritual life of the community may be introduced.

In the absence of Mr. T. Menzies, ex-M.P.P., the chair was occupied by Mr. R. E. Collins, recording steward of the church, who has taken a very active part in the initiation of these meetings.

Councillor F. Simpson, of Saanich, alluded to the fact that many men who were making a success in business had not had great advantages in the way of education in the schools. He sometimes wondered what would have been the result had these men had the added advantages of education. He felt that much of the high school education of the present day was lost in after life. Then again, the cost of education was too great, and in this connection he made the suggestion that at least the Western Provinces might use and use the same text books, thus lightening the load.

The essentials should, he thought, receive more attention in connection with the training. He stated, quoting that of the young men who took a course in the agricultural colleges, only a per cent came back and made a living off the land.

It was a lamentable fact that this country with its tremendous resources was obliged to bring in foreigners to occupy the land while the Canadian-born left the country.

Patriotic Songs
Councillor Simpson advocated the teaching of political economy in the schools. There should be real patriotism taught the youth, and in this connection he advocated the teaching of patriotic songs in connection with the musical course that should be given. No difference where they might come from or what love there was still for the old land which might have been the place of birth of many, there should be inculcated in the young a pride in Canada, the land where they lived and made their homes.

Mr. B. C. Nicholas explained that he was taking the place of Mr. Carl Penderay, who had intended to speak upon the subject of what business expanded of the schools. He did not feel that he could deal with the subject as intended, but gave some views with regard to education. He pointed out that some of the most outstanding leaders in the line of business of the largest kind had been men who had had little more than the fundamentals taught them in the schools. When all was said, business demands in young men character and the ability to use the knowledge that had been imparted for the development along the lines of business. Qualities entered every largely into the matter from the standpoint of the businessmen. Integrity and courage were essential if young men were to succeed.

Cost of Education
On the part of business there was sometimes a criticism of the cost of education. The most precious thing was education and he felt that there was not much justice in the criticism of the cost. When $12,000,000 was spent at the Government vendors for liquor, should there be much criticism if a few millions were spent on education? Should there be criticism either when it is taken into account that tremendous sums were spent on horse racing? The greatest asset of the country was its youth.

Civilization had seen the wreck of the world during the past few years. The present generation could not read the world to its former position. The next generation would have to grapple with that question. It was essential, therefore, that the coming generation be equipped as fully as possible for it by mental and moral training.

Navy's Needs
Commander Beard, R.C.N., was accorded a hearty reception when he came to outline what the requirements of the navy were in the matter of educational training. He said that when all was said the navy was just a combination of people who had to be trained along special lines in no small way. The training was of a technical character as far as the training strictly for the navy was concerned.

There was a great deal of misunderstanding with respect to the work. Ninety per cent of the training of the navy was for preservation and not for killing. The latter part of the work was a small part of it. The protection of trade was the thing that was in view.

In the work that there was in hand here boys were drawn from all parts of the country, and they were for the most part good boys. He outlined the different duties demanded of these boys in training for the navy. A great part of this was of a technical nature and was for the benefit of the nation only. In view of this fact it was only natural that the nation as a whole should bear the cost of this training.

State's Share
Mr. J. Hinchliffe, M.P.P., dealt with the question of what the state should do in the matter of education. Viewed in the abstract there was an ideal education. He was not in a position to say what that should be, but if it could be evolved there arose the further question as to how far the state should pay for this. Sooner or later the state would be called upon to face this issue.

At the same time it was impossible for the state to give an ideal education, as it could never give the moral education that was so important in this ideal education. The speaker referred in this connection to the fact that under the statutes of British Columbia the state refused the giving of education in religion.

Religious Education
Later, in reply to questions that were submitted, Mr. Hinchliffe pointed out that it seemed almost impossible to get to a point of agreement in the Province as to what religious education should consist of in the schools. The present trend of thought went to show that if one differed with the church to which one belonged, the tendency was to establish a new religious denomination. Whatever was agreed upon as being the part of the state to give instruction in there should be an understanding that everyone should have the same right and equal opportunity to obtain it.

He also was of the opinion that education should not try to force all into the same mold. There should be some attempt to individualize. He was of the opinion that too much time was often wasted in trying to bring young people up to something for which they were not adapted.

L. & L. GLACIER MAKES PROGRESS STEADILY

Mr. Frank Breeze Has Returned From Stewart and Visits the City

Mr. Frank Breeze, well-known mining man, who is interested in the L. & L. Glacier property at Stewart, was in the city yesterday. He has just returned from the North, where work is being carried on in connection with this property. He says that everything in the Stewart Camp has been of a most promising character this summer and the camp has been making good progress.

On the property with which he is identified, the ore body was located up the mountain, and in order to prove up the body, work was started on driving a tunnel in at one hundred feet below the original showing. This work is in progress, and is being carried along with as much expedition as possible and with good prospects of success.

The property is located about four miles from a wagon road, and a good trail leads up to the works.

Gibbon's Garden Falls Into Decay

"While in Switzerland recently, I paid a visit to Lausanne to see what it contained of Gibbon," says a writer in The Times. "The result was a feeling of shame and disappointment. A large bank has now replaced the hotel which, until three or four years ago, occupied part of the site of his retreat on the Leman Lake. Gibbon had died as a monument under the title of the Hotel Gibbon."

"The famous garden in which, to quote from his autobiography, he took several turns in a covered walk of acacias on the day or rather night, of June 27, 1787, between the hours of 11 and 12, to commemorate his departure from the vast labours of the Decline and Fall, in a state of lamentable confusion, overgrown with weeds, and strewn with the refuse of recent building construction. No memorial is in evidence to record the fact that in this city our greatest historian, probably the greatest historian of all time, lived and worked for many years."

"Cannot something be done, some national effort be made, to do justice to ourselves by honoring this great one of our race? If the work were taken in hand immediately a considerable portion of Gibbon's garden might yet be acquired and permanently enclosed, perhaps the most fitting memorial to his connection with the place and of his own immortal work."

FINES REACH NEARLY THOUSAND DOLLARS

Classification of Chinese Under Arbitrary Test as to Whether Onlookers or Players

As a result of the raid on the premises known as the Dai Fat Club, in Chinatown, the city is richer by $950 taken in fines assessed against the seventy-seven who were in the place when raided on Saturday night. The inmates of the club were divided on representations made by Mr. W. C. Moresby into two classes and accordingly the fines inflicted were differentiated. The one class comprised those admitted to be persons who had gathered for the purpose of gambling and the other came under the heading of curious persons who gathered in the place largely because they had nowhere else in particular to go.

In order to avoid the lengthy process of attempting to prove by evidence just what the motives of the several persons were, a unique method was adopted and carried out by the chief of police and members of his force and Mr. W. C. Moresby, counsel for the Chinamen.

Three Dollar Limit
For classification purposes it was decided to accept as those having gambling in their minds all who had $3 and upwards in their possession when searched at the police station. Those having less than $3 were placed in the class of simple onlookers.

The result of this separation of the seventy-seven was that forty-one came under the class of onlookers about the place, while the other thirty-six under this arbitrary method of separating them fell under the classification of gamblers.

Magistrate Jay, upon a plea of guilty being put in, fined the thirty-six at the rate of $15 each and the other forty-one at the rate of $10 each.

Idle Chinamen
In making a plea on behalf of his client, Mr. Moresby called the attention of the magistrate to the fact that there were about 300 idle Chinamen in the city at present. The only place these men had to congregate was about Fan Tan Alley. There were three tables of fan tan in progress at this place and there would, he thought, be about twelve players at each table. The remaining men who were about were without money and were there because they had nothing else to do. He therefore asked that there be discrimination made with respect to these men. Not more than 25 per cent of them would be able to pay the fine in any event. These fines would have to be met by friends of theirs.

Chief Fry told of the conditions that were met with by the police in making entrance into the place. It had been carefully guarded and there had been barriers of all kinds to keep out the police, and guard against surprise. When they got in the occupants were destroying lottery tickets and some were thrust out through the bars of the windows.

It turned out that two of those taken had nothing in their pockets, while fourteen had less than a dollar. The arbitrary division under the $3 test strangely enough tallied with the figures as given by Mr. Moresby in making an appeal for discrimination.

A bill establishing compulsory military service for all men has been approved in Constantinople.

ON A SOUND BUSINESS BASIS

BRITISH COLUMBIA PUBLIC SHOULD NOT DEPART FROM EQUITABLE METHODS

A Third of the Province's Annual Revenue in the Balance

IN dealing with its business men the public of British Columbia should be guided by business principles.

The public's equity in the forest wealth of this Province is fully recognized by the lumbermen. This is proved by the fact that during the last 20 years the people have collected $45,000,000 from the timber holders and industry in rents and royalties.

By collecting one-third of their total annual revenue from the lumber industries the British Columbia public are certainly doing a good stroke of business.

There is no more satisfactory type of capitalist to attract to a young country like British Columbia than the man who is prepared to invest money in the development of its natural resources.

The public has again shown its business acumen by pledging its good faith to a group of the most solid and patient timber investors in existence.

The present position is that the lumber industry is taxed to the utter-most, and that any further impost will undoubtedly force it into bankruptcy. Also the investors in our lumber are becoming very nervous indeed at the prospect of heavier levies.

If the public of British Columbia wish to stick to sound business principles they will avoid overtaxing their basic industry and disillusioning their investors.

A third of the public's income is dependent on the ability of its representatives to handle satisfactorily the present taxation situation in the lumber industry.

nicated by the Timber Industries
Council of British Columbia.

IMPRESSIVE RITES AT TEMPLE CEREMONY

Dr. Clem Davies Initiates Six Hundred Charter Members in Church

The first group of candidates was received into charter membership at the Victoria City Temple at the morning service on Sunday, when Rev. Dr.
Clem Davies, the pastor, officiated at an impressive ceremony which placed the names of six hundred members in the big Bible on the pulpit.

The ceremony, which, because undenominational, has had no exact counterpart in the history of Victoria, was not only unusual but exceptionally interesting. The choir formed itself into a group which encircled the pulpit, and led in the singing of the consecration hymn, "Rest Be the Thou That Binds," after which the pastor spoke for a few minutes about the programme which the Temple members must hold in view: "To go into the highways and byways" and bring back those estranged from the church.
"We are not radicals, at least not in the accepted view," he told his congregation. "Under God we shall try to make the best of a situation which has been thrust upon us. Our supreme ideal will be to give ourselves as an organization, socially, religiously and in every way to the City of Victoria in service."

tive of Boy Scout work, was killed

North Bend, Washington, according to a report from the Denny ranger station. The young man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Sparks, live

CONTEST OPENS INN, OKANAGAN

Conservatives Fire First Guns Against Citadel of Newly Appointed Provincial Secretary at Penticton

UNITED OPPOSITION FACES NEW MINISTER

Acting Premier Expresses His Indignation at Activity of Conservatives in Contesting Election

GLOWING reports of the opening meeting of the Conservative campaign in North Okanagan, held at Lumby on Saturday, have been received at the party headquarters in Victoria, and indications are that the contest will evolve into the closest and hardest fought political battle of the year.

Hon. J. D. MacLean, acting Premier in the absence of Hon. John Oliver in Ottawa, and Hon. W. H. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works, left on yesterday afternoon's boat for the Mainland en route to North Okanagan and it has been stated that the entire available membership of the Oliver cabinet would wend its way to the disputed riding if in the charge of the Liberal campaign there thought it advisable.

Dr. K. C. MacDonald, the newly appointed Provincial Secretary, whose elevation to that portfolio has automatically thrown the North Okanagan riding open for the by-election which has been set for September 24, claims he is quite satisfied with the prospects for his return, and in telegrams sent by him to his colleagues in Victoria anticipates no difficulty in duplicating the success of Premier Oliver in the by-election held recently in Nelson.

United Opposition

On the other hand, the Conservatives build much faith of victory on the enthusiastic contribution of the riding last Thursday when Mr.
Arthur O. Cochrane was nominated, and pledged the support of all three candidates who opposed the Liberal Donald in the general election held last June. Mr. Cochrane is one of the most popular of the old-time citizens of the North Okanagan constituency, and he and his friends believe that he will be given support from the followers of the three candidates who were defeated by Dr.
MacDonald.

Mr. J. S. F. Toynie, M.P., federal Conservative organizer, who is vitally interested in the Yale by-election, is counted on to offset the activities of federal Liberals who believe that with federal issues looming in the background the protection sentiments of the Okanagan fruit-growers will lead them to vote for Mr. Cochrane.

In comparing the North Okanagan contest with that held in Nelson, it is pointed out that Dr. MacDonald is not the Premier and the three candidates who opposed him in the general election were not Labor men whose supporters usually vote the Liberal ticket when there is no Labor man in the field. The Conservatives also believe that the appeal of a cabinet minister will not carry as much weight as ordinarily, because as they see it, the election of a Conservative would hasten the ultimate downfall of the Liberal Government, in which case the cabinet ministers would be chosen from the Conservative ranks and not the Liberal.

The General Election

If results obtained in the last general election, so far as North Okanagan was concerned, can be taken as a criterion of present beliefs, Dr.
MacDonald is faced with anything but rosy prospects. In that campaign there were four candidates in the riding, Dr. MacDonald securing a substantial plurality over his leading rival. However, the total vote polled by any two of his opponents was greater than that which he received.
In the present occasion the Conservatives hope to amalgamate the support given last June to three candidates, behind one, Mr. Arthur Cochrane.

Reports from the Mainland state that the Liberals are basing their hopes of victory on six grounds.

First, they hold that residents of the interior are usually keen to be represented by a cabinet minister.
Second, Premier Oliver overcame a somewhat similar handicap in Nelson recently.

Third, the Premier's election cleared the political atmosphere and created a disposition on the part of the people to let the Government carry on without undue interference.

Fourth, the recent federal by-election victories in Quebec have greatly heartened the federal Liberals in their hopes of capturing the Yale seat, and will consequently cause them to throw themselves into the North Okanagan fight with rejuvenated energy in order that their chances of success at Yale be not weakened.

Minister Indignant

Hon. Dr. MacLean, acting Premier, interviewed before he boarded yesterday's boat for Vancouver, waxed indignant that the Conservative Party should have offered opposition to the return of Dr. MacDonald in North Okanagan. He thought the new Provincial Secretary should have been confirmed in his new position by acclamation, and characterized the present action shown by the Conservatives as "unreasonable."

"There is no issue involved in the by-election," Dr. MacLean said. "The Government was returned to power only three months ago and since then no new policy has been announced.
Besides, Dr. MacDonald has been elected in three successive elections and only recently received a large plurality. It is nothing short of an outrage that Dr. MacDonald should be called upon to fight a by-election now."

Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, who has recently returned from North Okanagan, contradicted reports that Conservative and independent voters in the riding would unite in their opposition to Dr. Mac-Donald. In regard to Dr. MacDonald's appointment to a cabinet position, Mr. Pattullo said that the portfolio was conferred on him in recognition of his long public and party service.

OBITUARIES

CAPILANO DISPUTE DEVELOPS IMPASSE

CAUSE IS OVERSHADOWED BY EFFECT PRODUCED

Cabinet Must Decide Limits of Power Wielded by Solid Vancouver Bloc
in Timber Controversy

All has not been said or done in connection with the proposed sale of a section of timberland in the Capila-no watershed from which the city of Vancouver draws its water supply, according to talk at the Parliament Buildings yesterday.

The attitude, adopted by Mr.
Charles Woodward, one of the Liberal members for Vancouver, who issued an ultimatum to the Government giving it the choice of either abandoning its intention of selling the timberland or accepting his resignation and also the open disapproval of the Liberal bloc of Vancouver City, have caused intense apprehension in the Cabinet, and resulted in the cause of the dispute becoming overshadowed by the effect produced and the effect threatened.

It was said yesterday that the question will constitute a subject of discussion by the Cabinet immediately following Premier Oliver's return to the Capital, and from statements made, the members of that body are not all agreed upon the course to be pursued.

The big issue to be faced is not whether the Capilano timberland shall be sold, but whether the solid Vancouver bloc is to possess the self-imposed power of veto over actions of the Provincial Cabinet which concern constituencies represented by the members of the bloc.

It's a case of a show-down, and some of the ministers insist that there be plain dealing and no side-stepping.
It is considered a very real issue and one that must be settled once and permanently.

They feel that if Mr. Woodward and his colleagues can force the hand of the Government on a timber deal, they can do the same on any other question, and consequently there is no telling where their power, if allowed to go unchecked, will end. Also, it is felt that if the Government has to consult every private member of the House before it takes any action involving that member's constituency, then the established method of Government in British Columbia is due for failure.

NEW MAP PICTURES SOUTH OF PROVINCE

An interesting map of Southern British Columbia, covering from lat-tude 51 to the international boundary and including the Dominion railway belt, has just been issued by the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa. In the railway belt area the disposition of land is shown, also the timber berths and grazing inasgranted, while forest reserves, national parks and Indian reserves are indicated clearly.

A further striking feature of the map is the showing, by means of red coloring, of data regarding the natural resources of each locality, thus affording a bird's-eye view of the principal industries of each district.

Here is the way to glistening teeth that dentists now advise

It removes that dingy film from your teeth. It clears cloudy teeth. Start beautifying your teeth today—why wait?

MODERN science now tells us how to clean and brighten dingy teeth. A new way, widely argued by leading dentists of the world. Different in formula, action and effect, it does what no other method has yet attained—removes and combats, without harsh grit, the dangerous film that covers teeth, and which old-type dentifrices do not fight successfully. Run your tongue across your teeth. You will feel that film. Under it are the prettier, whiter teeth you envy in others. If you combat that film, your teeth will quickly gladden in a way that will delight you. Ask your druggist for a tube of Pepsodent. Results will amaze you.

The Great Enemy of Teeth Film is the great enemy of tooth beauty. And a chief cause, according to the world's dental authorities, of pyorrhea and most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the million breed in it. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay. You can't have prettier, whiter teeth unless you combat that film. Mail the coupon now. Don't expect the same results from old-type dentifrices. Begin beautifying your teeth today.

about with monitors of whom he is invariably considered. But at times he traversed their authority even on the official tour. There was one occasion when he failed to turn up at a reception in his honor in a Western town and was found playing cards at the Returned Soldiers' Club, from which his "fellow members" flatly refused to release him. On another occasion, he slipped away from a civic reception and ran down a mountain side to take in a picture show in a little town in the valley. The manager of the theatre put out the sign reading "Come in and see this show with the Prince of Wales." But all his potential patrons were on the hill attending the reception, and the querry who went to look for the Prince to tell him that the train was behind schedule refused to be "had" by the sign, and passed the theatre by.

At one of the few informal dances he was able to attend, a girl from Philadelphia was so eager to get a "close-up" that she crowded him in the dancing floor and collided with him. "I've bumped the Prince," she told her partner gleefully. "I may not be able to tell the folks I danced with him, but I bumped him."

Placed Him at Ease—A newspaper man came to the royal train one night to learn the result of a certain conference of the official party which was just breaking up. Everything else had obviously finished their nightcaps, and when a servant placed a glass before the new arrival, he hesitated to accept the implied invitation. The Prince was talking to his Chief of Staff, but he was quick to extend a cordial invitation. "I'll have one with you," he said heartily.

At an age when most young men take favors for granted, and prizes might easily take them as their prerogative, the Prince of Wales was always at great pains to show his gratitude for the attention which was showered upon him. When the oldest inhabitant of North Bay was presented to him, he met her more than halfway and said: "It's awfully kind of you to have come a long way to welcome me. I hope it hasn't tired you too much." And he talked with her of her family affairs as if they concerned him more than anything else.

On another occasion, he strolled in to his secretary's stateroom and found there a newspaper which had not expected to meet the Prince himself. While the scribe was coddling his brains for a fitting opening for the unexpected and valuable interview, which was to gladden the heart of his city editor, the Prince effectively broke the ice by exclaiming: "Is that Dundas and McGill you got? I've got the tobacco that goes best with it." And the talk was on.

An Excellent Listener—The Prince is an excellent listener. Thereby he has gained not a little of his popularity for a more widely diffused knowledge than he could possibly possess. He has a faculty for making you talk about yourself, displaying a most intelligent interest. And when he meets you again he will remember your occupation, your hobbies, and even your prejudices. One young man, who had a part in the tour of Canada, was presented to the Prince in the early stages along with a group of other people. The Prince asked him if he was a soldier, and the answer was in the negative and the Prince's face displayed momentary disappointment. A month later, at an informal luncheon about the train, this young man happened to be at the Prince's table. His Royal Highness expressed some curiosity about the kind of spectacles the young man wore, and learned that he was not "in society." "That is why you didn't go overseas, of course," said the Prince.

He has a memory of a politician might envy, and a soldier's conviction that a hospital in Canada he picked out of a group of nurses a girl he had danced with in the war zone. He expressed the hope that the girl would dance with him at the formal function which took place in the evening. The girl replied she did not expect to be there. The Prince later asked his hostess to invite the girl, remarking that he thought she would enjoy being there. His hostess hesitated to invite the nurse, although she was not "in society." It is even said that the nurse had to borrow the dress she wore, but it was one of the red letter days in her life.

Does the Unexpected

The Prince of Wales is always doing the unexpected thing. When he signed Bar U Ranch five years ago, he indulged on the first morning in a cross-country sprint before breakfast. A solitary rider, he was on the ranch, but the cowboys, most of them from the United States, had assembled for an exhibition round-up. When the Prince trotted up, he found them rather round the cottage in which the royal party was housed. A servant had crossed from the main ranch house with the early morning tea, and the Prince, who had been of Englishman's diet. In running shorts and a sweater, the Prince was taken for one of the secretaries, and he came in for a bit of reproach. At a cowboy's opinion of tea as an eye-opener. The Prince agreed with them heartily, and asked if he might breakfast with them. "Can I come in like this?" he asked, and the meal was nearly finished before they discovered his identity.

The running pants he wore off that occasion, by the way, were afterwards stolen by some souvenir hunter among the servants at a private house he visited. When the valet reported the loss, the Prince was said to have expressed great concern that he might not be able to get another pair this side of the Atlantic.

An Amusing Incident

One of the most amusing incidents of that official tour occurred aboard the Prince's ship H.M.S. Repulse, in New York waters on the day that it sailed for home. Official America was assembled on the quarter-deck to make the farewells. Hundreds of people filed past the little platform where the Prince and his staff stood, shaking hands with each. One man carried an overcoat over his left arm. Hidden in its folds was a bottle of whisky he had been presented with as a memento of naval hospitality. It slipped out somehow, dropped to the deck, innocent of any wrappings, and rolled across the deck. It was fortunately unbroken and its owner braved a battery of grins to recover it. He took his place again in the queue. When he presently faced the Prince, his formal farewell was tinged with embarrassment, but there was a twinkle in the young man's eye and a very hospitable note in his voice as he said: "I am awfully glad you came." "So am I," the other blurted out, and there was a broad grin on both faces as they said goodbye.

There is not much likelihood that this young crusader will release into ease and comparative obscurity as the years increase on his head. He is too vivid a spirit to be embalmied in a smoking jacket. While there are still two hearts at variance he will raise the world in his appointed task as peacemaker, bringing to that task every ounce of energy he possesses and every nuance of his gentle and fascinating personality. He shakes hands so often that he has had to employ his left hand as well as his right. Perhaps, if the truth were known, he sees himself to the end of his days standing between two people and giving a hand to each.

REACH ACCORD ON SANCTIONS

mean that she would stand ready to contribute both naval and aerial forces to the service of the League in times of need. The draft pact does not partake of the nature of a Franco-British alliance in any sense, but is entirely a protocol of mutual assistance affecting all the members of the League. Nevertheless the fact that Great Britain and France have reached an accord is expected to go a long way to securing the general approval of the powers.

Benes Submits Draft—Foreign Minister Benes, of Czechoslovakia, who was charged with the work of framing the proposed pact of arbitration and security which the disarmament commission of the League of Nations assembly is endeavoring to work out, submitted his first rough draft of the pact today to a small group of prominent delegates, including Lord Parmoor and Arthur Henderson of the British delegation, Louis Locheur of France, and Signor Schanzer of Italy.

This outline is based on the American suggestion to define an aggressor state as one that refuses arbitration. It gives first place to the permanent court of international justice, but it invests the council of the League with the authority by providing that it act in collaboration with the world court.

Foreign Minister Benes, presiding as a kind of impartial judge and conciliator, together with British and French representatives at the assembly of the League of Nations wrestled all today with the problem of sanctions, which forms the gravest danger in the way of a general Geneva agreement. Tonight both countries' delegations issued optimistic statements. They said the vital issues under discussion seemed on the way toward a satisfactory solution.

Meeting Private—Although today's meeting was entirely private, it is understood that one of the most difficult points of the discussion was the question of just how Great Britain will come forward with assistance to the League when any state has been declared an aggressor. The British delegation gives the impression of being somewhat alarmed over the situation engendered among continental powers by Britain's implied engagement to throw her naval forces against a proclaimed aggressor and, there seems to have been created on the part of the British representatives a distinct tendency to shrink any definite and specific commitments. Efforts today were largely centered about clarifying Article 16 of the covenant. Paragraph 11 of this article says the council shall recommend what action, military, naval or air, forces the members of the League shall severally contribute to any armed action which may be used to protect the League's objectives. The suggestion of a recommendation is hardly satisfactory to France, which wants something more definite and something strong.

Negotiations were so advanced today that Dr. Benes, with the approval of Great Britain and France, expects to submit a draft instrument tomorrow to the meeting of the sub-committee of the disarmament commission.

ROYAL OAK FAIR DRAWS BIG CROWD

WARD FIVE, SAANICH, SHOW IS OUTSTANDING SUCCESS

Nearly Six Hundred Entries Made in Different Classes—Standard
Excellent Throughout

ROYAL OAK, Sept. 15.—A record number of entries from enthusiastic exhibitors, ideal weather, and a splendid crowd of residents in attendance, all combined to make the second annual exhibition of garden produce and women's work, conducted by Ward Five, Saanich, under the auspices of Royal Oak Women's Institute, an outstanding success. Royal Oak Hall, in which the event was held on Saturday, was a scene of exhibits in each of eight sections that won the admiration of the judges and the public alike, all uniting in the opinion that the show was to the fore among the Fall exhibitions for 1924. With a prize list of 129 classes, nearly 600 entries were made. A feature of the exhibit was the excellent standard maintained in all sections.

The domestic science section, which was more particularly the work of the Institute ladies, displayed excellent exhibits in each and every class, making the work of the judges, Mrs. J. D. Gordon, of Victoria, a very difficult one. Particular mention should be made of a very beautiful crocheted quilt, exhibited by Mrs. E. Beale, and a lovely silk patchwork quilt by Mrs. Whitehead. A pair of embroidered sheets and pillow cases to match, made by Mrs. H. Thompson, won the admiration of the crowds who were present. All of these were made by Royal Oak ladies, and were not for competition.

Not to be outdone by the ladies' sections, the men presented an exhibition of vegetables and flowers and plants and fruit that would compare favorably with any other show. A display of flowers by Messrs. J. H. and H. C. Oldfield, of Elk Lake, was the cause of admiring comment throughout the day.

Opening Ceremonies
Reeve Macdonald, introduced by President Lehman, opened the event at three o'clock, and complimented the ladies of the R.O.W.I. and the committee in charge of the exhibit upon what he termed "a marvelous display from a Ward which was, for the greater part, without a water supply."

Mr. C. E. Whitney-Griffiths, secretary of the Farmers' Institutes of B.C., called upon to speak, declared that the exhibit left him wondering at the energy displayed by those responsible for the exhibit, and stated that if further proof were required of the extreme suitability of this particular section to produce fruit, flowers and seeds of the highest quality, the present exhibit amply supplied it.

Winners of the several competitions during the day were Mrs. F. W. Towler, of Elk Lake, for the best watermelon, Heale, cushion, and M. J. Allison, cake.

An interesting postal exhibit was in charge of the local postmaster, Mr. Frank Corry, who presented a display which proved enlightening to the local users of the rural mail service. Different methods of parcel-posting goods for postal delivery were shown, while a varied collection of stamps was in evidence.

The school children of Royal Oak presented a splendid display of plasticine modelling, while the children's section itself was replete with excellent examples of baking and fancy work.

Fashions and Foibles

By Shirley Shanon

At Pierre's and Sherry's and the other smart Park Avenue restaurants one sees frocks of pale French grey silk crepe, the smart Rebois felt hat, plain pumps, simpler gloves and even sheer stockings.

Grey is the new color, so new that it is extremely fashionable and also because it is so new not yet general and popular. One sees taupe, mouse and stone grey occasionally, but the smartest shade is the very clear and delicate French shade. One sees it on exclusively smart women at Pierre's and Sherry's in wool suits or silk crepe frocks and with them grey or black felt hats of the new wrap-around shape, grey suede or black pumps and very sheer grey stockings.

The Marriage Handicap

By RUBY AYRES

The story thus far: Martin Hackworth, rich, powerful, a man of affairs, carries a young woman of a girl and soon repents of the bargain. Rachel, his nature shrives from the habits of his London friends, and soon he installs her in a country house and pursues his own life, going home only for week-ends. On one of the visits he finds an anonymous letter awaiting him. "It is a dangerous thing for a man to neglect a young and attractive wife," the message vaguely dis-views him. He is the devil, and a method of conveying a warning, he knows his wife has been deceived. He has been of her time with her sister Rachel, who lives close by. While he is consulting the picture which hangs in his mind, Stephen Fodd, an elderly bachelor, a neighbor, calls in with the faint things that Rachel has died of a heart attack. Rachel is supposed to be attending a village concert with her sister—she has left a note to this effect—and presently Martin discovers that the concert has been postponed. With whom, therefore, is his wife, and where has she been if not with her sister? He demands the truth from her on her return, and when she adheres to her story he accuses her of lying. Overcome with distress Rachel rushes out into the night. She encounters Theo Freeman, a childhood friend, who offers sympathy. One of the things that has bothered Rachel is the fact that her sister, who she has left a note to this effect, and presently Martin discovers that the concert has been postponed. With whom, therefore, is his wife, and where has she been if not with her sister? He demands the truth from her on her return, and when she adheres to her story he accuses her of lying. Overcome with distress Rachel rushes out into the night. She encounters Theo Freeman, a childhood friend, who offers sympathy.

He handed her his case silently with a hand which was not quite steady, then he said abruptly: "I think you must have been mistaken. It could not have been Rachel. She is staying with an aunt—a stiff proper—what are you laughing at?" "Nothing. Go on. So you knew Rachel was in town?" "Of course."

Martin turned on his heel and walked over to the piano. His heart was beating hard with anger and bitterness, even though he was sure that if Constance was speaking the truth, she had greatly exaggerated it. He began turning over a pile of music with agitated fingers.

"What house was this?" he asked suddenly. Constance yawned, though she was not in the least tired, and from beneath her half-closed lids she was watching him sharply. "I shall not tell you. It wouldn't be fair. Don't be a dog in the manger, Martin. If you don't want her yourself, let somebody else have a chance."

His face was flushed, and there was a strange expression in his eyes. "Mrs. Gainsford should look after her better," he said at last. "She ought not to allow a girl of Rachel's age to go out alone playing cards with strange men."

"My dear Martin, I never said she was alone. As a matter of fact, Mrs. Gainsford was with her. And as for strange men, she knew one of them at least well enough to call him by his Christian name."

Martin's heart gave a quick throb of pain. "What was the name?" he asked sharply. "I believe it was Theo."

"Theo!" Martin clenched his hands into fists. He went back to where his cousin sat and bent over her. "Tell me what house it was. Whose house?"

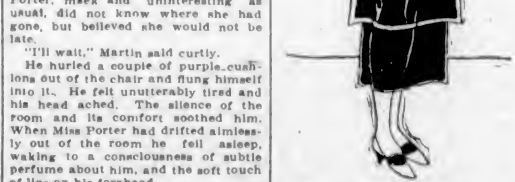

She shook her head. "I'm going. You would not be any wiser, anyway."

"Tell me!" he insisted. She playfully blew a little cloud of smoke into his face. "You can't bully me, you know, Martin."

"Can't I?" He caught her roughly by her wrist and pulled her to her feet. "We'll see about that. Tell me where—I beg your pardon. He let her go and turned away, frightened by the strength of his own anger and determination.

Tomorrow—Not at Home.

ORMONDS LIMITED VISITED BY GYROS

CLUBMEN SEE BISCUITS AND CANDIES MANUFACTURED

Local Concern's Output in 1923 Was 110 Tons of Confectionery and 474 Tons of Biscuits

Ormonds Limited, one of Victoria's industries, was inspected yesterday by members of the Victoria Gyro Club, who were shown over the concern's plant on Mary Street and saw for themselves how biscuits and candies of various kinds were manufactured. Members of the club, immediately following their weekly luncheon, at the Huxford Bay Company's private dining-room, which was presided over by Director Archie Muir, motored over to Victoria, B.C., and were greeted at the plant of Ormonds Limited by Mr. A. E. Ormond, manager; Mr. O. B. Ormond, secretary, and Mr. M. E. Barron, superintendent; the latter two being guests of the Gyros at their luncheon.

The Gyros were escorted over the candy and biscuit factory, and the various processes by which these lines are manufactured were demonstrated so that the visitors became cognizant of how chocolates, biscuits and other confectionery articles were made. The extent of the company's operations was the subject of favorable comment, and many of the Gyros expressed the opinion that local industries and home products were worthy of greater patronage by Victorians.

Many of the lines manufactured by Ormonds Limited were sampled by the Gyros, who agreed that candies and biscuits that were just as good as could be found in other cities were being made right here in Victoria. A number displayed surprise that Victoria had such a modern confectionery plant in Victoria, and thoroughly enjoyed seeing what could be manufactured in candies and biscuits of all kinds in the city.

Ormonds Limited, which has been established in Victoria for many years, has 63 employees in all. The output of the concern last year was 220,000 lbs., or 110 tons of confectionery, and 474,000 lbs., or 474 tons of biscuits. Ormonds Limited ships much of its produce to other cities, all towns in British Columbia handling its goods, while centres in Washington State call for Ormonds' lines in large quantities.

The Gyros were each presented with a box of chocolates and a package of biscuits on leaving the plant.

Favorites and Short Prices Rule at Races

Heavily-Backed Thoroughbreds Victorious in Nearly Every Event—North Shore Surprises by Finishing Second and Paying $25.35 for Place—Molter Figures in Money in Each Race

THE favorites were running true to form yesterday at the Willows track, with the natural result that short prices were the rule in nearly every event on the programme. The biggest price paid during the matinee was $25.35, the sum that North Shore rewarded its backers in the sixth event, the thoroughbred coming in second and paying that figure for place. The winner in the same race was Freddie Fear, which paid $13.75 on the nose, $9.10 place, and $4.25 show. The only other liberal price paid was $9.40, which was the figure that Frank Boyd, winner in the opening event, returned to those that picked him to win.

Molter, one of the most popular jockeys on the track, covered himself with honor yesterday when he piloted two winners, two seconds and three thirds, piloting in each of the seven races horses that figured in the money. It is not often that a rider succeeds in accomplishing this feat. Powell was the only other jockey to guide more than one horse to victory, having brought in two winners during the afternoon.

Frank Boyd, noted the favorite, Babe Ruth, out of the premier position, and paid the sum of $9.40 on the nose. Babe Ruth got the lead, but was overtaken by the winner, the event being hotly contested. Third place went to Carpathian, with Molter up, which rewarded its backers with $3.15 show money.

Blond Buddy Wins
Blond Buddy, hot favorite, was an easy winner in the next competition. UConn looked dangerous at times, but was unable to cut down the victor's advantage. Ucan paid $6.95 place, and $3.05 show. Molter piloted Thelma C into show money, the thoroughbred having $3.45. Two horses, Blond Buddy and Monopoly, displayed evidence of wanting to show speed at the tape, the latter horse breaking away three times, while the winner once took a little exercise before Starter Donovan got the ponies away.

The third race proved an easy victory for the heavily-backed Blimkameen Boy. Louvain secured the lead at the start, and retained it for most of the course, but tired near home. Blimkameen Boy, forking in front and winning by a safe margin. Louvain came in second, while the third to finish was Calgary Stampede, which beat Yorkshire Relish out of the show money.

Jack Ledl captured the honors in the fourth race, overtaking the lead secured by Duke Adams, which finished second and paid $2.25 place, $1.55 show. The winner rewarded with $8 on the nose. Third place went to Article X.

Long Shots Outside Money
The three favorites in the fifth event finished in the treasury division, with Lamated, the most heavily backed, coming through with a pretty win. Spirea pulled into second place on the home stretch, while show money was obtained by Olympian King, with Robert L. Owen running fourth in line. The prices were short.

Freddie Fear galloped home in a spectacular win in the sixth race, regaining and holding the lead that it once lost during the race. Freddie paid $13.75, the second highest price of the afternoon. North Shore (Hicks), a decided long shot, surprised by capturing second place, paying $25.35 place and $4.50 show. Cantleaver, hot favorite, beat Boerne out of third place.

Stroller stepped out and won the final race of the entertainment, defeating Bunny Ways and Little Buck, which finished second and third, respectively, and four other participants in the event. Little Buck had a nice lead at the start, but Stroller and Bunny Ways left Buck in third place. Bell Squirrel, one of the favorites, failed to come in the money.

HUNTERS REPORT SCARCITY OF GAME

VERY FEW BIRDS KILLED IN OPENING OF SEASON

Deer Appears to Be Plentiful in All Districts, and Some Good Results Obtained—Maple Bay Touted

"Blue grouse are scarce, deer plentiful," is the opinion of the hunters who have returned to Victoria from the district woods where they have been combing the hills since Saturday, the opening day of the current season. Judging by the slim bags brought in by at least a dozen hunters who came down from the Malahat district last night, that statement is correct.

Many of the hunters are of the opinion that on account of the extreme dryness, many of the birds have migrated to unknown parts and that a good day's rain is necessary before the birds will be found in large numbers. The average bag this year appears to be two or three, while many of the hunters have tramped the woods for two and three days without seeing birds or firing a shot. Deer appears to be plentiful in all districts.

According to reports from the many hunters that journeyed up to the Malahat and Shawanigan Lake districts, although very few birds were seen, grouse are there in good quantities and markings on the ground appear in almost every district. Several hunters who went up to Cobble Hill say that grouse are numerous, but are keeping themselves high up in the firs. One hunter reported that he got his limit after being out about two hours. Others, however, brought in only meagre bags.

The numbers of deer that were brought into the city yesterday, make it appear that this game is more plentiful than in former years. Most hunters report running into deer, but on account of the dryness of the ground dogs were of little use in following them. One man in the Sooke district counted about fifteen deer in one herd.

In the Maple Bay district game appears to be plentiful, and hunters report that they had fairly good results, but that mountain climbing had to be indulged in to find the birds. Salt

ENGLAND WINS CUP

OYSTER BAY, N.Y., Sept. 15.—England won the international six-metre yacht racing cup from America today by taking the seventh and final event of the series. The Britons scored four victories and the United States three.

The British triumph reversed the apparent final decision scored by the Americans on Saturday with a score of four to two. The British protested the race in which the American boat Dauphin had crossed the line first, and when protest was allowed by racing committee yesterday Dauphin was disqualified, Saturday's race being awarded to the British. Each team had then won three races, and the English reached the four necessary to win today.

Spring Island hunters report that birds are plentiful and some fine bags were brought in. Birds in and around Jordan River, according to Mr. J. H. McIlreene, secretary of the Lower Island Fish and Game Association, appear to be scarcer than in former years, although deer seem to be numerous.

Quite a number of American tourists went out over the week-end trying their luck. One car, which carried a Washington licence plate, pulled up in front of one of the hotels with two fine bucks, one with four points and the other with three.

The Forestry Department again wishes to impress upon the hunters the need for exercising extreme care with matches and fire on account of the dryness of the woods. Forest fires may be easily started that may cause great damage.

GOLFERS TO PLAY FOR CUP SATURDAY

SECOND HALF OF MATCH FOR B. WILSON TROPHY

Twenty Members of Victoria Golf Club Will Cross to Seattle to Meet American Team

The second half of the team match between members of the Seattle Golf Club and members of the Victoria Golf Club for the Biggerstaff Wilson Cup will be played at Seattle next Saturday. The first half of the match was played at Oak Bay last Spring and resulted in a win for the Victoria Club players; the scores being: Seattle 29 1/2, Victoria 45 1/2.

Although some of the Victoria crack players, including A. V. Macan and Biggerstaff Wilson, will not be able to take part in the match, Mr. Goward, the Victoria Club captain, is getting a good, strong team together, including some of the best known players in the club, and it is expected a good fight will be made to prevent the Seattle Club from annexing the cup for good.

Seattle has already won two years in succession and should they overcome the lead of the local club on Saturday, the cup will become their property. A full list of all the players will be given out as soon as the team is complete.

At least twenty members of the Victoria Golf Club will participate in this contest. Captain Goward and the golfers that accompany him to Seattle are determined to bring the Biggerstaff Wilson trophy to British Columbia's capital city this year, and will do their very utmost to attain their objective.

OAK BAY WANDERERS WILL HAVE TWO TEAMS

Annual Meeting Brings Optimistic Report—Mr. Curtis is Elected President—Many Players

Plans for the coming rugby season were thoroughly discussed at the annual meeting of the Oak Bay Wanderers Club, held last night in the offices of Gillespie, Hart & Todd. According to reports from the various members of the club, this season should be the best that has been experienced. Several players from other teams have signified their intention of playing under the colors of the last year's second position holders, and from the names submitted at the meeting one of the most formidable teams in the city should be formed.

It is the intention of the club to again enter a team in the senior and also one in the intermediate league. Last year, the first season which the club experienced, proved highly successful in both their entries. The senior team made a very commendable showing and ended the league in a second position, while the intermediate fifteen played great rugby throughout the year, being tied with the University School for premier berth only after three scoreless attempts were made to settle the championship. The showing which the team made against their more experienced opponents from Vancouver in the race for the provincial intermediate championships drew many splendid comments from the rugby followers here and on the mainland, and it is the intention of the club this year to make another determined effort to cop the British Columbia title.

Mr. R. F. Curtis was selected as president of the club. Mr. Curtis has always been a willing worker in the club's interest, and the meeting was unanimous in its selection for this office. Ronald Christy, last year's secretary-treasurer, was again the choice to fill that position. R. L. Parker will captain the senior fifteen, with Harold Colman as vice-captain. Hugh Beck and Ted Grubb were elected as captain and vice-captain for the intermediate team.

The following are some of the players that will be seen wearing the Wanderers' colors this year: Seniors—Parker, Colman, Walter Brynjolfsson, Allen, Christy, Pemberton, Tim Mattson, Nairn Robertson, Heck Goodacre, John Shaw, Money, Herman, Ross, Wilson, Wootton, Willis Gilmer, Davis and Grahame. Intermediates—Hugh Beck, Grubb, Officer, Bowker, Holland, Oliver, Jack Goodacre, Hicks, Miller, Carey, Wilson, R. and G. Westman, Mathewson.

The club will hold its first practice of the season on Saturday afternoon at the Cranmore Road grounds. All rugby players are invited to be on hand at 2:30.

Their Future

Your Boy, For Instance

His ideas will be "stepped" by the knowledge of your plans for him.

His "preparation" expenses are provided for "no matter what happens."

Later on his training helps to win confidence,

Leading to his ultimate success, and your deep satisfaction.

If your boy or girl could speak now with the wisdom of later years, they would ask above all else for education—for knowledge of a business or profession which would give them a fair chance in the keen competition for success.

You want your child to be equipped as others are; and perhaps you are working to that end.

Why Not Make Your Plans Secure?

Why not provide, as many parents are now doing, that, "no matter what happens," your boy or girl will have a fair start in life?

Let us tell you how this is done through the new Canada Life

Educational Policy

This contract brings into existence a life insurance fund for educational expenses, to be held in trust at interest. This fund cannot be used or converted, except by you, but when your boy or girl is, say, eighteen years of age, it can be paid in any number of separate amounts required, six months apart, or in monthly cheques, to cover the vital years of training.

You have probably thought this matter over many times. Here is a chance to do something—tangible, immediate—yet quite easy.

We will send a proposal giving more complete information. A request will place you under no obligation.

COLISEUM GETS THIEF OF BAGDAD, FAIRBANKS FILM

Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad" will have its presentation in this city at the Coliseum (late Pantages) Theatre soon. It is a glorious fantasy of the Arabian Nights. A fanciful story of love and adventure laid in an imaginary world of fancy, and abounding in amazing happenings, or, as one scribe has put it, "unbelievable wonders," such as, in stance, as the Flying Carpet, the Winged Horse that flies through the clouds, and numerous other faber-creating conceptions, actually brought to life. And for its presentation in this city "The Thief of Bagdad" will offer all the colorful atmospheric effects, a symphony orchestra trained by the composer of the music; full scenic and stage effects; a band of Arabian musicians, with the instruments of their native country, as well as a Mohammedan Prayer Man. When "The Thief of Bagdad" is shown here there will be brought into use all the latest inventions of motion pictures, including Edison's newest high-tension lamp, as well as the newly-invented silk and rubber screen. The latter device holds the illumination, with less reflection, providing a clearer picture than heretofore. Mail orders will be filled in the order of receipt. This picture will positively not be shown anywhere else in this city this year.

MARCHETA AUTHOR WRITES FOR MARY

Patrons of the Dominion Theatre, where Mary Pickford's latest United Artists release, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," is now showing, are enjoying a delightful musical treat, for which Victor Schertzinger, author of "Marcheta," is responsible.

Through special arrangements effected by Miss Pickford, Schertzinger was engaged to prepare the musical score which accompanies this picture, and that work has been eminently successful in the opinion of the audience. To Orgranat Handley Wells must go the credit for the able and expressive rendition of the Schert, singer accompaniment, all of which gives discriminate accent to the picture.

Schertzinger has scored some of our cinema masterpieces, notably "Robin Hood." He is a pioneer in the film world and combines with his genius for music writing the ability to direct. Several of the most popular of current pictures are the result of Schertzinger's direction. Those particularly worthy of mention include Jackie Coogan's "Long Live the King," and "A Boy of Flanders," the latter recently released.

SCREEN VERSION OF BOOK STRIKES HOME

Fox Picture of "Man Who Came Back," at Capitol, Is One of the Best

The romance that attaches itself to blacksheep sons was never more touchingly portrayed than in the William Fox screen version of "The Man Who Came Back," which opened a six day run at the Capitol Theatre last night.

Dorothy Mackail, the San Francisco and Shanghai dance hall girl, in the picture, plays the finest role of her career, and George O'Brien, in the title role, acts himself into stardom. The picture is without a dull moment, thanks not only to the story by John Fleming Wilson, but to capable acting by the entire cast and effective adaptation by the director, Emmet Flynn.

Cyril Chadwick, as Captain Trevelyan, the suave globe trotting detective, has exactly the right savoir faire. Ralph Lewis, as Thomas Potter, the indulgent millionaire father of the ne'er-do-well, is another whose acting stands out nobly.

The story tells of a petted son who goes bad. His father sends him to a small job in his San Francisco ship yard and the boy immediately becomes worse. He is shanghaied and works his way across the Pacific, only to become an underworld white man in the den of the Orient, pawing what little he still retained for drink. In San Francisco, the youth meets a girl in a dance hall. He comes up with her again in a Chinese opium den where they realize for the first time that they love. The girl really has been first rate right along.

They don't pull out and become rich and happy right away by any manner of means, but their rise goes to build a great story which is as well acted as the narrative of their fall. The poignant love of the old father, back in New York combines eventually with the influence of the woman, to link the waiver with the new philosophy on life, and they finally pull out of the murkiness. It's a human picture acted by people who know what human beings act like in a given circumstance.

"The Man Who Came Back" was a good book, an excellent play by Jules Eckert Goodman, but it's a better picture.

PLAYHOUSE "The French Doll" THEATRE: opened at the Playhouse Theatre last night with Mae Murray as the star. In excellence and story as well as in Miss Murray's individual characteristics, it follows close upon Miss Murray's recent photoplays, which were the highest examples of screen art.

"The French Doll" is the story of a little, joyous French maiden who is brought to this country by her unscrupulous father, who is a dealer in false antique furniture. Her exquile charm is to be the chief aid Miss Murray, quite unconscious of what the real business of her parents may be, really helps to dispose of many dollars' worth of "antiques," until one day, walking in the park, her dog runs after a squirrel, dragging her violently after, so that she is almost seriously injured, when in the nick of time there appears—Wellington Wick, a wealthy fish packer. From this point on, "The French Doll," already vivid and alive with Miss Murray's exquisite charm, takes one a swiftness of action and a delicious humor. The various adventures that befall Georgine, that is, Miss Murray, and her various admirers all of whom become lovers of antique furniture, form an evening of enchanting entertainment.

NEW MUSICAL COMEDY BEGINS WEEK'S RUN

Reginald Hincks' Company Plays to Well-Filled House in "Tonight's the Night" at Royal

Judging by the reception given Mr. Reginald Hincks' thoroughly redecorated, renovated, and enlarged company at the Royal Victoria Theatre last evening, "Tonight's the Night" is destined, during the remaining part of the week, to do something to liven up the reputedly gloomy evening from which some folk complain that they suffer. The entertainment drew an excellent house for its first presentation, and the audience was an enthusiastic one. Not a joke slipped past unappreciated, not a song failed to make its mark. In fact, this venture of removing at a single stride from the smallest to the biggest theatre in the city seems definitely crowned with the approval of the public. As Mr. Hincks intimated in the little speech which he made between the acts, the evident good wishes need only be succeeded by a little consistent box office patronage on the part of the citizens to make the undertaking a permanent success.

The cost of principals has been chosen from well-tried material. The scenery is just as effective, in a bigger way, as the always charming settings of the past have been for the same company's productions. The dresses are striking, the lighting artistic. The one persistently noticeable weakness is in the chorus, which sounds all too feebly through the drumming and piping of the instruments would be merciful.

Among the additional numbers which merit particular mention are the nymph dance and Pierrot dance given by the airy-footed Miss Roberta Balcom, and the spirited Russian dance given in Act II by four girls, Daisy Corrance, Nonie Cutler, Mollie Birch and Doris Plimley. These numbers brought an overwhelming unanimity of expression from the spectators, who demanded return appearances in each instance.

The Cast
Audiences which have found them in the past the most delightful of entertainers, were glad to discover in the leading roles such favorites as Miss Peggy Lewis and Will Marshall, an incomparable team of comedians, who carried important parts. Peggy, in the role of the pretty housemaid, Victoria, was a "topnotcher" all the time, and carried the laughter of the house as an accompaniment to a "pithy line of talk." Will Marshall, dapper as ever, helped her to sing "I'd Like to Bring My Mother," in the first act, and another duet in the last act, after she emerged, superlatively splendid in glittering sequins and towering picture hat. "Hinkey Dinkie, Parlez Vous" (Peggy and Chorus), and "I Love Jane Because She's Slender, Etc." (Marshall and Chorus) were great favorites.

Mr. Ernie Petch, a consistently infectious fun-maker, injected a little of everything into the part of the Jew musical-comedy producer, Cohen. Snatches of opera, high notes and low, Spoonerisms, love-making, stage-managing, tripping over himself—these all help to make Cohen a very diverting gentleman. "Everybody Knows He Knows It," Mr. Petch's first song, is also the first song in the play, and among his other numbers are "Wonderful Girl," and "When I Brought." In duet with Miss Helen Starr, a newer member of the company, who has a very charming voice which merits her greater confidence, he sang "O, Won't You Flirt With Me?"

Mr. Frank Alwood made something of the nature of a debut last evening. No one has ever seen him in a part which he has played better than that of the old dark butler, Jackson, Elton Alwood, another member of the old company, nicely fitted the pretty pretty part assigned her. Last, but not least of the original company, is Mr. Hincks himself, younger and breezier than ever. In the part of the dandified Hon. Dudley Mitten, his new version of "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck," with chorus, calls for energy. In fact, he is the epitome of energy wherever he is seen on the stage. A comparative newcomer—although she has appeared at least once before with the company—who made a convincingly favorable impression, is Irene Walsh Naamith. She has none of the gaucherie of the novice, her speaking voice is excellently intoned, and she has a consistent conception of her role. She is a distinct asset to the company.

Mr. Stewart G. Clark has a moderately light part in the role of her husband.

Memorial Services for Late President

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 15.—With in the same hall that had twice heard his voice, impressive memorial services to the late President Woodrow Wilson were held at the conclusion of the first session of the American Legion convention here today. Miss Alma Forker, of California, sang "There Is No Death," and then after a minute of silent prayer a bugler sounded "Taps."

Life is Real

No thoughtful man can close his eyes to the realities of life.

It is true that life insurance has to do with life. Life insurance sets the mind at rest,—it saves money for old age comforts,—it enters into many a business deal; in fact, it touches all phases of life.

But, it is equally true that life insurance stands between many a bereaved family and the hard realities of living. The loss of the breadwinner often places burdens upon shoulders too weak to carry them. Then Life Insurance can and will assume the load.

Good citizens of Canada are insuring their lives now at the rate of over a Million Dollars a day. Why not consult your nearest life insurance man and find out all that Life Insurance can do for you?

The oil stocks were inclined to be a little heavy, fresh selling being stimulated by reports of gasoline price cutting. Better demand for the motors and some of the motor accessories probably stimulated by the intimation that better business in expected to get under way in this line in the near future. Tire production is said to be increasing to quite an extent. Operations in the rubber industry are on the increase, according to private reports and indications point to large carloadings figures this week.

FAMOUS SHIP FIRM ADOPTS INVENTION

INVENTION CONTROLLED BY VICTORIANS BIG SUCCESS

Harland & Wolff installs Pneumatic Bolting-Up Machine in Their Clyde Shipyards

Harland & Wolff, famous Clyde firm of shipbuilders, has adopted the pneumatic bolting-up machine which has recently been placed on the market by the Amalgamated Appliance Corporation (Incorporated), of Seattle, according to reports received by Mr. R. E. Diepecker, of the brokerage firm of Mason & Diepecker, secretary-treasurer of the corporation.

The invention, which is controlled by a group of Victorians, has been thoroughly tested in a number of British shipyards, and in each case its performance has vastly exceeded expectations. The machine was invented by Mr. F. M. Hallett, of Seattle. It is called the Hallett Pneumatic Plate Tightener.

The machine is designed to replace the hand method of bolting up steel plates before the final riveting takes place. The hand method has been the practice hitherto in all structural steel work throughout the world.

In all shipbuilding and steel work it is necessary to draw steel plates together as tightly as possible before riveting them. This process is known to the trade as bolting-up. The bolting-up precedes the riveting, placing threaded bolts in every second hole, adjusting washers and nuts, and then, by means of large spanners, drawing the plates tightly together. Riveters then place the hot rivets in the odd holes, and, with a pneumatic hammer, permanently secure the plates or steel in place. Unbolters next unscrew the bolts, and, after rivets have been inserted in their places, the job is completed.

The pneumatic bolting-up machine, operated by compressed air, draws steel to steel in a fraction of the time needed under the hand method and much more satisfactorily and efficiently. It is operated by means of two sets of double toggles actuated by opposed pistons, traveling in pressed steel cylinders. To the upper toggle is attached the upper end of the drawbar, which carries at its lower end an automatic chuck for gripping the bolt used in pulling the plates together. Attached to the lower toggle is the foot-piece, which, in turn, rests on the plate while the pull is being made.

The chuck and pistons are actuated by the compressed air, and as the pistons advance, the toggles move closely approach a straight line. Simultaneously the two toggle rods are moved further apart, and the toggle power of the combination is extremely great.

A cotter pin is driven into a slotted hole to hold it in place.

In all sizes machines are made in all sizes from the 12-pound machine for use in shops, roundhouses, factories, construction and building activities and all lighter work. This exerts a pull up to 10,000 pounds. A 28-pound machine exerts a pull up to 30,000 pounds.

Use of the machine in the construction of a 5,000-ton steamer will effect a saving of 15,000. It is estimated by the company's distributors, the Pneumatic Plate Tightening Machine Co., Ltd., of London, after a series of exhaustive tests.

The Amalgamated Appliance Corporation holds the patent rights for the invention in all countries except the United States. About 90 per cent of the corporations in the world are now using the machine.

The officers of the company are: President, Mr. Arthur Picot, of Victoria; directors, Messrs. G. R. Mason, of Victoria, and A. U. Spence, of Vancouver, and L. M. Austin, of Seattle; general manager, Mr. G. H. Will, and executive secretary-treasurer, Mr. R. E. Diepecker.

The Victoria Advisory Committee consists of Messrs. A. T. Goward, W. T. Barrett, A. D. Crease, Major J. A. Grant, A. S. Musgrave and L. E. V. York.

TOKIWA MARU IS DELAYED BY FOG

JAPANESE LINER DOCKS ABOUT SEVEN HOURS LATE

Unusual Activity at William Head During Past Twenty-Eight Vessels Beach Station

Nothing her way cautiously through yesterday's fog in the Strait the Tokiwa Maru docked at the Rithet piers from Yokohama at 2:40 o'clock in the afternoon, some seven hours after the hour indicated in her wireless messages as her probable time of arrival.

The Tokiwa discharged over two hundred tons of cargo before sailing for Seattle at 6:40 o'clock yesterday evening.

The last two days have been an unusually busy period at William Head. It is counted from the morning of the 14th, when the liner, and her staff have boarded no less than eight vessels during that time.

After having had her crew vaccinated at sunrise yesterday morning and steamed up to Vancouver. The Stuart Dollar was the next vessel to get to her anchor at the Head. Then came the Crofton Hall and the Oshira.

The Empress of Asia secured pratique at sunrise yesterday morning and the Canadian Spinner followed her a few hours later. After docking at Ogden Point at 11 o'clock and discharging in the neighborhood of 300 tons of cargo from Montreal and Eastern Canadian ports the Spinner cleared for Vancouver at 6:30 o'clock yesterday evening.

The Tokiwa Maru was the eighth vessel to call out the quarantine tender at the station.

OCEAN CHARTERS ON UPWARD TREND

GRAIN OUTLOOK TO EUROPE IS REPORTED BRIGHT

Japanese Lumber Market Improving, But Little Strength Seen in Australian Trade

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—Australian lumber, excepted, there was an upward trend in the freight and charter markets from the Pacific Coast this week. The grain outlook to Europe especially is brighter and telegraphic advices from New York tell of a rapid advance in the North Atlantic charter market during the last two weeks, with grain leading the way. Berth grain rates for the United Kingdom and continent from New York are now 16 to 17 cents, against 6 and 7 cents in July. Other North Atlantic ports show sympathy, strength, and extensive space offerings have failed to break the rates.

European lines from the North Pacific are booking parcels of wheat freely at 32 shillings 6 pence, and a 5,000-ton parcel was reported booked at 32 shillings 9 pence. This latter figure probably more nearly represents the present market than the former. Barley also is offering at 35 shillings. The full cargo rate has firmed up about 21 shillings 3 pence to 32 shillings 6 pence, with better inquiry and an upward tendency.

Black Tea Dominates Black tea has supplanted the green variety in the affection of the Canadian tea-drinking public, according to Mr. Walter Siegfried, of Siegfried, Schmidt & Company, leading tea importers, who arrived from Shanghai on the Empress of Asia.

The demand for green tea exists today only in some parts of Quebec Province. Mr. Siegfried stated. Assam and Ceylon teas have alienated the affection of the Canadian from the choice greens and light China grades which formerly almost monopolized the market in this country.

The Asia discharged about sixty tons of freight here before she sailed.

DEFENDS TARIFF POLICY OF OTTAWA

HON. DR. J. H. KING IS GIVEN WARM RECEPTION
Federal Minister and His Wife Are Welcomed by Women's Liberal Forum at Supper Meeting

A warm reception was accorded Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works in the Dominion Cabinet, and Mrs. King, who arrived in the city, at an informal banquet tendered by the Women's Liberal Forum of this city, last night. About one hundred were present at the gathering, held in the Liberal rooms on Government Street. Mr. W. Ivel presided, and at the conclusion, in thanking members of the party for turning out and making the reception a success, called attention to the need of following up this get-together meeting with a thorough reorganization of the party in the interests of winning the election, whenever it came on.

Mr. Ivel said that while the Minister had not made any announcement along this line, there was the possibility that an election might be held next Summer, and if so, a strong organization should be effected. There had been a feeling that Victoria needed a new organization, as far as the party was concerned. With co-operation, he felt that they could elect any candidate for either the Dominion or Provincial Houses.

In introducing Dr. King, Mr. Ivel said that he felt that the Federal member had done a great work in bringing Eastern members into line with the ideas of the West.

Reverses on Island
Hon. Dr. King referred to the unfortunate reverse which Liberalism had had in the last Provincial election in the southern part of Vancouver Island. The greater part of his address was devoted to the tariff policy of the Liberal Government at Ottawa. While the Government was a minority government, yet there had never been a government in Ottawa that had such majorities as the King Government had been able to command. He praised the House leadership shown by his leader, which was acknowledged by old parliamentarians as excellent anything in this line that had been in evidence in the House of Commons in the past.

Realizing that the wealth of the country came from its basic industries, the King Government had moved in the direction of making the operating expenses in these industries as low as possible. This afforded the opportunity for these industries to sell the surplus production in the markets of the world. The factories of Canada could at any time produce more in six months than would meet the demand of the local Canadian market. Canada was therefore destined, he felt, to use the over supply of the factories in the way of becoming a great manufacturing and trading country.

The St. Anthony-by-election, where the seat formerly occupied by a late member of the Government that felt that he could not agree with the tariff policy of the King Government, was won by a supporter of the Government. This was a vindication of the policy of the Government, he felt. The vote there repudiated the charge that the government of the day was shaping its policy for Western Canada alone.

With the early visit of the Premier he felt that he should not take up the question of the Government policies to any extent, but should leave that to his chief.

Hon. Alex. Manson, Attorney-General, extolled the work done by Hon. Dr. King at Ottawa. He had proved an able advocate of the cause of British Columbia there. The work of Premier Oliver, however, should not be overlooked in this respect also.

Right Any Wrong

Hon. T. D. Pattullo felt that this was no time for recriminations. This was a time to right whatever had been wrong in the past. The result of the recent election, as far as Victoria and the southern end of Vancouver Island was concerned, should prompt, on the part of the Liberals of that section, a determination to rally round the principles of the party.

Mr. J. A. Buckham, of Columbia, the Liberal whip in the late Legislature, called attention to the fact that he was the only constituent of Dr. King present at this meeting. The Province was fortunate in having him in the House of Commons.

Mr. A. D. Patterson, of Delta, said they were going to try and take Dr. King away from East Kootenay when the election came on, and give him a seat on the Fraser River.

During the evening, vocal selections were given by Mrs. Morton, who was accompanied by her daughter. A pleasing feature of the evening was the presence of the Blavatsky family, who recently arrived in the city from Russia, and had difficulty in entering the country. The three children of the family, who are talented musicians, gave selections during the evening on the piano and the violin.

New Working Agreement Discussed by Miners

NANAIMO, Sept. 15.—A mass meeting of the underground employees of the Western Fuel Corporation, Ltd., was held here on Saturday to discuss matters in connection with the new working agreement, which is to replace the present one, which expires at the end of this month.

The new agreement, as proposed by the new committee, was presented at the meeting, as was the company's proposal which, it is said, differs but little from that of the men.

The grievance committee, elected by the employees, consists of Messrs. H. Murdoch, T. Harrison, J. Sutton, L. Williams and W. Sykes, with Mr. Murdoch president and Mr. Harrison secretary.

Another meeting will be held on Tuesday morning when both proposals will be discussed.

Veteran of Bell Rebellion Dead
WINNIPEG, Sept. 15.—William M. Osborne, 68, died Friday following an illness of several years. He was a native of Simcoe, Norfolk County, Ontario, and came to Manitoba in 1880, serving in the Northwest Rebellion. For ten years he lived in British Columbia, returning here in 1914, where he had since lived.

Farmer Loses $25,000
CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 15.—Fire Saturday destroyed three large barns containing the entire season's crop, a silo, implement shed with a large stock of farming machinery, and livestock, on the farm of Martin McGregor, near here. The loss is about $25,000.

GATHERS HORDES OF MANCHURIA

General Chang Tso Lin Now Reported Massing an Army of 300,000 Men for Attack on Peking

FIERCEST BATTLE OF WAR CONTINUED AT SHANGHAI

Sun Yat Sen Still Gathering Troops for Proposed Campaign in Aid of Defenders of Great Port

PEKING, Sept. 16.—The invasion of Chihli Province, seat of the Peking Government, by Manchurian hordes has commenced. Gen. Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord, has occupied Chaoyangfu, a city of 650,000, twenty miles south of the great wall of China, and is reported to be massing 300,000 soldiers near Jehol, 100 miles northeast of Peking itself. Although northern provinces received by Chang's allies at Shanghai report that firing has already commenced, no news has been received here of any battle. The occupation of northern towns has so far been made without resistance, it is stated. The Manchurian chieftain, however, states that he will not fire the first shot, I guarantee full protection to the lives of foreigners and to foreign property.

"I am moving troops to a certain strategic place (believed to be Jehol) to meet a threatened attack from Gen. Wu Pei Fu (head of the Peking forces), but I shall not fire the first shot, I guarantee full protection to the lives of foreigners and to foreign property."

Civil War Spreads
SHANGHAI, Sept. 16.—Civil war continues to spread over China. In the north, a clash between the troops of Chihli and Manchuria was reported near the borders of provinces, while further preparations pointed to fighting soon near Shanghai.

On the middle coast, near the port of Shanghai, the fiercest fighting of the war continued all night on a battle line within a hundred miles of this city.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL TO DIRECT INVESTIGATION

Provincial Police to Concentrate Entire Resources on Search for South Case—Make Further Tests

VANCOUVER, Sept. 16.—Acting under direct instructions from Attorney-General A. M. Macdonald, who will arrive here this morning from Victoria, the Provincial Police will use all its resources in trying to find the murderer of Janet Smith.

An arrest in the Janet Smith case has been postponed owing to latest developments in the search for the killer. Microscopic and chemical reaction tests to determine the nature of the stains found on portions of a woman's clothing taken from the furnace of the Oster Avenue home, where Miss Smith was found dead on July 26, are to be carried out immediately, according to latest information.

City Analyst A. Vance, of Vancouver, acting in co-operation with a well-known local surgeon, who is also an analytical chemist, will, it is understood, conduct the tests, which are expected to occupy a considerable time.

ONE BIG UNION PLAN IS OVERWHELMED

Dominion Trades and Labor Congress Turn Down Proposals That Are Made by Left

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 16.—Labor's left wing opened a drive in two directions at today's sessions of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress here on the position of labor organizations.

In the morning they advanced under the banner of the "One Big Union" and in the afternoon under the efficiency and effectiveness to labor of the executive of the congress at Ottawa. In each case, after lengthy debate, they met with overwhelming defeat. Three resolutions, Nos. 24, 27 and 28, which were all grouped together by the resolutions committee, were responsible for the morning's debate. The committee recommended non-concurrence in all three. These resolutions, which were sponsored by more than a dozen trade councils and locals of miners and railway carmen, chiefly from Edmonton and Glace Bay, urged very strongly autonomy for all Canadian unions, authority for Canadian unions to decide alone all strike questions, and increase in the per capita levy assessment so that the Dominion Congress might be a "real centre of trade union power in Canada."

Twelve Rescued Of 47 Entombed in Mine Explosion

KEMMERER, Wyo., Sept. 16.—An official check-up tonight of the number of miners and workmen entombed all today, show but forty-seven men were in the mine at the time of the blast, according to officials of the Kemmerer Coal Company. Tonight twelve miners had come out alive and the bodies of three dead had been recovered. Further rescue work within the mine, according to word received here, is impossible because of fire that rescuers report raging in the mine.

PRINCE LEAVES FOR WEST ON SUNDAY

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS TO RESUME JOURNEY NEXT WEEK

Smilingly Hands Back to American Team—Thoroughly Enjoys Day's Game

BYONETT, Sept. 16.—The Prince of Wales smilingly took part in today's first part of the match between the polo cup back to America and was immediately afterward surrounded and followed for a quarter of a mile across Meadowbrook grounds by a dense, pushing, skirmishing crowd of American men and women, far more interested for the moment in looking at the future British King and cheering his graceful gesture of good sportsmanship than in the victory that their countrymen had just won. It was all the local and special police could do to prevent the blocking of his path by the throng.

The crowds that the Prince found so formidable at Belmont, when he saw the races, were chiefly curious. Today's crowd was curious, too, but it appeared more friendly and admiring. There was a cry of "three cheers for the Prince."

His Royal Highness appeared to enjoy the game today, at least the first part of it, more than Saturday's game. When the first two British goals were scored, making the count two to two, England's favored Prince literally leaped for joy. He waved his hat and clapped his hands. At no other point in the match did the Prince get so excited. There were no such opportunities. He appeared pleased when the other three British goals were made, but more mildly. He sometimes clapped his hands once or twice in admiration of the Americans' skill.

It was originally scheduled to leave for Canada on September 14, and yesterday it was said the Prince probably would leave Thursday. Tonight, Captain A. F. Lascelles, his secretary, said it was "almost certain" that his departure would be late on Sunday night.

After luncheon today at the Meadowbrook Club, where he will be the guest of Esmond Winthrop, the club's president, the Prince of Wales will make what may be his last public appearance in the United States during his tour of the continent.

The Prince won $640 on a horse race yesterday. He backed Duettelle, W. Joseph E. Widner's twelve-year-old, which won the $10,000 Brook champagne steeplechase at Belmont Park. Standing by the owner of Duettelle, the Prince eagerly watched the race with excitement as the horse galloped the entire field and led by fifteen lengths at the finish.

The Prince placed $200 straight on Duettelle and $200 place. The odds were 11 to 5 to win, and even money for place. After the race the Prince personally collected his winnings.

Later, with Major O. N. Robert and Major H. A. Metcalfe, the Prince motored to New York, as a guest of Rodman Wagonmaker II, stopping for tea at a racquet and tennis club on Park Avenue.

At Mr. Wagonmaker's dinner last evening members of a musical comedy company gave a "command" performance.

A mind reader asked the Prince to think of certain numbers and a name. Then the entertainer told the Prince numbers he had in mind and that the name selected was "Johnny."

"You're uncanny," the Prince said. "I'm afraid you're able to read all my thoughts."

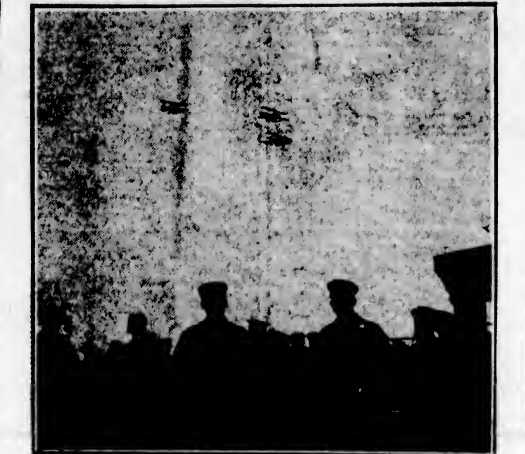

If the British team should defeat the United States players today, thus tying the score, the Prince will remain on Long Island to see the final match. It is no secret that the servants at the James A. Burden home, occupied by the royal party, have been directed to get the luggage ready for departure Thursday.

Newfoundland Motorist Held on Murder Charge

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., Sept. 16.—A charge of murder was laid today against Leonard Reid, held responsible for the deaths of six men when his automobile ran down World War veterans at Callahan's Crossing early today. When arrested, Reid was held for manslaughter and the charge was changed to murder in court today.

Reid was set at $200,000. Reid is a member of one of Newfoundland's first families.

Dutch Settlers Prefer Canada, Editors Find

No Tales of Woe From Dutch Settlers in Canada, Distinguished Netherlands Journalists Discover in Tour of Investigation—Will Give Impetus to Immigration

IN striking contrast to the tales of hardships and injustice which flooded the Old Country recently from English settlers in Canada, are the stories of contentment which everywhere greeted the Dutch editors from the lips of their countrymen now resident farmers in Canada.

"Not one out of a hundred of the Dutch farmers we have talked to during our trip across Canada, has wished to return to Holland through discontent with his lot in this country," said Mr. J. K. van Riemdyk, representative of the Holland League for Immigration, who reached here yesterday with a party of Dutch editors. The party consists, in addition to Mr. van Riemdyk, of Mr. M. J. Bruuse, editor of the Nieuwe Rotterdamse Courant, Rotterdam, and his son, Mr. M. J. Bruuse; Mr. H. C. J. A. van Lammerde, editor of the De Tijd, Amsterdam; Mr. T. Cnossen, editor of the De Standard, Amsterdam. The editors are touring Canada as guests of the C.P.R. to investigate Canadian conditions at first hand. They are equipping themselves with knowledge which will enable them to share in the formulation of an immigration policy for Holland.

The first two years of the Dutch settler life in Canada are a period of adjustment. Mr. van Riemdyk told The Colonist last night. After that period has elapsed the original homesickness has disappeared, he said, and not only is the settler reconciled to life in the new country, but he actually prefers it to life in Holland. This feeling follows naturally from increased prosperity.

Chance of Advancing
"In Holland a farm laborer is always a farm laborer. But in Canada he has a chance of getting ahead," Mr. van Riemdyk declared. The few discontented settlers the editors encountered in their tour were women. Mr. van Riemdyk stated.

"As a result of the tour of investigation, Canada may expect to experience a decided impetus in immigration from Holland. The distinguished journalists have been delighted with what they have found in this country, and as their investigations have proceeded, they have written descriptions of them for the papers they represent."

"Holland finds herself forced to adopt a policy of emigration to promote settlement," Mr. van Riemdyk said. "It is a territory not much larger than Vancouver Island she has a population of 7,000,000 people, which is increasing at the rate of 100,000 a year. Every available inch of land is already under cultivation and has been for years. Each farm passes down from father to son and, if there are three or four sons in the family, the younger two or three must either emigrate or seek work in the big cities."

Can't Absorb Infants
"But the cities can no longer absorb the influx from rural districts. Since the war Holland has had a very serious unemployment problem. Like England, she has been forced to adopt a system of doles to the unemployed. This has added to the burden of the taxpayer. The result of this situation is that Holland is now seeking a solution to her problem in the promotion of emigration."

The Dutch approve of the dole system in principle, but condemn it on the score that it undermines the morale of the unemployed. Mr. van Riemdyk said. It has indirectly promoted emigration, however, he said, for several of the larger cities have preferred to advance loans to intending emigrants rather than to use the same money to employ the same people as unemployed workers.

The party is under the guidance of Mr. A. B. Calder, special representative of the C.P.R. who was in charge of the Prince of Wales' tour of Canada in 1919.

MEETING OF ARMY AND NAVY VETERANS

Annual Convention at Winnipeg Decides on Removal of Headquarters to Ottawa

WINNIPEG, Sept. 16.—The headquarters of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association should be moved from Montreal to Ottawa, it was decided today at the annual convention of the organization here. Captain H. Colbourne, secretary, expressed the conviction that the Minister of Defense would do his best at the next session of parliament to secure permission for all members of the Canadian forces in the world war to wear the ribbon. This had been advocated repeatedly by the association.

Major M. J. Crehan, Vancouver, in his presidential address, made an appeal to all members to fight against the spirit of Bolshevism which, he said, was creeping into the country. Bolshevists and profiteers should get out of the country quickly.

Major Crehan expressed severe criticism of pensions commissioners.

Reduce Price of Milk
SEATTLE, Sept. 16.—Milk is to be delivered to Seattle homes tomorrow at nine cents a quart and six cents a pint, which is said to be the lowest price paid for city milk since pre-war days, the Seattle Milk Shippers Association announced. This will be two cents a quart less than at present.

Frank Terrace, president of the association, said the reduction was the result of attempts to bring outside milk into Seattle.

BRITISH PARTIES OPEN CAMPAIGN

Programme of Most Intensive Work Includes Holding of Two Thousand Meetings in Country

PRESENT CABINET AND FORMER MINISTERS AID

Unionists Undertake Active Propaganda Among Working Classes, and Cause the Laborites Much Concern

LONDON, Sept. 16.—What seems certain to develop into the most extensive and widespread political campaign in the history of Great Britain opened today. The three parties are beginning a series of meetings in every corner of the British Isles, making a total of at least two thousand meetings. All Labor ministers, former Liberal and Conservative ministers are to participate.

Cinemas, caravans and motor car parties will attempt to reach even remotest villages. Huge quantities of posters and pamphlets are already en route to the constituencies.

Labor is attempting every day to drive the wedge deeper between the divergent wings of Liberalism. The Daily Herald today proclaims a Liberal split and publishes a two-column article seeking to prove that the split is irreconcilable.

Lloyd George is steadily developing his attack on the Russian treaty and states that he has authority for declaring that Mr. Asquith completely supports his attitude and declarations. The Daily Chronicle, a Lloyd George organ, says the suggestion that Labor will defect by opposing the treaty to the free vote of the Commons and then decline to accept its hostile decision, is "a counsel of despair." It adds that the proposal that Labor should separate the loan guarantee from the rest of the treaty and demand two divisions is equally foolish, and couples it with a warning to Liberalism against the whole treaty, not merely the clause dealing with the loan.

Unionists Activities
Unionists are feverishly active. H. R. Blair, the new party manager, is ordering members of the party to go among the working people and explain the tenets of Conservatism and is also insisting that they must do so in workingmen's halls and clubs.

Much attention is also being paid to the women voters by the Unionists, who are further planning a tremendous campaign at street corners and in workingmen's halls and clubs. This policy is bringing Unionism into touch with the masses and already is causing uneasiness in the ranks of Labor.

The Premier will be asked, when the House reassembles, what are the intentions of the Government about the proposed to direct status within the precincts of Parliament to the late Bonar Law.

TO ENFORCE GRANTING LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Would Compel Employers of Elected Legislators to Allow Workers to Attend House

VANCOUVER, Sept. 16.—Action will be taken by the Labor members at the coming session of the Legislature to make it compulsory upon employers, whether they be municipal corporations or private companies and individuals, to give leave of absence to any of their employees who may be elected to the Legislature so they may attend the session. R. H. Neelands, member-elect for South Vancouver, made the announcement today following the reiteration of the refusal of the Burnaby Council to accord leave of absence to Frank A. Brown, the successful Labor candidate in Burnaby, who is employed as an accountant by the municipality.

The Burnaby Municipal Council has full power to refuse leave of absence to any of its servants, said Mr. Manson, Attorney-General, who is in Vancouver, when asked if the Provincial Government intended to take any steps to see that Frank Brown is given leave to attend the sittings of the House. While in full sympathy with Mr. Brown's request, the Attorney-General said it was a matter for the Burnaby Council alone.

Vanquished
The Burnaby Council, in session at 8 p.m. last night, again refused to grant Frank Brown, municipal accountant and Labor M.P.P.-elect, leave of absence to attend the sittings of the Legislature. Following several protests by various bodies, a motion to have the previous motion of the council rescinded was defeated by a vote of four to two.

Historic Document To Insure Peace of World Is Approved

Twelve Nations, Through Their Representatives, Sitting Privately, Give Preliminary Consent to Articles of Protocol Which Produces Sense of Security Among Peoples

BRITAIN'S FLEET AND ARMY STANDS BACK OF TREATY

GENEVA, Sept. 16.—The representatives of twelve governments, sitting privately in subcommittee, gave preliminary approval today to several articles concerning sanctions in a draft protocol, which Premier Benes, of Czechoslovakia, submitted, after long and difficult negotiations, as the pact which advances the cause of arbitration, produces a sense of security among nations and prepares the way for disarmament.

Italy expressed more apprehension concerning the regional alliances which are permitted by the draft pact, although her delegates did not press the matter. Former Premier Branting, of Sweden, voicing the opinion of the neutral states, declared Dr. Benes had produced a big, historic document which would be given close study.

Among the articles dealing with sanctions, which were thoroughly discussed, was article seven of the protocol, providing for general contributions from all states, in order that the country, which arbitral tribunals have declared aggressor, may be outlawed.

This article obligates signatories to assist the attacked state and insure the safety of land and sea communications.

The French consider that this clause enables the operation of the British fleet in time of the League of Nations need to preserve peace and say they are satisfied with the British private assurance that the protocol requirements will be locally carried out. It is even said in French quarters that Great Britain will go to the extent of contributing aerial and expeditionary forces should the situation be so menacing that such assistance seemed desirable.

Draft of Protocol
Provisions of the draft for outlawry of war, already approved by French and British representatives at an assembly of the League of Nations, which was presented today by Foreign Minister Benes, of Czechoslovakia, to the disarmament committee of the League and which became available to the Associated Press, in substance is as follows:

The draft begins by stating that, with a view to insuring lasting peace in the world and to guarantee the

MEMBERS OF CANADIAN PRESS DISCUSS STRIKE

Manager Outlines Step Taken, and Explains Plans Developed for Carrying on Work

TORONTO, Sept. 16.—A well-attended meeting of the Ontario daily newspaper publishers, members of the Canadian Press, was held here this afternoon to consider the situation created last week by the strike of the company's telegraph operators throughout the country.

Norman Smith explained that the company had applied for a board of conciliation, naming its representative thereon, and that the Department of Labor at Ottawa had authorized such a board and was awaiting a nomination by the telegraphers' union of a representative before completing it. The meeting unanimously endorsed the policy hitherto adopted by the management and listened to an explanation of the plans developed for the carrying on of the work of the company. A similar meeting of Quebec members will be held in Montreal tomorrow and of Western Canadian members in Winnipeg next Sunday.

FIRST DAWES PLAN REPORT SUBMITTED

COMMISSION LEARNS OF THE SCHEME'S INAUGURATION

Head of Committee Congratulates Owen D. Young on Work—Agent-General Highly Pleased

PARIS, Sept. 16.—The inauguration of the Dawes reparation plan, as set forth in the first report of Owen D. Young, temporary agent-general for reparations payments, before a special meeting of the Reparations Commission today, is regarded by the Commission as assuring well for the success of the plan.

Louis Barthou, head of the commission, congratulated Mr. Young after he had listened to the report, which was largely technical and not destined for publication. On invitation from the commission, Henry M. Robinson, of Los Angeles, laid to the agent-general, was present to hear the report, after which he consulted with Mr. Young regarding the conference tomorrow of the Dawes plan trustees and commissioners, at which German members of the different Dawes organizations will be present.

The meeting today was specially called to hear the report, so that Mr. Young could go on with further details of organization with the various bodies. Mr. Young expressed himself highly pleased at the prospects, having met most earnest good will for the success of the plan everywhere in Germany, as well as in Paris. He probably will be occupied in Paris for a fortnight before returning to Germany to continue work.

The commission today decided upon a number of additional appointments under the Dawes plan scheme, but appointees were not announced.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Voluntarily evidence submitted to the federal grand jury which indicted Colonel Charles R. Forbes and John W. Thompson, Chicago, and St. Louis contractor, in connection with the administration of the Veterans' Bureau under Colonel Forbes, was today ordered impounded with the United States marshal, by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter.

Chief Knew Men TOOK HUSH MONEY
SEATTLE, Sept. 16.—William R. Beversley, chief of the Seattle police, admitted on the stand when the city council inquiry opened, that he knew some of his men were taking protection money. He said he couldn't tell which men were guilty. When asked whether he had related the return to the department of men dismissed by him, Beversley said, yes, in several cases. Their reinstatement, he told the council, rested with the civil service commission, and that after placing evidence in the hands of the commission he had nothing further to do with plea for reinstatement.

In answer to questions about the dry squad, the chief declared it was a separate division under Lieut. Geo. Comstock. Referring to the use of secret service fund for obtaining evidence of corruption in the department, the chief asserted he had received only one-half of the $4,000 appropriated, said Mayor Edwin J. Brown and Lieut. Comstock received the remainder.

SPANISH GRANDEE WOULD BE RANCHER

DUKE OF ALBA WOULD EMULATE PRINCE OF WALES

Madrid Party Now En Route West to See Alberta Lands—Comes to Victoria Later

TORONTO, Sept. 16.—The Duke and Duchess of Alba, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess of Peranada, the Marquis of Viana, the Marquis of Coghulla, Count Escandor and Mrs. M. Hyde, society dictator of continental Europe, left Toronto at 10:30 Tuesday night on two Canadian Pacific Railway special cars en route to Banff, Alberta. The royal specials, which are attached to C. P. R. train No. 3, will arrive at Banff Friday evening.

The Duke of Alba, who is "Master of the House" for the King of Spain and a direct descendant of Christopher Columbus, King James II and the Duke of Berwick, said on leaving Toronto that he hoped to follow in the footsteps of his kinsman, the Prince of Wales, and buy a ranch in Alberta. He and his party arrived in Toronto early Tuesday morning from the polo games on Long Island, and he declared that the Prince of Wales had said such nice things about Canada that he could not forego the opportunity of seeing the country for himself with the possibility of acquiring land in the West.

Coming to Victoria
The Duke declared that there was an impression in this country that he had been responsible for much of the unrest in Spain. "As a matter of fact," he said, "I have lost all track of what is going on in Spain since my arrival in America."

The Duke is still a member of the Upper House of Lords at Madrid. Duke Alba, who is twenty-six years old and who is often referred to as the "Spanish Grande," will remain in Banff four days with his royal guests. They will leave Banff Tuesday morning, September 23, for Steamers, where they will stop off and spend the night. Leaving Steamers at 8:30 Wednesday morning, they will arrive in Vancouver at 9:30 Wednesday evening, proceeding on to Victoria at 10:30 Thursday morning. They will spend Thursday and Friday in Victoria. The royal party will return to New York via Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The Duke of Peranada is a brother of the Duke of Alba, and the Marquis of Viana is the young Duke's father-in-law. Mrs. M. Hyde is the wife of the former American ambassador at Berlin and Constantinople, and she is universally recognized as being on more intimate terms with all the royal families of Europe than any other woman in the world. The royal party numbers fourteen persons, including three maids and valets, travelling in a special drawing-room car and a special diner.

VANCOUVER UNITES AGAINST RACING

WOMEN'S VOTERS' LEAGUE SUPPORTS SERVICE CLUBS

Declares Province Cannot Stand Org. of Race Track Gambling Now in Vogue

VANCOUVER, Sept. 16.—That British Columbia can not stand seventy days of horse racing each year socially, morally or economically, was the sense of a mass meeting held last night in the Vancouver Women's Voters' League. A petition will be presented to Premier King, Premier Oliver and British Columbia members of Parliament, asking that the law be amended to prohibit the staging of such "prolonged" race meets in this province.

Charles Woodward, M.P. elect; Hon. H. H. Stevens, M.P.; Mayor Owen, Mrs. M. E. Smith, M.P. elect; Mrs. D. M. McKay, president of the Women's Voters' League; Norman McLean, president of the Vancouver Property Owners' Association, and other speakers, were heard at the meeting.

While many speakers quite willingly admitted the spirit of competition and sportsmanship engendered by horse races should be fostered, they were not so ready to admit that the had been created by the race meets held here this season.

Following the course taken by other cities, the Vancouver Women's Voters' League yesterday endorsed a resolution protesting against the length of the horse racing season in British Columbia.

Officers of the club for the coming year will be elected at a closed meeting to be held at the Ambassador Cafe Monday evening. The Vancouver Gyro Club is facing the biggest year in its history, for the international convention for 1925 will be held here next July.

There is nothing equal to it for women's troubles." There are women everywhere who have been benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and gladly tell their friends and neighbors about it. ## MACEONIAN REBEL LEADER ASSASSINATED

Bolshevik Propaganda Reported Responsible for Killing, and Reprisals Enue

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 16.—It has been learned that Todor Alexandroff, head of the Macedonian revolutionary organization, was assassinated August 31 and that in reprisals following there has been eight political assassinations.

The news of Alexandroff's death was not allowed to become public until yesterday, when it caused a great stir. The killing is supposed to have been ordered by a section of the Macedonian organization favorable to the Bolshevik movement and in alliance with the Soviets, to which objects Alexandroff was resolutely opposed.

One of those killed in reprisal was the head of this section, Aleco Pasha. Deputy Kadjenoff, Judge Kovatcheff and several other Macedonians in Sofia and the provinces have been slain by Alexandroff's partisans since his death and in each case the assassins gave themselves up.

GEN. HUGHES' WORK PRAISED IN LONDON

Has Entire Charge of the Canadian Memorial Parks on Battlefields Where Soldiers Fell

LONDON (By Mail).—Among the week's visitors to London has been Brigadier-General Henry Thorsby Hughes, C.M.G., D.S.O., Chief Engineer of the Canadian Battlefields Memorial Commission, whose home is in Saanich, near Victoria, B.C. General Hughes, who was an officer in the Canadian Engineers before the war, has been continuously in the war zone since 1914, for after serving with his corps throughout the war—he spent at least half-a-dozen months as well as the D.S.O.—he was on his way home when he was commandeered by his government to carry out the elaborate scheme of memorial parks by which the Dominion will mark the achievements of her sons in the war.

Besides that at Vimy Ridge, which opened last year by the Duke of Connaught, there are seven others of these parks, all on battlefields sites—two in Belgium, Paschendaele and Sanctuary Wood, and five in France: Vimy Ridge, Dury, Bourlon Wood, Courcellette and La Quenelle, the most elaborate being that on Vimy Ridge, the Canadian sculptor, is preparing a monument of a very original and striking character.

General Hughes has not only been the engineer of the scheme, but he has had entire charge of the business end. He had first to select the sites, in which he displayed notable judgment, and then to acquire the land which, in a country of smallholders, meant in several cases a string of hard deals. Then, in addition to constructing the parks and laying them out, he has had to build up roads to them, and the area of work stretches from Paschendaele to the north to La Quenelle on the south, necessitating long motor runs, he has had a very strenuous time these last five years, and is looking forward to his release with eagerness. After all, Poperinghe, where he makes his headquarters, is in those days a dull place of exile to a man whose wife and sons are on the other side of Canada, and who is eminently companionable. His friends there are many, but their voices are still.

CAR DASHES INTO GROUP OF VETS

SIX KILLED BY SPEEDING MOTOR IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Son of Well-Known Capitalist of the Colony Held for Manslaughter as Outcome of Accident

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Sept. 16.—Six men were killed, two of them British naval officers and two others World War veterans, when an automobile dashed into a crowd on the Topsail Road near here early today. Leonard Reid, third son of the late Sir William Reid, who was driving the car, was arrested on a manslaughter charge.

Reid, who is twenty-five years of age and whose father was president of the Newfoundland Railway and head of other colonial enterprises, was too unnerfed after the tragedy to make a statement.

Those killed were:
Lieut.-Commander J. D. O'Callaghan, of H.M.S. Constance, promoted yesterday.

Lieut. Burroughs, of H.M.S. Constance.

Capt. G. J. Whitty, secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association of Newfoundland, who won the Military Cross as a member of the Newfoundland Regiment.

Lieut. William King, a veteran of the Newfoundland Regiment and of the Royal Air Force.

George Harrison, of Chatham, N.B., accountant of the Bank of Montreal. Clinton Duder, of St. John's, son of Charles Duder, District Grand Master of the Scottish Free Masons of Newfoundland.

Whitty and King were members of a party of fourteen veterans of the Newfoundland Regiment who had held a reunion at a country inn and were boarding a bus. The British officers and the others were in the car driven by Reid. They were returning from a late supper with friends among the crews of British Special Naval Service Squadron, which is anchored in Conception Bay. Veterans were gathered about the bus and four had entered the vehicle when the automobile, a seven-seater car carrying eight passengers, dashed into the crowd with little warning. Whitty and King were killed instantly, the body of the former being hurled fifty feet.

The car then swerved to the right, overturned and plunged down a bank. Lieut.-Commander O'Callaghan, Lieut. Burroughs, Harrison and Duder were apparently killed when it struck the bank.

SAYS WATER CRITICS TALK THROUGH HATS

Doctor, Defends Nanaimo Drinking Supply—Contains No Danger to Health of City

NANAIMO, Sept. 16.—At the City Council meeting last night, Dr. W. E. Drysdale, City Medical Health Officer, went into the water supply question of the city and explained the figures obtained from the recent analysis of the water from the Government subject at Nanaimo. The gist of Dr. Drysdale's explanation was that the water is now, and has been throughout the entire season, entirely fit for drinking purposes, and that there is not, nor has there been, one case of sickness in the city which can be attributed to drinking of impure water.

"For a few days," he said, "there was a bad taste in the water, not only a bad taste, but there was an unpleasant smell."

This was because the water in No. 2 reservoir had been drained off too fast into No. 1, with the result that much sediment had been raised and carried into the main source of supply. The bad taste came from vegetable matter, and was not injurious. He made five trips to the waterworks, and he found everything as clean as possible. There was no scum on the water, not even floating leaves. He did not see a single source of contamination which would make the water unsuitable for drinking purposes. There was no chance of bad drainage from farms, stables, hog pens, etc.

Regarding the figures given by the analyst, the doctor pointed out that the samples sent him had all been improperly taken, and quoted authorities on the correct method of obtaining water to be analyzed.

Hearing out his contention that the city water was not injurious, Dr. Drysdale pointed to the fact that at the present time there is less sickness in the city than there has been for the past ten years. He had taken the trouble to verify this statement.

Ald. Smith stated that as chairman of the water committee he had been questioned and blamed for impure water. He said he wanted the doctor to answer one question, i.e., had the water been responsible for numerous cases of boils, hives, etc., complained of recently? An emphatic "No" was the doctor's answer.

This was because the water is now, and has been throughout the entire season, entirely fit for drinking purposes, and that there is not, nor has there been, one case of sickness in the city which can be attributed to drinking of impure water.

Dr. Drysdale concluded his address to the Council with the assurance that the Nanaimo water was not injurious to health, and that all the "fuss and talk" had been raised by people who did not know what they were talking about.

EXECUTIVE RESPONSIBILITY

Quite obviously to all impartial observers as well as to students of constitutional history an issue has been raised between the Government of this Province and a group of Liberal members-elect in Vancouver who wish, in certain contingencies, to control the actions of the Cabinet. On more than one occasion since the recent general election this group of Vancouver members-elect has taken issue with the course of government procedure. It should be clearly understood, as it has been established by long practice, that "every act done by the responsible ministers" of the Crown having any political significance is a fit subject for comment, and, if necessary, for censure in Parliament. It is not a fit subject for censure by ultimate parliament and acting in their individual capacities. It is specifically laid down in constitutional practice that the true responsibility of ministers depends upon their freedom in exercising the lawful authority of the Crown. Without freedom of action there can be no genuine responsibility. De Lorme, in anticipating the events which would be likely to destroy the fabric of the English constitution, remarked that "when the representatives of the people shall begin to share in the executive authority," the government will be overthrown.

The interference of a bloc of Vancouver's members-elect to the Legislature is clearly a challenge to executive authority. One of the leading maxims of constitutional government is the responsibility of ministers. That is a principle upon which British constitutional government has been founded and developed. This responsibility is subject to the ministerial power of parliament, and parliament has the redress of withdrawing its support and bringing about an appeal to the people or the formation of a new government. There is nothing in constitutional history that gives the power of challenging governmental acts to a coterie of private members. They may resent what is done, but they have not the power to undo; yet that is the power which the Vancouver members are seeking to exercise. It is a grave issue but one in which the government's course is clear and unmistakable. It must assert its authority and prerogatives. It must refuse to be intimidated in any way from any source. The Vancouver members can very legitimately raise any question in which they disagree with the Government in the course of the proceedings of the Legislature. They can move a vote of want of confidence. What they cannot do constitutionally is to blackmail the Government. The recent happenings should be made incapable of repetition by a governmental pronouncement that coercion, or attempted coercion, will never be tolerated.

LOAVES AND FISHES

Under the Liberal regime at Ottawa it is very often better to be a defeated candidate in the interests of that party than to win an election. The spoils of victory are apportioned out with almost a level hand to the successful and unsuccessful politician alike. Where it is found impossible for a defeated candidate in the Liberal interest to secure a lucrative appointment within the territory where he dwells he is made the dispenser of patronage. He is the medium through whom all those seeking jobs, for which the Government is the paymaster, must go, and in the passage they must prove their title to be given work by evidence that they belong to the political faith which is dispensing the loaves and fishes. Needless to say this labor of being such a medium is not done for love or charity, or because of unbounded political enthusiasm. Such an employment agency is no sinecure and the laborer is worthy of his hire. He gets that hire in one way or another. He is looked after by the party whose candidate he was, and experience has proved that the way of the defeated Liberal candidate is made smooth while the Government of which he is a supporter remains in power.

It is a notorious fact that under the regime of Mr. Mackenzie King the Civil Service Commission at Ottawa does not operate unbiassed by partisan politics. Outside the realm of that Commission, and where governmental predilections have full play in the making of appointments, there is never a shadow of hesitation in choosing the "faithful" to enjoy the emoluments of offices within the gift of the crown. For instance, The London Free Press has compiled a list of appointments to the Bench under the present regime at Ottawa. The list, we believe, is fairly partial, but it is elaborate enough to show the mental attitude which governs the distribution of patronage. There is to be said in favor of the Liberal Government. It does not belaud its intentions. The purpose and the manner of fulfilling it are apparent to all. Patronage, naked and unabashed, governs appointments within the area of Federal politics and fitness for office is but a secondary consideration. Here is the list compiled by The London Free Press:

J. E. Adamson, defeated Liberal candidate in Selkirk, 1917 and 1921, appointed judge to the King's Bench of Manitoba.
St. George Stubbs, defeated Liberal candidate in Marquette in 1917, appointed to be county judge in Manitoba.
Duncan Ross, defeated Liberal candidate in 1921, in West Middlesex, named as county judge for Elgin.
Robert G. Fisher, K.C., former defeated Liberal candidate in East Middlesex, to the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Severin Latourneau, Liberal organizer in Quebec, who has been elevated to a judgeship.
Adolphe Stein, Liberal member for Kamouraska, promoted to the Quebec Bench.
Hon. William Martin, Liberal Premier of Saskatchewan, elevated to the Supreme Court of the province.
Joa. Demers, Liberal M.P. for St. John-Berthelme, promoted to the Supreme Court of Quebec.
Thibideau Rinfret, former Liberal candidate in Terrebonne, made judge of Montreal Superior Court.
Robert Smith, K.C., ex-M.P. for Cornwall, elevated to the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Charles A. Wilson, former Liberal member for Laval, appointed judge of the Superior Court of Ontario.
Hon. D. D. MacKenzie, solicitor-general in the King Government, appointed judge of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court.

Arthur Trahan, Liberal M.P. for Nicolet, promoted to the Quebec Bench.
J. B. T. Caron, former Liberal member for Ottawa City, made Ontario county court judge.
W. H. Wright, defeated Liberal candidate in Southwest Grey in 1917, made judge of Ontario Supreme Court.

Hon. J. R. Boyle, Liberal leader of the Alberta Legislature, to be judge of the Supreme Court of Alberta.
M. G. Cameron, K.C., Liberal member of Ontario Legislature for Centre Huron from 1902 to 1908, and unsuccessful Liberal candidate in Centre Huron in 1911, promoted to be judge of the united counties of Durham and Northumberland.

STONEHENGE

Since Stonehenge, the most impressive monument of its kind in Europe, has been made a gift to the British nation by Sir Cecil Chubb, it appears that Mr. Jowett, the First Commissioner of Works, has given permission to a sect known as the Society of Druids, to recreate their dead within Stonehenge. This has aroused strong criticism from archaeologists. It is held that now the public own Stonehenge they will look upon such intrusions as trespass and as an invasion of a place which everyone should desire to maintain intact and unalterable. That this concession should be made to such a cult as the "Society of Druids" is all the more extraordinary because the First Commissioner of Works should know that the myth that Stonehenge is a prehistoric monument has been exploded long ago.

Stonehenge was donated to the British nation for archaeological purposes. It is now being submitted to skillful investigation and it is possible that many interesting discoveries will be made. It is regarded as entirely inappropriate that it should be converted into a temple, and a cemetery for one particular sect. Of the discussion on the subject The London Times says: "The site has been the scene of much desecration in the past; but it was thought that, with the Government to protect it, it was at length free from interference of all kinds. No wonder the Wiltshire archaeologists are up in arms. They know the stones better than Whitehall; their country may be said to be the birthplace of English field archaeology, and it is their voice, rather than that of an extraneous sect, which ought to carry the day."

The old question of responsibility for the Great War is being revived. Lord Parmoor apparently has some recipe for the problem which will satisfy Germany's susceptibilities. In the meantime The London Daily Herald, the organ of Britain's Labor Government, says that the responsibility rests with Earl Grey (then Sir Edward Grey). According to The Herald no doubt, a word from Sir Edward would have stayed the feet of the German legions who were already on the march before Britain's attitude was disclosed.

Sir Hamar Greenwood is a Canadian whose political preference in Britain has won him wide respect. His conviction is that the self-governing Dominions within the British Empire should share the responsibilities of that Empire if they are to be equal parties in foreign policy and treaties. That is not the viewpoint of Mr. Mackenzie King. He wants all the prestige of nationhood without paying the price.

Interested parties are growing restless because nothing is done to settle war claims. The Federal Government some time ago appointed Mr. William Pugsley to inquire into these claims but to date although he has expended $15,000, of which $11,000 is in personal salary, not a single claim has been satisfied. It is almost six years since the Armistice.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

We suppose there is a period in the lives of all men and a corresponding period in the lives of all women when it would be nice to be endowed with the power of Joshua, who commanded the sun to stand still. There have been such periods in our life, periods when it would have been glorious if we could have commanded everything to remain indefinitely in a static state. But that is a condition of mind which theologians probably define as a longing for immortality, and it is a condition which is not attainable in this world, which, with every living thing in it, is condemned to change, decay and death. What may happen when we are translated to another world is a matter of interesting speculation.

The thought entered our mind on Sunday afternoon while listening to the music of the band and watching the great crowd of men, women and children who also were listening to the music of the band, and apparently enjoying it, what a glorious thing it would be if we had the power to command the sun to stand still and thus bestow upon that happy throng the wonderful privilege of forgetting all the petty affairs and cares of life, and reveling in those sweet harmonies forever and forever!

But time, as inexorable as death, flows on and the seasons change. The sun has accomplished his mission for another year. He has done his work in this part of the world, and is on his way to perform in like manner in other parts of the world. We suppose the people "down below" are longing for his arrival—the husbandmen preparing the soil for the seed, the musicians tuning up their instruments for the concert, and the women preening their garments for the usual Summer parade.

There are no people in the world nowadays gifted with supernatural powers. The sun cannot be arrested in his progress, neither can time be commanded to halt in its flight. Everything is changing. There is no permanency in anything, not even in the fashions. We suppose that next season, when the sun is shining and the band begins to play, short skirts and shorter sleeves, permitting the onlooker a glimpse of shapely limbs, will be succeeded by garments which "will leave something to the imagination."

In some parts of the world there is an occasional revolution; all parts of the world are in a state of continuous evolution. Even the politicians are not exempt from the provisions of this immutable law. Opinions differ as to whether we are marching onward, side-stepping or shuffling backward.

Conditions have arisen in Great Britain which at one time we would never have considered possible. Circumstances have arisen in Canada which now seem to be absurd, with Right Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King directing them. There is a Labor Government in power in Britain; there is a Liberal Government nominally in power in Canada. Liberalism as a militant political force is said to be in the throes of dissolution in Britain; Liberalism in Canada will land the country in the throes of dissolution unless something turns up opportunely to arrest its errant course.

Then consider what is happening in British Columbia, with a private member of the Legislature, who has not yet even taken the oath that he will faithfully and patriotically perform the duties of his office, dictating the policy of the Government in certain matters. When asked what he means by threatening to resign something, he says he does not mean to resign from the Legislature, but merely to resign as a supporter of the Government. Now under the old and orthodox political dispensation the custom ordinarily followed by a member who did not agree with the policy of a government was to vote against that government. So you see that the political fashions and customs are changing. There appears to be nothing permanent here below—and we used to think that old political traditions would endure forever.

There was a time when we used to believe that a triumphant democracy had solved all our political problems and established institutions that were indestructible. Triumphant democracy in reality appears to have made our political institutions more complex, more unworkable, and generally more unsatisfactory than the institutions which preceded them.

Cities are beginning to find out, or think they are beginning to find out, that better results can be achieved by administration of their affairs by one man than by administration of their affairs by a company of men. Experiments with municipal managers have been tried in several instances, and in nearly every instance they are said to have proved satisfactory. The essence of democracy is complexity; the essence of dictatorship is directness and simplicity. One is costly and unsatisfactory; the other economical and satisfactory. Of late held in decision, appear about to be adopted in practice.

Even the customs and fashions in golf, at one time considered fixed and unalterable, are subject to change. At one time it was considered the absolutely correct thing—at least on one of the courses of Victoria—for a player to appear on the links, dressed only, as to his upper parts, in a golf jacket. Knickerbockers were optional, and blazers tolerated, but no liberties were allowed in other garments. Now golfers may be seen golfing in ordinary shirts and everyday neckerchiefs; and those who sit on the benches of the golfers by the various leads are never heard to utter a word of criticism. Such things being so, it is apparent that anything may happen in this world of change and innovations.

Canada's Story Day by Day

BY BUDWEN DAVIES

SEPTEMBER 17
This date marks the day in 1922 when Governor Simcoe convened the first Parliament in Upper Canada, which is the Ontario of today. The Parliament met at Newark, now Niagara, the seat of the Legislature, a dream of self rule, cherished so long in the hearts of British men and women. The pioneers of the new province had not hesitated to set about creating a rule of law and order in the outposts of civilization in Canada. Most of the men appointed to the first Parliament were farmers, old woodsmen, though practically all had come from an earlier life in the United States, for Upper Canada was at that time almost entirely populated by United Empire Loyalists. Their journey to Newark had been arduous and rough, but each and all were imbued with the vision of a British system of self government in the English-speaking settlements to the West. There was a blending of brilliant uniforms, English finery and Canadian homeliness in the garments of the legislators, for these men tied the soil and made the laws with equal earnestness and simplicity. In the first month of this opening session the Parliament of Upper Canada, English civil law was introduced, and trial by jury established. Legislation was introduced for the erection of a jail and courthouses in each district, for the regulation of weights and measures, and other such common laws as daily affect the citizens and by which peace and order are maintained.

The Cock Pheasant
Sir—I am sure every bird lover will appreciate the sentiments of your correspondent in your "Note and Comment" of the 14th inst. The writer has seen tragedies in bird life that for him at least have called forth sympathy and has put far away any thought of their destruction. Regarding your correspondent's remark as to the family affection of cock pheasants, my general knowledge does not enable me to verify or deny the statement set forth, but I desire to claim an exception for at least one of that number. "Our Street" there are some cock pheasants, and Mr. Pheasant and his lady set up housekeeping therein, and when the "wee toots" arrived, I saw every one of them with a swelled breast, strutting up and down apparently with no other desire but to show his "department." One day I saw an eye for eye for a couple of cock pheasants who appeared on the scene, and at once daddy began to crow, as much as to say, "Doubtless you have come to see my department." This call was kept up at intervals, the dogs following, until the intruders were led off a considerable distance. This happened in several occasions to the writer's knowledge, and when later I saw him at the head of his family marching through my garden, I thought he had a perfect right to step proudly, as his ingenuity had been no small factor in preserving their lives.

Civic Government
Sir—Reverting as promised to the commissioner-city manager plan of civic management, enclosed please find 1923 annual report of the City of Dayton, Ohio, which I am distributing 100 copies.

You will observe this is the tenth year under the above form of administration, and that they have in reality appeared to have made our political institutions more complex, more unworkable, and generally more unsatisfactory than the institutions which preceded them.

BIG INCREASE IN TAX PAYMENT

INCREASE OF $127,824.08 IN ADVANCE PAYMENTS

Payments on Arrears of Taxes and Interest—Outlook Encouraging, Claims Alderman

An excess of $127,824.08 in the amount of taxes prepaid up to the end of August this year over the amount prepaid during the corresponding period of 1923, reveals the growing popularity of the city's tax prepayment scheme, according to a statement prepared yesterday by Alderman Sargent.

At the end of August, 1923, current taxes to the amount of $140,000 had been prepaid, the statement reveals. At the end of August, this year, $287,824.08 had been prepaid.

"This year the city has been stressing the advantages of prepaying taxes," Alderman Sargent told The Colonist yesterday. "Property owners who are earning salaries have been urged to pay a sufficient portion of their taxes each month, beginning if possible, with January, to clear up the whole sum by the end of October, when the penalty for non-payment is added. Property owners with money to invest have been asked to deposit with the city treasurer at any time the equivalent of the current taxes. All who prepay in any way are given 6 per cent interest on their money."

"Next year should see $500,000 of the current taxes prepaid," declared Alderman Sargent, "for a continuous increasing number of property owners are realizing that they can make their money earn what otherwise would have to be paid by the city to its bankers for temporary accommodation."

"Another encouraging feature of the present situation with regard to the reversed, lands prepaid is the huge increase in the amount paid this year, on account of general arrears of taxes and interest. At the end of August, 1923, $140,000 had been paid on account of general arrears of taxes and interest. In the corresponding period of this year, $38,557.72 was paid, an excess of $101,442.28 over the figure of last year."

Better Than Last Year
"Last year at end of August, there had been paid on account of consolidated arrears and interest, $9,463.43. This year the payments to credit of this amount amount to $21,459.14, or $11,995.71 better than last year."

"At the end of August, 1924, there had been redeemed lands sold at the 1923 tax sale to the value of $12,750.24. At the same date in 1923, the sum received by the city for redemption of lands sold at the 1923 tax sale was $2,154.84, a difference of $10,595.40 in favor of this year on that account."

"Grouping all these accounts under one common head of 'tax payments,' there was a gross betterment in payments this year at end of August of 75 per cent. The figures stand thus: Total payments at end of August, 1924 ..... $421,937.18
Total payments at end of August, 1923 ..... 240,648.07

Betterment in favor of 1924 ..... $181,289.08
"Again, if we examine the city borrowings at the bank for current expenditure, we find:
Owing to bank at end of August, 1923 ..... $392,100.00
Owing to bank at end of August, 1924 ..... 636,100.00

Difference in favor of 1924 ..... $244,000.00
Encouraging
"These improvements in the figures for this year, as compared with last year, bring encouraging news to the many property owners who take a lively interest in our civic finances and to all citizens interested in the general welfare of Victoria."

The popularity of bonds in Canada as an investment received great impetus with the first issue of war bonds by the Dominion Government, the popularity continued without abatement because of the high rate of interest money has commanded. The tide of high interest earning on bonds has turned, however, and who will venture to predict how soon land will again have its innings?

CIVIC TAXATION WILL BE THEME AT LUNCHEON

The importance of exercising control of the municipal taxation will be the theme of addresses to be delivered by three representatives of the Vancouver Property Owners' Association at the fortnightly luncheon of the board, to be held at the Chamber of Commerce at 12:30 today.

Mr. Norman Molson, president of the association, will first address the meeting, followed by Mr. Ernest E. Evans and Mr. A. E. Foran. The matter is of such importance that representatives of the City Council and adjacent municipalities have been invited and citizens who are interested will be welcomed. It is requested, however, that any such kindly notify the secretary of the Real Estate Board, Mr. H. Lethaby, (phone 15) before 11 a.m., so that the necessary arrangements can be made.

The luncheon will begin at 12:30 sharp and the addresses at 1 o'clock. Members of the Real Estate Board are particularly requested to be present in view of the importance of the subject.

GOVERNOR NICHOL OPENS FAIR TODAY

WILL OFFICIATE AT METCHOSIN FAIR

Directors Claim Exhibition Is Most Representative Ever Held—Record List of Entries

At 1 o'clock today Lieutenant-Governor Walter C. Nichol will formally open the Metchosin District Fair, which is being held at the Colwood Hall under the auspices of the Metchosin Farmers' Institute.

Following extensive preparations interest in the fair runs high among residents of Metchosin district. The fair is the largest of its kind in the province and today's exhibition is the first to give a representative idea of the growth of agriculture on the southwest part of Vancouver Island. Entries have poured in from points throughout the whole of the district southwest of Victoria as far as Sooke.

One of the features of the fair is the goat show, which has attracted a record list of forty entries. The same number of entries constitutes one of the largest goat shows ever held in the district fairs. Fruit and potatoes are being displayed in greater quantities than at the recent Provincial Exhibition here, directors of the fair stated yesterday.

A very beautiful exhibit of flowers enhances the decorative scheme, which executives of the fair have employed to transform the prosaic interior of the Colwood Hall. It includes fine displays from Tollock Bros. and from Hallett Park.

The arts of the housewife are portrayed vividly in the exhibits comprising the women's section, which occupies the whole of the left side of the building. This section is under the direction of the Luxton-Happy Valley Women's Institute.

The Federal Department of Agriculture has filled the right hand side of the hall with a comprehensive exhibit which includes a beautiful display of fresh fruits and vegetables from the Experimental Farm at Sidney.

Evidencing the growing faith in tasted seeds, the record potato exhibit consists almost entirely of tubers grown from certified seed. There are over one hundred entries in the plate fruit class.

During the day experts will deliver addresses on various Agricultural topics. In addition to a program of music, the management has arranged a radio entertainment both for the afternoon and evening. Numerous side-shows will provide further entertainment for the visiting public. The exhibition will be open to the public from 11 o'clock this morning until 11 o'clock tonight.

BAPTISMAL SERVICE

A very interesting, and perhaps the largest baptismal service ever held in Victoria or on Vancouver Island, was conducted on Monday evening in the First Baptist Church of our city. A great crowd of about 400 people being present.

The service was conducted by Pastors H. Wesley Canney and Thomas A. Randall, of the Full Gospel Tabernacle, Douglas and Pandora Streets. A most striking incident in the service was the opening prayer, which was led by the Rev. Lennox, pioneer Baptist minister on this island, who was present.

Rev. Canney's message being on the scriptural foundation of water baptism, was eagerly listened to.

HERBERT FULLERTON IN COURT ON CRUELTY CHARGE AT OAK BAY

Charged with cruelty to animals, Mr. Herbert M. Fullerton will be called upon this morning in the Oak Bay police court to defend himself against an information laid by the R. P. C. The offence is one of alleged ill treatment of a dog.

The information was sworn out before Magistrate George Jay by Inspector G. T. Maurice, of the Victoria branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, as a result of an incident last Sunday on Lansdowne road when the defendant is alleged to have shown cruelty towards his dog.

MISSION WORKER IS GIVEN PRESENTATION

Miss Muriel Harmon Receives Gift From Church of Our Lord Sunday School

Miss Harmon, one of the most active workers of the Church of Our Lord, Reformed Episcopal, who is entering mission work shortly, was presented on behalf of the Sunday School with a beautiful Schofield Bible at the afternoon service on Sunday. The presentation was made by Mr. Laundry on behalf of the scholars and friends of the Church. The whole service was unusually interesting, the day being observed as "Bible Sunday." A profusion of flowers and fruit was brought by the young people and children, and these were afterwards taken to the hospital and the Aged Women's Home. The chief feature, however, was the valedictory to Miss Muriel Harmon, who is leaving Victoria to take a course in the Bible School in Toronto preparatory to entering the Mission field in Africa.

Two well-known mission workers, Mrs. Nalder, an associate of Funda Mahabul at one time, and Canon Stockton, who worked for many years among the Blackfoot Indians. Mrs. Nalder laid emphasis on the honor which the Sunday School, the Church and the family of Miss Harmon should feel in sharing her work and in some ways assisting with it. The mission field, this speaker maintained, was the real work of the Church of Christ. Canon Stockton spoke of knowing Dr. Reed and being present at the service in Albert Hall, London, where Dr. Reed and the other Cambridge "six" were consecrated for work in China under the China-India Mission.

FEVER SERUM WILL REACH HERE SOON

DR. H. E. YOUNG TELLS KIWANIS ANS OF HEALTH MATTERS

Many Defective Children in Province Revealed by School Inspections—
Work of Health Department

"This Fall, from the Toronto laboratory, I shall have the first serum to combat scarlet fever, one of the greatest scourges we have, a cause of Bright's disease, blindness and many other evils. Think what it means if we give children immunity to this disease if the parents will only let us," declared Dr. H. E. Young, chairman of the Provincial Board of Health, in speaking to members of the Victoria Kiwanis Club yesterday at noon in the Chamber of Commerce.

The speaker traced the growth and development of the Health Department, stating that at the present time it was devoting its energies to the prevention of disease and the promotion of health, by widening the knowledge of methods of combating illness. He said the department tried to commence with the individual before he or she is born, pre-natal service, followed by pre-school inspection.

"British Columbia is the first country to establish school medical inspections, and my report for the past year, not yet published, will show many defective children. Ninety per cent of whom are remediable and 80 per cent will result in repetition of those conditions among adults discovered by the war enlistments, when we had over 20 per cent of rejections—not very good for a country like Canada. Only worse conditions were to be found in the United States," Dr. Young asserted.

Dr. Young described the laboratory work done in co-operation with cities and the operation of the venereal clinics. He spoke of the cost of handling such cases and the big expense entailed through cases of smallpox.

In referring to prohibition, Dr. Young demonstrated that no progress was made in fifty years by an important minority until the railways took an attitude towards their men of "keep sober or you can't work for us." He said that in the next fifty years more progress was attained than in all the previous half century.

"The growth of voluntary public opinion has been the factor which enabled the government to establish legislation," he averred.

In conclusion Dr. Young spoke of the Sanich War Memorial Health Centre, outlining its origin and work, and stated that the women served were the most ardent supporters of its operations.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Dr. Young by the Kiwanians on the motion of Dr. Howard Miller and Mr. James Forman, the latter describing the guest of honor as "the best friend the Jubilee Hospital has." In introducing the speaker to the club, President Willis said that "Dr. Young was the prime factor in the existence of a Provincial University."

Tuneless airs upon a handsaw were Mr. W. Watson's contribution to the programme, and his entertainment was much enjoyed. Mr. Forman invited members of the club to attend the Real Estate Board luncheon today in the Chamber of Commerce, when taxation matters will be under discussion.

ENGLAND RATIFIES AMENDED COVENANT

Article 16 of League Instrument Now Provides for Economic Blockade of Offending Belligerent

GENEVA, Sept. 16.—Ratification of the amendments made to Article 16 of the League covenant has been deposited at the League of Nations Secretariat by the British Government, which took the official action for the British Empire as a whole, including Canada, Australia, the Union of South Africa, New Zealand and India.

Article 16 of the League, as amended, declares that should any member of the League resort to war in disregard of its agreements under previous articles, it shall be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the League, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade and financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between persons residing in their territory and persons residing in the territory of the covenant-breaking state, and the prevention of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between persons residing in the territory of any other state, whether a member of the League or not.

The second paragraph of this article which is usually called the economic blockade article, declares that it is for the council to give an opinion as to whether or not a breach of the covenant has taken place, and that in deliberations on this question in the council the votes of members of the League alleged to have resorted to war, and of members against whom such action was directed, shall not be counted.

Another amendment provides that the council may postpone the operation of any blockade measures for a specified period when it is satisfied that such a postponement will facilitate the attainment of peace.

Some eighteen states have ratified the various amendments to the blockade article. Amendments to the covenant, however, only take effect when ratified by a majority of the members of the League, and by all the members of the League who have representatives on the council.

Soviet Moscow Adopts Busses of London Type

MOSCOW, Sept. 16.—Moscow, which from time immemorial has depended upon the horse-drawn carriage for its transportation, will soon have its own motor busses. Eight omnibuses of the London type will make their appearance shortly, and it is the intention of the municipal authorities eventually to establish connection with suburban districts.

This will do much, the officials say, to relieve the fearful congestion on trolley cars and trains, and will also encourage part of the population to move to the suburbs.

RAILROADER'S HIGH WAGES A BURDEN

Winnipeg Manufacturers Lodge Complaint Against Scale of Salaries Paid by Canadian Lines

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.—A complaint has been lodged with the Railway Commission by B. B. Hugg, K. C., solicitor for the Tudhope Anderson Company, Ltd., with headquarters at Winnipeg, and with a factory at Orillia, that "high wages" paid employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway are a burden on the rest of the community. It is argued in the complaint that an unreasonable exaction is levied on all shippers in the form of high freight rates, and railway employees are able to maintain a high standard of living at the expense particularly of the producers of cereals, livestock and other farm products. Notice has been served on the railways to file an answer to the complaint within fifteen days.

Zuyder Zee Dutch Speak English as She Is Spoke

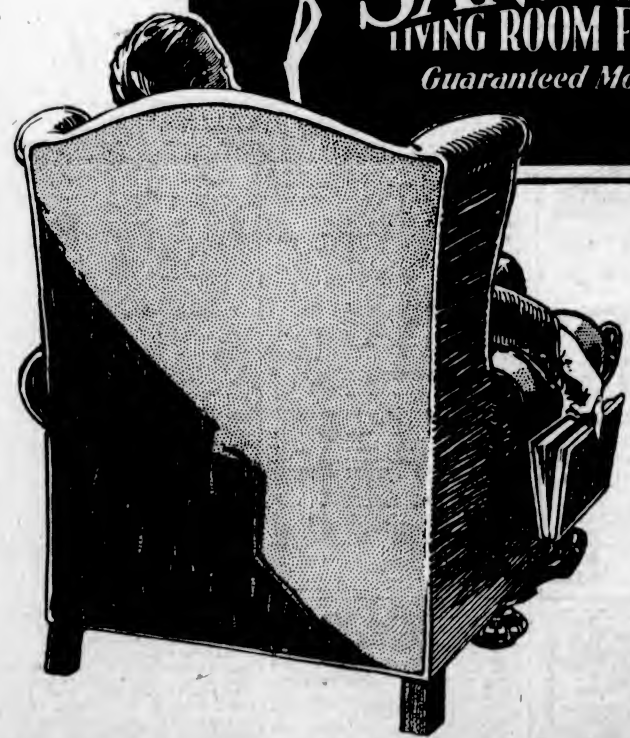

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 16.—American tourists have flocked this season to the quaint island of Marken in the Zuyder Zee. This is one of the few communities in Holland where the native dress has not given way to standardized clothes. Huge balloon trousers for the men, and gay pink, blue and yellow waists, full petticoats and white caps for the women still are worn in Marken.

The little folks dress just as do their elders. The picturesque quality of the place, maintained with an eye to business, have drawn so many American visitors that not a few of the natives speak English without an accent.

U.S. Officials Making Air Reconnaissance of Forest Fires at Port Angeles Come to Grief

PORT ANGELES, Sept. 16.—Lieut. Theodore J. Koenig, commander of Sand Point Aviation Field, Seattle, and Chris Morgan Roth, United States forester stationed here, were slightly injured, and the airplane in which they were flying over the Olympic national forest, was wrecked near Quilcene, says a report received here tonight.

Koenig left the aviation field with Roth to make a reconnaissance over the Olympic forest in an effort to chart forest fires. They were flying over Little Quilcene, Snow Creek, Bogachiel and Quinalt fires and returned to the starting point.

HISTORIC DOCUMENT TO INSURE PEACE OF WORLD IS APPROVED

security of the people whose existence, liberty and territory might be threatened, and being desirous of establishing a system providing for the peaceful settlement of disputes arising between members of the international community and for repression, if necessary, of international crime, and being determined to carry out a reduction and limitation of armaments contemplated in Article Eight of the Covenant of the League of Nations, it has been agreed to accept the following provisions:

Articles 1, 2, 3 and 5 of the draft must eventually be drawn up in agreement with the arbitration committee of the Assembly. They provide that signatories recognize henceforward as obligatory, ipso jure and without special convention, jurisdiction of the world court of justice in conformity with the compulsory arbitration clause but with reservations.

These include that in the application of Articles 13, 14 and 15 of the Covenant signatories confirm their undertaking to submit to the Council of the League all disputes, in violation of which no other court of arbitration is provided for, with the understanding that the League Assembly alone shall be competent to decide as to the necessity for revision of existing treaties.

Court of Arbitration
The Council shall act as a court of arbitration, taking its decision by majority vote, and parties to the dispute shall retain the right to sit in the Council during the discussion of the matter submitted.

During the examination of a dispute the Council may, by a majority vote, order measures to be taken by the parties involved with a view to the preventing or stopping of armed conflict. The procedure provided in the foregoing article shall apply to the permanent court of justice in cases which come within the competence of this court. If such dispute is submitted for arbitration to some other court than the court or Council, the Council of the League shall have power to follow the procedure.

Article Four of the draft provides that to safeguard the carrying out of the provisional measures to prevent conflicts and to forestall the possibility of the aggressor, the Council or permanent court of justice, on its own initiative or at the request of one of the parties to the conflict, shall, when the appeal is made, or at any other time, arrange for the sending of international supervisory committees. These shall during the entire course of procedure be entrusted with the task of insuring that none of the parties are engaged upon the preparation of mobilization of an entirely military nature. The committees shall be composed of military and civil experts appointed by the Council of the League from different countries and up to date by the different governments.

An Aggressor State
Article Five, which must go before the arbitration committee of the Assembly, declares that a signatory state which fails to submit its disputes to the rules of peaceful settlement indicated above, or fails to carry out awards of competent arbitration bodies within the limits defined in the decision and, if its act of disobedience is liable to trouble the world's peace, then it shall be declared an aggressor state and outlawed. This declaration of aggression shall be made by the permanent court of justice when an order issued by it has not been carried out, and in all other cases by the Council voting by majority.

The draft then goes on to deal with the vital question of sanctions. When the above declaration is made the Council of the League shall call upon the members of the League to put into operation the sanctions contained in Article Seven of the protocol. This article, which formed the chief subject of today's discussions before the committee, is one of the essential features of the draft and declares that as soon as a declaration of aggression has been made and the outlawing of the aggressor has been effected by declaration, the obligations of the signatories concerning sanctions of all kinds contained in Article Sixteen of the Covenant will immediately become operative.

Obligations Interpreted
Obligations shall be interpreted as obliging each member of the League to co-operate loyally and effectively in support of the League covenant and in resistance to acts of aggression. In accordance with Article 16 of the covenant, signatories undertake individually or collectively to assist a state which is attacked or threatened and to give one another mutual support by facilities and reciprocal exchanges, as regards supplies, raw materials and foodstuffs, opening credits, transportation and transit and for this purpose to insure the safety of land and sea communications of the attacked or threatened state. The next paragraph stipulates that if both parties to a dispute have been declared aggressors according to the preceding provisions, then economic sanctions will be applied to both of them.

A supplementary article emphasizes that economic and financial sanctions are somewhat complex and hence, to define guarantees offered to adhering states, the Council of the League shall instruct its economic, financial and disarmament commissions to draw up plans of action with a view to establishing a blockade of the aggressor state and to draw up plans of economic and financial co-operation between the state attacked and the different states assisting it.

Article 8 of the draft stipulates that the Council can accept individual or collective undertakings entered into by states, which determine in advance the military forces which they would immediately place at the Council's disposal to insure carrying out of measures decided upon by the world court or Council. When the aggressor has been designated signatory states may, in accordance with the undertaking previously entered into, place in the field the whole or such portions as they may consider necessary of their military forces against the party declared to be the aggressor. (This is the draft's manner of authorizing regional agreements.)

Application of Sanctions
Article 8 mentions the famous League of Nations Covenant and declares that the application of sanctions outlined above shall not under any circumstances include violation of the political or territorial independence of an aggressor state.

Article 9 gets down to a consideration of the disarmament conferences which will follow in the wake of the acceptance of the arbitration security protocol. It explains that this protocol requires the signatories to participate in the international conference for the reduction of armaments, which shall be convened under the auspices of the League of Nations at the earliest possible time. The Council of the League shall draw up a general programme for a disarmament conference.

If, within the time limit as hereafter fixed and after coming into force of the protocol, a conference is not assembled or a scheme for the reduction of armaments has not been adopted or carried out, the Council of the League may record this fact and each signatory will thereupon regard his complete freedom of action as having been suspended. The conditions on which the Council may declare that a scheme drawn up by an international conference has not been carried out, and that, accordingly, the protocol has become null and void, shall be defined by the conference itself.

By Article 10 all differences relating to the carrying out of the interpretation of a protocol shall be submitted to a permanent court of international justice. Article 11 specifies that the protocol, which shall be open to the signature of all states, shall be ratified and the ratifications deposited with the permanent secretariat of the League of Nations at Geneva. Another article of the protocol dwells upon demilitarized zones, it emphasizes that such zones that already have been created through existing treaties are designed to prevent aggression and recommends their creation between the states. The article continues the already existing demilitarized zones or zones which may be established in the future between equally consenting states, and shall form the subject of a temporary or permanent supervision organized by the Council of the League at the request of one or all of the adjoining states.

The text of the protocol is preceded by an exposition of the principles on which the draft is based. It emphasizes that compulsory procedure for the peaceful settlement of disputes has been universally recognized as an indispensable principle. With the British giving assurances to the French, it is understood that the French on their part have been spending some time in convincing certain continental leaders that to-day's draft protocol does not represent a sinister project whereby England might unduly extend her influence in Continental Europe and neglect her master, not only of the high seas, but of the continental mainland. Although nothing has been definitely decided, indications tonight were that the Assembly would be asked to adopt a resolution to which the delegates' solemn intention to submit the protocol to their home governments for signature. Leaders behind the project presented today believe that if this course is followed many states might sign the protocol before their representatives leave Geneva.

DECIDE ONTARIO'S FORM OF BALLOT

Cabinet Prepares for Forthcoming Liquor Plebiscite in Order to Obviate Confusion

TORONTO, Sept. 16.—The Ontario cabinet this afternoon decided on the form of the plebiscite ballot. There will be two questions, one asking whether voters favor the continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act and the other if Government control of sale of beer and spirituous liquor is desired. They will be placed one under the other, with a blank line between them and a blank space to the right of the questions, to be marked by the voter "Yes" or "No."

This manner of expressing the vote, it is believed, will obviate any confusion and expedite the counting of the vote.

SPARE NO EFFORT SEEKING GUILTY

"Every effort is being bent towards discovering the actual identity of the person owning the clothing, which, to date, has been dispensed by everyone interrogated."

Attempts to discover when the last fire was lighted in the furnace have so far proved abortive, nor can any reason be adduced for the fact that some of the telltale garments were practically destroyed while other portions were but slightly charred.

Parcel Is Guarded
The "find" is jealously guarded by police officials, and the eyes of strangers are not permitted to gaze upon the parcel which detectives raked from the ashes.

A rumor to the effect that the dress in which the girl's body was clothed when found was a party dress and not her usual costume, was dispelled when it was stated that examination at both inquests showed the outer garments to be the ordinary denim uniform worn by Miss Smith when carrying out her duties as nurse.

Search for the Chinese gardener, said to have been employed at intervals at the Baker residence, has so far proved futile, the theory of the police being that the man, seeing the difficulties in which his countryman, Wong Sing, has been involved in the case is lying in close hiding and will not be located, even though he may know nothing of the tragedy.

Whether his discovery would lead to any clue to the mystery or whether he was actually working near the Oiler Avenue house on the morning of the shooting, has not been definitely settled, but the police, realizing that he is the only person in the case who has not been questioned, are anxious to obtain information as to his whereabouts.

At a meeting of the Council of the Vancouver Scottish societies held on Monday night, it was decided to leave the Janet Smith case in abeyance until arrangements have been made for a conference of various Greater Vancouver police forces and the Attorney-General.

Alexander Henderson, K.C., who represented the Scottish societies at the second inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death of the girl, outlined the evidence given at the inquest, and the situation was discussed.

The Reward
The reward offered through societies is $1,025, and this is augmented by the Province's Government's reward of $2,000. The societies' reward is good for ninety days and will only be paid to private detective agencies or private individuals.

Extreme reticence is shown by authorities in giving out any information relative to their investigations. The only statement obtainable today was to the effect that no immediate arrest was expected, but that every angle of the mystery was being thoroughly covered.

Ontario's Pay Handsome Dividends
MONTREAL, Sept. 16.—The directors of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Company, Ltd., besides declaring the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent, have declared a bonus of 12 per cent on the common shares, payable October 1 to shareholders of record September 23. In 1922 and 1923, the company paid a bonus of 10 per cent plus the regular disbursement of 12 per cent per annum.

GERMAN ACTORS LACK WORK

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—It is estimated that 900 out of every 1,000 actors and actresses of the Berlin theatres were without jobs this Summer. A great many of the playhouses are closed. The situation in filmdom is also in the doldrums.

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Henderson, 333 Moss Street, celebrated their golden wedding on Tuesday, September 16. They were married in 1874 in the town of Cobourg, Ontario, both having been born there seventy-three years ago. Mr. Henderson is the oldest and only living son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Henderson, of Cobourg, and Mrs. Henderson is the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John D. Roberts, of Cobourg. The ceremony of fifty years ago was performed there by Rev. Edward Roberts, uncle of the bride. Of the three bridesmaids and three groomsmen, only two are living, Miss Sara Henderson, of Cobourg, and Mrs. James Ross, of Ottawa. After several years of married life in Cobourg, Mr. and Mrs. Henderson came west, settling near Regina. Eleven years ago they visited Victoria and decided to make it their home. Of a family of eight, five sons and three daughters, five are living—Charles R., of Prince George; William A., of Brighouse; Miss Helen, at home; Eric D., of Campbell; and Mrs. Howard Silverdale, of Winnipeg. Of the second generation, there are fourteen grandchildren and one granddaughter. A reception was held at their residence and during the afternoon and evening a large number of friends called to offer their congratulations. Many beautiful gifts and a large number of telegrams were received. The previous evening at the harvest home social at the Fairfield Methodist Church, of which Mr. and Mrs. Henderson are members, the quarterly board and ladies' aid took occasion to honor them with a handsome illuminated address and beautiful basket of flowers. In response to which Mr. Henderson expressed the appreciation and thanks of Mrs. Henderson and himself.

Wedding Takes Place

On Monday morning at the Halliburton Street Methodist Parsonage, the Rev. R. Welch united in marriage Miss Maude Sandland, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandland, Gillespie Street, and Mr. Percy Hackwood, son of Mr. James Hackwood, Nicol Street. The bride wore a smart navy blue tricot travelling costume, with navy blue velvet hat, relieved by a pearl grey ostrich tip. Her bouquet was composed of Ophelia rosebuds and maidenhair fern. She was attended by Miss Gladys Sandland, her sister, who was attired in a pretty dress of navy Canton crepe with a beaded ornament trimming, and a picture hat of navy and grey brocade silk velvet. Rosebuds and gladioli formed the bridesmaid's bouquet. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Harry Hackwood. After a honeymoon spent in Vancouver, Seattle and Victoria, the couple will take up their residence on Nicol Street here.

Fashions and Foibles

By Shirley Sharon

Flannel and wool jersey tubing lend their lovely colors to soft, simple frocks with a bit of fullness below a yoke-line in the front.

The new colors for the Fall are very subdued but also very lovely. For elegance the Parisienne wears black and a touch of French grey—the latter is especially new and smart. But for informal types of dress in town and in the country she wears flannel and wool jersey in the new browns and grey-greens and beige shades. All the brown shades are good, especially the dust, desert and earth browns, fur shades, dead leaf, bark and African. Brown is one of the new tans and the grey-greens of the lichen order are very lovely. Dress of wine, cherry brandy, cranberry and garnet are the new reds.

Province Is Big Business And Needs Big Publicity

Business of Advertising British Columbia Is of Prime Importance to All Its Residents. Who Are Shareholders in Great Concern, Says Provincial Bureau Secretary, Who Indicates Need of Co-operation Between Local and Governmental Organizations

(By H. W. Hart, Secretary Bureau of Provincial Information)

ONE of the greatest factors in the business world is publicity, and in any enterprising business organization the appropriation for advertising bulks largest in the overhead expenses. The mere spending of money for this purpose does not mark any organization as progressive or efficient; the value of the publicity in relation to its cost is the thing which counts. Co-operation is the first principle. Take bread as an example. The baking trade advertises extensively. "Buy bakers' bread" is the appeal in its effect, and John Doe, who advertises his "Peanut bread," secures a new customer. The trade appeal induced the consumer to buy bakers' bread; John Doe's advertisement told of a specific local brand; and between the two both John Doe and the baking trade in general benefited. "Save the surface and you save the rest" is another example of the thought that I wish to convey.

British Columbia is the largest business in the province; it is the province itself, and the business of advertising it is of importance to all residents, shareholders in the company. In selling its goods, not to and for the sole benefit of individuals, but for the profit of all, publicity must take a foremost part. Publicity of the most effective kind, returning full value for every cent expended, is what is wanted; and to insure the greatest possible results co-operation is imperative. The lesson of "buy bakers' bread," and "save the surface and you save the rest" as the basis of operations; all publicity forces should be marshalled, and a concentrated plan of campaign mapped out. It is not necessary for any units to lose their individuality, but co-ordination of effort would increase the effectiveness of British Columbia's, at present, unorganized publicity.

Competition vs. Co-operation. Competition often leads to errors of judgment which might be prevented. Brown Brothers naturally try to sell their own shoe polish and all in the effort to keep Black & Company's goods out of the market. But if in their efforts to force their own goods on a reluctant customer, they turn him against Black's polish, and he purchases a foreign article instead, both firms lose. Foreign trade is advanced at the cost of Canadian industry, and the negation of such cases means that less money is available for the purchase of Black's and Brown's polishes by unimpaired consumers.

In selling a country (not in the base sense), local interest, naturally and rightly, is the first consideration. The log-hut community of Lone Dog Creek wants to boost the great advantages of its local and natural resources, with its sure and certain prospects of rapid expansion. The prospect is told of all the good things, and possibly some of the bad; but it does not fill his particular requirements. Hades Hollow, an opposition community, brought into the conversation, but the portrayal of that indescribable "dum" promptly decides the prospect that he has lost the wrong trail. Do the leaders of Lone Dog Creek who, from their "box" seats in the general store, watch the dust caused by the departing prospect on the trail to Hades Hollow, realize they have made a bad stroke of business? When Lone Dog Creek failed to please and the prospect evidenced interest in Hades Hollow, he should have been given all possible information and encouragement instead of discouragement. Had he looked at the latter place he might later have strolled into the former with his suitcase and eventually gained renown as Lone Dog Creek's oldest resident. Failing that he would have been a prospective customer for the dreamed-of mail order house at the corner of Box and Cox Streets if the streets were ever cut through.

How to Advertise

A settler lost to the Province affects every community, large and small. It means one less over which to spread the burden of taxation. It means one consumer less, one less to develop the Province, and—let us develop the return of prosperity. From the writer's point of view, British Columbia is a first. But if a desirable settler cannot be induced to come here, get him into Canada if possible. He may eventually follow the sun to British Columbia, and then continue with the birds to Victoria. If he never comes to Canada he can never reach this Province. Once in Canada, he may wiggle, but he may pay the price set by law and contribute part of what we now pay into the Federal Treasury. In addition, he will be a purchaser and consumer of Canadian goods; some of which may be the products of British Columbia. Why, what and how to advertise, and the relationship between provincial, local and business organizations are subjects meriting careful consideration. The publicity work of the Provincial Bureau of Information should fit in with other publicity and business organizations. The business house that advertises Okanagan apples or canned salmon helps the Province, and effective publicity by the Province benefits the producers of apples and salmon products. Hence the reason for co-operation which should not fail to increase efficiency all round and bring back a measure of prosperity to British Columbia.

Once more the large hat comes into prominence. This distinctive model, which is designed especially for Haroness Royce Garrett, is made of Cheney velvet, trimmed with tinsel threads.

SHAWNIGAN SCHOOL MOVES TO NEW HOME

The Leinster Preparatory School, founded by Capt. Gerald H. Barry (Leinster Regiment) in January, 1922, this year has been forced to move to larger buildings at Shawnigan Lake owing to the increased number of pupils attending. It was founded to perpetuate the memory and tradition of the Leinster Regiment.

Mr. Odo A. Barry is assisted in the senior classical work by Dr. L. A. Barry (T.C.D.), and in manual instruction by Mr. H. J. Pate. He has been fortunate in retaining the services of the matron who looked after the boys at the old buildings.

Another flag has been added to the adornment of the Lake by the erection of a forty-foot staff on the "Heights" by the Leinster School. The school is the first private school to avail itself of the services of the Duncan Health Centre for a monthly inspection. Dr. Stanley, of Cherry Point, acts as physician to the school. Both boys and girls are taken as day pupils, and boys only as boarders.

EAST SOOKE DANCE

The East Sooke Farmers' Institute gave a very enjoyable dance at the Sooke Hall last Friday evening, which was largely attended. The Sooke ladies had kindly volunteered to assist with the supper and splendidly they carried out their promise. Mrs. G. Throp undertook to make the coffee and the result pleased everyone. Mr. Mackintosh's orchestra supplied the music and dancing was kept up with great spirit until 1:30. The veteran Mr. John Murray, with Lady Emily Walker as partner, were the only couple to dance the Highland schottische. The sum of $16.55 was cleared.

Make Arrangements For World's Series

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Commissioner Landis today called meeting of presidents of six clubs fighting for major league pennants to consider world series arrangements. The session will be held in New York next Sunday.

New York, Brooklyn and Pittsburgh were National League clubs invited to attend the conference, while American League representatives will be New York, Washington and Detroit.

On certain managers who are beginning to realize that the days of fabulous purses for ordinary fighters are passing.

Today Rickard will endeavor to talk Eddie Kane and Leo P. Flynn into matching Tom Gibbons and Renault for a November scuffle. Other prospective affairs will also be discussed.

Both Gibbons and Renault want to meet Willa. Also Luis Firpo, who will longer here until next Spring if he beats the deportation proceedings. He is under contract to Rickard for two more fights.

"Logical Contenders"

Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, and George Godfrey, Philadelphia black heavy-weight, can be backed into Rickard's stall. These two, with Firpo, Willa, Renault and Gibbons, are the six most prominent "logical contenders." Rickard should be able to arrange many interesting combinations from that field. Willa should go well with Renault, Godfrey or Gibbons. He should fight Firpo. Tunney fits in with either Gibbons or Renault.

Willa and Firpo have ignored Godfrey. Renault won a ten-round decision from him recently, but the colored man put up a great battle.

Firpo Would Accept

Neither Firpo nor Willa will fight until late in the fall or early in the winter. Firpo will accept any match Rickard makes for him. Willa may be more cautious.

The white boys have lost much of their fear of Willa since the Firpo fight. Eddie Kane spoke for Gibbons, however, Willa is going to take a real, so Rickard wants Kane to take either Renault or Tunney.

If Firpo is available he may be tossed in with Gibbons or Renault. No matches will be made for Firpo, however, until he clears himself of legal entanglements.

There's something about them you'll like.

Soccer Notes

A. B. Brown

Unbeaten League Teams

There were four teams in the First Division of the English League with unbeaten records up to and including Saturday's games. The clubs comprise Huddersfield Town, The Arsenal, West Ham United and Everton.

It is noteworthy that London has two representatives on the list, Arsenal and West Ham.

In the Second Division, however, only two clubs were in this position Saturday evening, namely, Derby County and Blackpool.

In the Third Division, Southern Section, there are also two clubs with a clean sheet—Bristol Rovers and Watford.

Rochdale and Halifax Town are the two teams in the Northern Section that have not met with defeat so far.

Briefly stated, of the 58 clubs comprising all sections of the English League, only ten had escaped a reverse up to Saturday afternoon, or after a short period of three weeks' football.

The Unfortunates

Preston North End is the only club in the First Division without a victory. The once-famous club has indeed made a bad start, as the side has lost every game without even the satisfaction of a goal.

South Shields and Harsley are the two unfortunates in the Second Division without a win to their credit. And yet both are good clubs, and will surely strike their real form very soon.

Every club in the Southern Section of the Third Division has at least gained one victory. The same can be said of the Northern hosts.

It is worthy of note that the only club in the entire league without a point belongs to the First Division—Preston North End, the first champions of the competition.

London Teams Draw

The London First Division teams still continue to improve on last year's showing. True, none of them won on Saturday, but all escaped defeat.

West Ham United held the Huddersfield team to a no-scoring draw in the Big City, and incidentally it may be said that the United is the only First Division club that had not lost a game up to Saturday.

The Arsenal did well in sharing the points at Newcastle, and the team is evidently out to redeem their indifferent form of last season.

The third Metropolitan side to divide the points was Tottenham, who had Everton at White Hart Lane. Everton may challenge all comers for the championship this season.

Goals Galore

Goals were conspicuous by their presence in several of Saturday's games. At Arsenal, for instance, Liverpool showed a glimpse of their form of two years ago by defeating Manchester City 5-3, tall scoring for a First Division game.

Leeds United heralded their first win by scoring four goals against Preston North End.

Manchester United had "a picnic" in their game with Coventry City in the Second Division at Old Trafford, when the home team won 8-1.

Derby County also ran riot by defeating Fulham 5-1.

Six goals was scored at South Shields, where Wolverhampton Wanderers and the local side halved the spoils.

Down South, in the Western City of Bristol, the Rovers obtained four against Charlton Athletic, the club that once made history in the English Cup tie.

Watford, who obtained a 4-0 victory over Southend United, Watford, by the way, had not lost a goal up to Saturday. This is good for a club that just escaped the next to last place in the standing at the close of last season.

Norwich City, too, won by a 4-0 score on Saturday against Swindon Town.

The most important game in the Southern Section on Saturday was that between Millwall and Plymouth Argyle. A no-scoring draw was the result.

The defeat of Darlington by Rochdale was a notable event in the Northern Section. Nelson, too, was on the losing side to Accrington.

Notable Scottish Happenings

Glasgow Rangers, Alderstonians, Hibernians and Celtic are the first four clubs in the premier section of the Scottish League, and each has escaped defeat so far, the only teams in this happy position.

The four teams had most convincing wins on Saturday. Rangers were at Ayr, where they have failed in recent years, but this time the Light

ALEX. ROY HOPES TO STOP BAYLEY

CHAMPION'S OPPONENT SHOWS CLASS IN WORKOUTS

Two Participants in Ten-Round Bout at Pantages Tomorrow Night Are Ready for Sound of Gong

Will Joe Bayley lose his laurels to a fighter of the same rugged type that he belongs to himself, or will his experience pull him through? Is the question that will be answered tomorrow night at the Pantages Theatre when he clashes with Alex. Roy in the ten-round fracas.

Roy will put up no spectacular fight. He is just a hard fighter, young and husky, and although not polished he has plenty of experience. He steps into the ring to win and fights from the drop of the hat until the curtain. He was a popular fighter overseas during the war, and in his eight fights up North since he returned was solid with the fans because of his gameness under any circumstance. With his sparring partner it is his hard punch more than anything else that has created an impression. If he had only been in the hands of someone who had taught him to land it more often he would be near the top of the ladder of pugilistic fame. When they do connect, though, they mean disaster.

McAllister, the heavyweight, has been working out with Roy, and the latter has taken everything the hard-hitting teamster could give without weakening. Another heavyweight who was rehearsing with him took the count from one of his punches, and the lightweights have been fighting shy of him. With his advantage in age, Roy looks the most likely man yet produced to rock Joe off his pedestal.

The six preliminary bouts, according to Promoter Billy Davies, should prove to be far superior to the other three bouts staged during the last few months. No expense has been spared in endeavoring to make this show the best yet.

ERECT FOOTBALL STAND

CUMBERLAND, Sept. 16.—Messrs. Little & Smith were successful in obtaining the contract for the erection of a stand on the grounds of the Cumberland United Football Club.

The stand will have a seating capacity of four or five hundred and will be up-to-date in every particular. With two dressing rooms, one at each end of the structure.
